Do We Need Big Muscles?

By no means. Persons of herculean build frequently possess a mimimun of genuine vigor, and exhibit less endurance than very small people. Real vigor means the ability to digest and sleep well, and to perform a reasonable amount of daily exercise and mental labor without unnatural fatigue. It is because a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters enables the enfeebled dyspeptic to resume the allotted activity of every day life, as well as to participate without discomfort in its enjoyments, that it it is such a pre-eminently useful medicine.

VISITS HIS OWN GRAVE.

A Kansas Postmaster Who "Played 'Possum."

On July 16 the assistant postmaster-general appointed A. W. Hall postmaster at the village of Trading Post, this county, says a La Cygne (Kas.) correspondent in St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The only remarkable thing about this transaction is that, according to the war department records, Mr. Hall is dead and the government has discharged its obligation toward him by placing a tombstone over the place where he is supposed to be buried.

The town of Trading Post is within three miles of the Missouri state line. During the war Mr. Hall, then a young man, enlisted in the union army and saw considerable irregular service fighting the bushwhackers, who swarmed over the country and terrorized the inhabitants. One day a company of ten soldiers, of whom Hall was one, and an officer were detailed from a company of scouts to cross the state line and forage for provisions, the Kansas settlers having been pillaged until nothing was left. Hardly had they crossed the line before 100 bushwhackers swooped down upon and captured them. Without a moment's hesitation the captain of the guerrillas ordered their execution. They were taken to the summit of a large mound about a mile west of the line and shot down like dogs. Hall fell with the rest, shot through the head, but did not lose consciousness, and heard his executioners discuss the advisability of wasting another round of ammunition. Large numbers of union men were in the vicinity and the marauders made haste to recross the line and seek safety farther east.

Hall was found by friends, was taken care of and recovered, but was reported as killed to the war department. To this day he is known over the country as "'Possum" Hall. His dead comrades were buried about two miles from Trading Post, and a few years ago the government erected a slab to mark the graves, bearing Mr. Hall's name, in addition to those of the dead soldiers.

Thus it happens that if the postmaster so desires he can ride out and visit his own grave and read the record of his death.

THE NEXT WORLD'S FAIR.

Although the Paris exposition, which will mark the close of the nineteenth century, is still three years in the future, the French capital has its preparations for the great event well under way. The remarkable extent and beauty of the world's fair at Chicago have stimulated the civic pride of Paris, and no pains will be spared to make this exposition of 1900 surpass even that of 1893.

In anticipation of the approaching event several grand public works, which will add greatly to the beauty of the city, have already been begun. A noble avenue is to be opened from the Champs Elysees to the Hotel des Invalides, crossing the Seine by the great bridge of Alexander III., the corner-stone of which was laid by the czar during his visit to Paris last year.

At the upper end of this avenue two beautiful art palaces, which are to be permanent additions to the public museums of the city, as well as features of the exhibition, are being built. And finally, the Seine in the neighborhood of the exhibition grounds is to be transformed into a sort of Venetian canal, lined with palaces, terraces and Italian gardens, and furnished with broad embankments for use as promenades.

All of these undertakings are now fairly begun, and upon the most magnificent scale. The Pont Alexander III. will be nearly two hundred feet in width, and its single arch crowned by monuments of heroic size will occupy three years in building.

The exhibition itself is planned upon lines of equal grandeur, and there is every reason to expect that it will prove the most extensive and varied display of the products of civilization, useful and beautiful, which the world has ever seen.

Our own country has not yet officially accepted the invitation to take part, but will soon do so. It is to be hoped that the American nation will be represented by a display in all respects worthy of itself and of the occasion, and that Americans who visit the great fair will have no reason to blush at seeing the republic outdone in the friendly rivalry.

A Norwegian Monarch's Long Reign.

Norway can boast one of the longest reigns known in European history. Harald Fairhair, the founder of the kingdom of all Norway and of the dynasty which reigned 400 years, became king at the age of ten, 860, and died 933. If he had not resigned, owing to his advanced age, in 930, he might have held the "record" of Europe, which now belongs to Louis XIV. of France.

KIDNEY TROUBLES

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,

Also Backache.

I cannot speak too highly of Mrs. Pinkham's Medicine, for it has done so much for me. I have been a great sufferer from Kidney trouble, pains in muscles, joints, back and shoulders; feet would swell. I also had womb troubles and leucorrhœa. After using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and Blood Purifier and Liver Pills, I felt like a new woman. My kidneys are now in perfect condition, and all my other troubles are cured.—MRS. MAGGIE POTTS, 324 Kauffman St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Backache.

My system was entirely run down, and I suffered with terrible backache in the small of my back and could hardly stand upright. I was more tired in the morning than on retiring at night. I had no appetite. Since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I have gained fifteen pounds, and I look better than I ever looked before. I shall recommend it to all my friends, as it certainly is a wonderful medicine.—MRS. E. F. MORTON, 1043 Hopkins St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Kidney Trouble.

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I had suffered many years with kidney trouble. The pains in my back and shoulders were terrible. My menstruation became irregular, and I was troubled with leucorrhœa. I was growing very weak. I had been to many physicians but received no benefit. I began the use of Mrs. Pinkham's medicine, and the first bottle relieved the pain in my back and regulated the menses. It is the best kind of medicine that I have ever taken, for it relieved the pain so quickly and cured the disease.—MRS. LILLIAN CRIPPEN, Box 77, St. Andrews Bay, Fla.

The Sunday School convention.

The Sunday School convention held in the Eng. M. E. Church last Sunday was well attended by the members from the other churches and Sunday schools in the two townships, and was a complete success. Those who expected to take part did so, and there were no trying periods to get over for lack of some one to say something. It was more difficult to get them to stop than to start, which caused the convention to run over time in the afternoon about one hour. Everybody seemed interested and to enjoy the program. Mrs. Ida Duff county secretary, and husband of Britt were present; Mrs. Duff reporting the progress of the county work in the past four years, which shows a wonderful improvement and thatthere are 54 schools now organized in the county. County President Ramsey of Garner, was with us, and in his genial way gave us many helpful hints and suggestions. Rev Harvey of Garner, delivered the address in the evening, which was listened too with good attention througotout The address was full of good things for Sunday school teachers and officers, and was interesting and instructive to every one. The new officers elected were August Schaper, Pres: Ed Dow, Sec. and Treas. Aug. Martin, Wm. Bredlow, Mrs. C. Gruetzmacher and Mrs. H. N. Merrick executive committee. We hope and expect the new management will take hold of the work in earnest, and arrange a fine program for the Germantown meet this fall.

It would be a mistake to regard an expensive yacht merely as a summer symbol of lavishness. A magnificent steam yacht has been placed at the disposal of the inmates of the various "old ladies' homes" in Philadelphia for excursions on the Delaware river. What is even better, this act of generosity is said to be a characteristic exercise of kindness on the part of the owner. Where there is a will to be kind how readily the way opens!

The petty frauds perpetrated upon the government by well-to-do persons bringing from Europe valuables upon which they paid no duty were classed as "genteel smuggling." One of the benefits conferred by the new tariff law is to make these frauds impossible, and consequently to do away with an expression that never should have been used. There is no genteel thieving, burglary or law-breaking of any sort, and there never was any "genteel smuggling."

The importation of sugar in July was only about one-third that for June, the last full month before the enactment of the new tariff law. The total imports in July amounted to 178,004,060 pounds of raw sugar, valued at $4,152,245. In June there were 708,552,496 pounds of raw sugar imported, valued at $13,889,860. In April and May the importations amounted to 773,527,477 pounds, valued at $15,125,469, and in May there were 790,653,995 pounds imported, valued at $15,054,777. The importations for July were made up of 43,009,113 pounds of Hawaii sugar, valued at $1,242,363, which came in free of duty under the reciprocity treaty with that country; 16,156,049 pounds of beet sugar from Europe, valued at $3,003,270; 97,514,566 pounds of cane sugar, valued at $2,113,386, and 21,324,332 pounds of sugar testing above No. 16 Dutch standard, valued at $493,226.

The threshing that China received from Japan seems to have given the people some new ideas. They begin to see that civilization is power, and that China can not be strong unless developed on modern lines. The North China Herald prints a proclamation by the governor of Hunan, dwelling upon the advantages to be derived from the construction of telegraph lines in the province, and exhorting the people not to be wrongfully influenced and destroy the telegraph lines and poles now being erected connecting Changsha, the capital, with Wuchang, the capital of the sister province of Hupeh. According to a letter from Changsha, it is reported that, apparently acknowledging the value of the telegraphs and that they will not be allowed to interfere with the people's graves and the private property of the gentry and literati, the construction of the line has been going on rapidly, without the slightest hindrance on the part of the people of the province. THE NEWS IN IOWA

CORN CROP IS SUFFERING.

Director Sage Talks of the Effect of the Hot Wave.

DES MOINES, Sept. 9.—Director Sage, of the Iowa Weather and Crop Service, has returned from a trip through the northern and eastern part of the state for the purpose of inspecting the corn crop. He went out over the Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern and Iowa Central roads, traversing exactly the same country he went over before. His idea was to ascertain the effect of the recent hot weather on the crop. To a reporter he said: "Two weeks ago I went through exactly the same territory and found corn progressing as well as could be desired. It is true there were some evidences of need of rain, but on the whole the crop was in prime condition, the fields were green and the kernels were still filling out and the kernels multiplying. This time the fields present an almost solid expanse of dried out stalks and leaves. The weather has not been too warm, but it has been too dry, and as a result the crop has ripened in the past few days before it had an opportunity to mature. Many fields contain nothing but nubbins of corn, while in others the ear is of good size, but the kernels have not filled out and lack the proper amount of nutritious matter. I presume the conditions I found in the territory I visited extend over pretty much the entire state, with the exception of the small areas visited by local showers."

BRAVE OFFICER IS FREED.

Belle Plaine Marshal Acquitted of the Crime Charged.

BELLE PLAINE, Sept. 10.—The case of the State vs. Charles Warnock, for the shooting of Robert Liddie, came to a sudden termination. After the state rested its case the defendant's attorneys made a motion to discharge the prisoner on the ground that the shooting was done in self defense, and for the further reason that the evidence failed to show that the defendant ever shot Liddie. The motion the justice sustained. The evidence was just about the same as introduced before the coroner and did not change the case in any particular.

Man's Daughters Say They Convicted Him by Swearing Falsely.

LINEVILLE, Sept. 10.—A petition is being circulated asking Governor Drake to pardon T. H. Sinclair, who was convicted of incest in this county and is serving a ten years' sentence in the Anamosa penitentiary. Accompanying the petition will be the affidavits of both the convicted man's daughters, stating the testimony which they gave in the district court upon which their father was convicted was false. Sinclair has served three years of the sentence, and has full credit for good behavior.

WORRY OVER MONEY.

Suicide of a Prominent Resident of Atlantic.

ATLANTIC, Sept. 10.—Andrew Jensen, 35 years of age, committed suicide by taking strychnine, or some similar poison. His body was found near the entrance to the pasture, where he had taken his cows after breakfast. Despondency over being in arrears on making payments on his residence property and being ordered to vacate the same is the reason assigned for his suicide. He leaves $3,000 life insurance to his wife and two children.

THIRTY MINERS ESCAPED.

A Five Thousand Dollar Coal Mine Fire at Oskaloosa.

OSKALOOSA, Sept. 11.—The engine house and top works of Long's coal mine were burned, entailing a loss of $5,000. Henry Long owns the property, and Coons and Risney were lessees. There was only $250 insurance. There were thirty men imprisoned in the time, but they escaped injury.

Alleged Eldon Bank Robbers.

OTTUMWA, Sept. 11.—"Buck" Murray, the first of the Eldon bank robbers to be tried, was found guilty. The second trial of Jesse Hamilton, of Chicago, whose former trial caused such a sensation, has begun. Stevens the city marshal of Eldon, who confessed to instigating the crime, will be tried last. He will plead insanity.

Has $50,000 Buried in Kettles.

DUBUQUE, Sept. 10.—Conrad May, a former wealthy farmer of Grant county, Wisconsin, but now living in Dubuque, has had trouble with his wife, and was required to pay the costs of a suit for divorce and alimony besides. He was stubborn and refused to pay. Being pressed, he admitted he had $50,000 buried in two kettles in Grant county.

DUBUQUE, Sept. 10.—L. R. Brown, of Epworth, was awakened by burglars, who demanded his money. He succeeded in driving them from the room, but was badly hurt.

ASSAULTED BY A BIG DOG.

Mrs. Irwin N. Wood, of Sioux City, May Die From Her Injuries.

SIOUX CITY, Sept. 10.—A large St. Bernard dog made a ferocious attack upon its mistress, Mrs. Irwin W. Wood, as she was returning home for the night. The woman is now confined to her bed, and her lacerated body and limbs are swathed in bandages. It is feared that the wounds will result seriously, and as it is, the woman is in a very critical condition. This is the second time the vicious beast has assailed Mrs. Wood. Two weeks ago it jumped on her without any warning and bit her badly in the arm. This time it first took her by the ear, and as she turned to protect herself it bit her severely about the neck, nearly severing the jugular vein, and on the body and limbs. She was rescued by a young woman who occupied the next room.

BLOW UP IOWA MINE SHAFT

Rathbun Is the Scene of a Dynamite Explosion.

CENTERVILLE, Sept. 12.—Unknown parties tried to blow up the air escape shaft of the Star Coal Company's mine at Rathbun, near Centerville, with dynamite. A charge of the explosive was fastened to the ladder close to the shaft mouth and set off with a fuse. The charge was not as heavy as anticipated, and the explosion was not forcible enough to do much damage. The perpetrators have not been discovered, but it is said a discharged miner is suspected. Had the dynamite charge been heavier, the destruction to property would have been enormous. The Star mine employs 250 men and is owned by the Streator Coal Company, and is one of the largest in the country. The plant is now under detective surveillance.

WERE RACING WITH TEAMS.

Several Persons Seriously Injured at Geneva.

GENEVA, Sept. 11.—As the result of running horses several persons were severely injured north of town. Two accidents occurred. One open buggy containing eight persons was overturned, and a team attached to a three-seated rig plunged over a high embankment with six occupants. The injured; John McCullough, wrist broken; Mrs. McCullough, arm broken, head and face injured; Frank Hayes, shoulder blade broken. The other occupants were severely bruised.

Balloonist Nearly Killed.

VINTON, Sept. 11.—"Prof." Barnett, the balloonist, fell 150 feet here. His body struck in a corn field, where the ground was fairly soft, and this alone saved him from an instant death. He was unconscious, and for a time it was believed he was dead, but physicians were hastily summoned and after an examination they announced that no bones were broken, but that they feared serious and possibly fatal internal injuries.

Found Napier Not Guilty.

ALBIA, Sept. 12.—The jury in the case of the state of Iowa vs. James Napier, charged with intent to commit murder, returned a verdict of not guilty. On the 28th of last July, while Bert Kirkman was mowing grass in a field, someone shot him in the back, inflicting a serious wound. Napier was placed under arrest and indicted by the grand jury for the crime.

IOWA CONDENSED.

Another sensation has developed in the Mitchell county treasury defalcation case. Some person or persons broke into the county treasurer's office and vault and burned and destroyed a large part of the records. It is supposed to have connection with the recent $5,000 defalcation which was discovered under the Pelton regime. Pelton was killed by a bull about six weeks ago. His son was three weeks ago nominated for treasurer, but as soon as the shortage was discovered withdrew from the ticket. The board of supervisors put an expert at the books, but the burning of the records covers up all hopes of ferretting out the matter. A reward of $2,100 is offered for the arrest of the person burning the records.

Iowa Falls dispatch: The presence of Attorney General Remley in Iowa Falls recalls the investigation instituted last winter by the legislature of the census frauds in which Secretary McFarland was entangled. Mr. Remley, while in the city, was closeted with Hon J. H, Funk, who was chairman of the house committee on the investigation. The two gentlemen went over the evidence taken before the investigating committee last winter with a view to using it in a suit now pending against the ex-secretary of state for misappropiation of funds in connection with the last state census. It is rumored that after the trial of the suit now pending the testimony will be turned over to the Polk county grand jury with a view of indicting the ex-secretary for perjury, alleged to have been committed while testifying before the legislative committee.

ALL OVER THE WORLD

DEPUTIES KILL MANY MINERS.

Riot Between Strikers and Officers in Pennsylvania.

HAZELTON, Pa., Sept. 11.—The strike situation reached a terrible crisis on the outskirts of Latimer yesterday, when a band of deputy sheriffs fired into an infuriated mob of miners. The men fell like so many sheep, and the excitement since has been so intense that no accurate figures of the dead and wounded can be obtained. Reports run from fifteen to twenty odd killed and forty or more wounded. One man counted thirteen corpses. Four other bodies lie in the mountains between Latimer and Harleigh. Those who were not injured carried their dead and wounded friends into the woods and estimate is baffled. The strikers left Hazelton to march to Latimer to get the miners to come out. Sheriff Martin learned of their intentions and accompanied by seventy deputies headed the miners off. He read the riot act to them and then, according to his story, he was violently assaulted. Thereupon he gave the order to fire. The strikers deny that they assaulted the sheriff, and declare they only attempted to pass on to the mines. Sheriff Martin bears no marks to prove that he was assaulted. The hasty action of the sheriff is condemned by all classes of citizens. One meeting attended by coal operators and prominent citizens urged the governor to call out the militia, while at another meeting, attended by thousands, the sentiment was against calling out the militia, However, the governor ordered the Third brigade to mobilize at Hazelton and ordered the First brigade to hold itself in readiness.

HAZLETON, Pa., Sept. 13.—It is now certain that twenty men were killed and forty wounded by the deputies, and five of the wounded will die. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of Sheriff Martin and his deputies. The 1,500 workers in the Latimer mines have quit work and joined the strikers.

YELLOW FEVER SCARE.

People of Southern Mississippi No Longer Fear Its Spread.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Surgeon General Wyman says the yellow fever situation looks decidedly more hopeful. No new cases are reported to him, although the newspapers report three new cases at Biloxi.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 9.—Mayor Harry Howard has issued a proclamation to the people of Biloxi announcing three cases of yellow fever and three suspects. He says they are all isolated. The residents of Back Bay have appealed to the council of Biloxi and the quarantine will be raised so that they may secure supplies.

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 7.—Governor McLaurin has just received a telegram from two members of the state board of health who went to Ocean Springs to investigate the yellow fever scare. They say: "After a most thorough investigation in every conceivable light, it is the unaminous opinion of representatives of Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi state boards of health and the marine hospital service, that the fever now prevailing in Ocean Springs is yellow fever." The state board of health has decided to enforce a rigid quarantine against Ocean Springs and Biloxi. It will also be enforced against the watering places on the gulf coast.

MINERS' STRIKE IS SETTLED.

Workmen Finally Vote to Take the 65 Cent Offer.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 13.—The great miners' strike, which started on July 4, has been brought to an end, so far, at least, as western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia are concerned, by the action of the interstate convention of miners. After a day of voting and wrangling, the convention adopted a resolution accepting the proposition of the Pittsburg operators. The vote was 495 for and 317 against accepting the terms of settlement. The resolution adopted is as follows: "Resolved, That we, the miners of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, in convention assembled, do hereby agree to accept the proposition recommended by our national executive committee, viz.: 65 cents per ton in the Pittsburg district and in all places in above named states."

In the Soudan.

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Cairo says it is rumored there that the advance of the Anglo-Egyptian columns under Gen. Sir Herbert Kitchener to Khartoum will be delayed until January, owing to lack of funds. The troops meantime will be concentrated at Berber.

Mile Record Broken.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—At the Crystal Palace, the bicyclist, Stock, with a flying start, covered a mile in 1:35 7-8, beating the record for that distance.

MAY CIRCUMVENT US.

England May Ruin Nicaragua Canal by Taking Panama Franchise.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The World's Washington special says: The cable advices from Colon to the effect that the franchise heretofore held by the French company for the construction of a ship canal across the Isthmus of Panama has been transferred to the government of Great Britain, have created a sensation here. Officials and those closely interested in the Nicaraguan canal project frankly admit that if the transference has really been made it will effectually prevent the United States from controlling the proposed interoceanic waterway and render the building of the Nicaraguan canal useless. At the same time it is not generally believed that the concession held by the French company has been transferred to the government of Great Britain. It is considered possible that an English company has purchased the rights of the French company and may continue the work now in progress, but that the British government has assumed control of the project is not credited.

ENGLISH SILVER CONCESSION.

Intense Excitement Over Move of Bank of England.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—The announcement of the Times that the directors of the Bank of England consented to hold one-fifth of the bank reserve in silver has caused much excitement on the continent. The governor of the bank of England, Albert George Sandeman, questioned by the Associated Press, refused to confirm the report. From other Bank of England officials, however, it is learned that the article was probably written at the instance of the government to ascertain the temper of the people on the subject before giving a final answer to the United States monetary commission.

REVOLUTION IN GUATEMALA.

Brother of the President Killed—Strict Censorship.

SAN JOSE, Guatemala, Sept. 13.—The censorship on all messages from Guatemala is very strict. A brother of President Barrios and the wife of Senor Jefe De Tolitioo have been killed. The Plaza San Marios has been taken possession of by the revolutionists.

Corbett Will Fight.

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 11.—Ex-Champion James J. Corbett, received a telegram from Chicago informing him the Northern Julane Club, of New Orleans offers $20,000 for a contest between Corbett and Fitzsimmons. Corbett authorized the Associated Press to say he accept the offer.

Brewery Boiler Kills Many.

VIENNA, Sept. 12.—By an explosion of a boiler in a brewery at Hoenstaedt eleven were killed and many injured.

A Brussels correspondent announces that the governments of Belgium and Holland are about to conclude a defensive treaty. Fear is expressed the correspondent says, that Belgium will be the seat of war between France and Germany.

At Barcelona recently the chief of police and assistant chief, who directed the investigation into the Barcelona bomb outrages, were shot and seriously wounded by a supposed anarchist, who was subsequently arrested. The man arrested for the shooting of the two police officials is a native of Barcelona, but he belongs to the Paris group of anarchists. His name is given as Barril. When questioned regarding his attempt to assassinate the two chiefs he admitted he was an anarchist, and that he had been expelled from Spain in 1895 for hissing the Spanish flag. The prisoner is well educated. When Barril was searched, an important document of a compromising nature was found upon his person.

A London cable says: The World's special inquiries throughout Ireland fully corroborate the alarming pedictions recently cabled of the failure of the harvest and consequent impending famine. Cries of warning to the government are arising in crescendo scale from all parts of Ireland. They are not confined as in former years of distress to the conjested districts on the western sea board. From Mullinger one of the most prosperous parts of the midlands, a correspondent telegraphs: "The crops are now irretrievably destroyed. It will be impossible for the farmers to make anything out of their cereals this year, as they are quickly rotting. In the churches prayers for fine weather have been recited and if a change does not come immediately, crops might as well be left to manure the ground." From County Wexford, noted as one of the richest in the country, the tidings are: "The green crops may be described as a gigantic failure in County Wexford this year. The potato crop is only fit for feeding cattle."

THE FROZEN DEEP

A NOVEL BY WILKIE COLLINS.

INTERNATIONAL PRESS ASSOCIATION.

Clara's eyes still wandered suspiciously to and fro among the crowd.

"Are you not satisfied yet?" asked Mrs. Crayford.

"No," Clara answered. "I am not satisfied yet."

"What! still looking for him? This is really too absurd. Here is my husband coming. I shall tell him to call a cab and send you home."

Clara drew back a few steps. "I won't be in the way, Lucy, while you are taking leave of your good husband," she said. "I will wait here."

"Wait here! What for?"

"For something which I may yet see. Or for something which I may still hear."

"Richard Wardour?"

"Richard Wardour."

Mrs. Crayford turned to her husband without another word. Clara's infatuation was beyond the reach of remonstrance.

The boats of the Wanderer took the place at the landing-stage vacated by the boats of the Sea-Mew. A burst of cheering among the outer ranks of the crowd announced the arrival of the commander of the Expedition on the scene. Captain Helding appeared, looking right and left for his first lieutenant. Finding Crayford with his wife, the captain made his apologies for interfering, with his best grace.

"Give him up to his professional duties for one minute, Mrs. Crayford, and you shall have him back again for half an hour. The Arctic Expedition is to blame, my dear lady—not the captain—for parting man and wife. In Crayford's place I should have left it to the bachelors to find the Northwest Passage, and have stopped at home with you."

Excusing himself in those bluntly complimentary terms, Captain Heiding drew the lieutenant aside a few steps, accidentally taking a direction that led the two officers close to the place at which Clara was standing. Both the captain and the lieutenant were too completely absorbed in their professional duties to notice her. Neither the one nor the other had the faintest suspicion that she could, and did, hear every word of the talk that passed between them.

"You received my note this morning?" the captain began.

"Certainly, Captain Helding, or I should have been on board the ship long before this."

"I am going on board myself at once," the captain proceeded. "But I must ask you to keep your boat waiting for half an hour more. You will be all the longer with your wife, you know. I thought of that, Crayford."

"I am much obliged to you, Captain Helding. I suppose there is some other reason for inverting the customary order of things, and keeping the lieutenant on shore after the captain is on board?"

"Quite true; there is another reason. I want you to wait for a volunteer who has just joined us."

"A volunteer!"

"Yes; he has his outfit to get in a hurry, and he may be half an hour late."

"It's a rather sudden appointment, isn't it?"

"No doubt. Very sudden."

"And, pardon me, it's rather a long time (as we are situated) to keep the ships waiting for one man?"

"Quite true, again. But a man who is worth having is worth waiting for. This man is worth having; this man is worth his weight in gold to such an expedition as ours. Seasoned to all climates and all fatigues; a strong fellow, a brave fellow, a clever fellow—in short, an excellent officer. I know him well, or I should never have taken him. The country gets plenty of work out of my new volunteer, Crayford. He only returned yesterday from foreign service."

"He only returned yesterday from foreign service, and he volunteers this morning to join the Arctic Expedition? You astonish me."

"I dare say I do; you can't be more astonished than I was when he presented himself at my hotel, and told me what he wanted. 'Why, my good fellow, you have just got home,' I said; 'are you weary of your freedom after only a few hours' experience of it?' His answer rather startled me. He said, 'I am weary of my life, sir; I have come home and found a trouble to welcome me which goes near to break my heart. If I don't take refuge in absence and hard work, I am a lost man. Will you give me refuge? That's what he said, Crayford, word for word."

"Did you ask him to explain himself further?"

"Not I; I knew his value, and I took the poor devil on the spot without pestering him with any more questions. No need to ask him to explain himself; the facts speak for themselves in these cases. The old story, my good friend. There's a woman at the bottom of it, of course."

Mrs. Crayford, waiting for the return of her husband as patiently as she could, was startled by feeling a hand suddenly laid on her shoulder. She looked around and confronted Clara. Her first feeling of surprise changed instantly to alarm. Clara was trembling from head to foot.

"What is the matter? What has frightened you, dear?"

"Lucy! I have heard of him!"

"Richard Wardour again?"

"Remember what I told you. I have heard every word of the conversation between Capt. Helding and your husband. A man came to the Captain this morning and volunteered to joint the Wanderer. The Captain has taken him. The man is Richard Wardour."

"You don't mean it. Are you sure? Did you hear Captain Helding mention his name?"

"No."

"Then how do you know it's Richard Wardour?"

"Don't ask me. I am as certain of it as that I am standing here. They are going away together, Lucy—away to the eternal ice and snow. My foreboding has come true. The two will meet—the man who is to marry me, and the man whose heart I have broken!"

"Your foreboding has not come true, Clara! The men have not met here—the men are not likely to meet elsewhere. Even supposing it is Wardour, they are appointed to separate ships. Frank belongs to the Sea-Mew, and Wardour to the Wanderer. See! My husband is coming this way. Let me speak to him."

Lieutenant Crayford returned to his wife. She spoke to him instantly.

"William have you got a new volunteer who joins the Wanderer?"

"What! you have been listening to the Captain and me?"

"I want to know his name."

"How in the world did you manage to hear what we said to each other?"

"His name? Has the Captain given you his name?"

"Don't excite yourself, my dear. Look! you are positively alarming Miss Burnham. The new volunteer is a perfect stranger to us. There is his name—last of the ship's list."

Mrs. Crayford snatched the list out of her husband's hand, and read the name:

"Richard Wardour."

CHAPTER VI.

GOOD-BYE to England! Good-bye to inhabited and civilized regions of the earth!

Two years have passed since the voyagers sailed from their native shores. The enterprise has failed—the Arctic Expedition is lost and ice-locked in the Polar wastes. The good ships Wanderer and Sea-Mew, entombed in ice, will never ride the buoyant waters more. Stripped of their lighter timbers, both vessels have been used for the construction of huts, erected on the nearest land.

The larger of the two buildings which now shelter the lost men is occupied by the surviving officers and crew of the Sea-Mew. On one side of the principal room are the sleeping berths and the fireplace. The other side discloses a broad doorway (closed by a canvas screen) which serves as means of communication with an inner apartment devoted to the superior officers. A hammock is slung to the rough, raftered roof of the main room as an extra bed. A man, completely hidden by his bed clothes, is sleeping in the hammock. By the fireside there is a second man—supposed to be on watch—fast asleep, poor wretch! at the present moment. Behind the sleeper stands an old cask which serves for a table. The objects at present on the table are a pestle and mortar, and a saucepan of dry bones of animals. In plain words, the dinner for the day. By way of ornament to the dull brown walls, icicles appear in the crevices of the timber, gleaming at intervals in the red firelight. No wind whistles outside the lonely dwelling—no cry of bird or beast is heard. In doors and out of doors the awful silence of the polar desert reigns, for the moment, undisturbed.

The first soud that broke the silence came from the inner apartment. An officer lifted the canvas screen in the hut of the "Sea-Maw," and entered the main room. Cold and privation had sadly thinned the ranks. The commander of the ship—Captain Ebsworth—was dangerously ill. The first lieutenant was dead. An officer of the Wanderer filled their places for the time, with Captain Helding's permission. The officer so employed was Lieutenant Crayford.

He approached the man at the fireside and awakened him.

"Jump up, Bateson! It's your turn to be relieved."

The relief appeared, rising from a heap of old sails at the back of the hut. Bateson vanished, yawning to his bed. Lieutenant Crayford walked backward and forward briskly, trying what exercise would do toward warming his blood.

The pestal and the mortar on the cask attracted his attention. He stopped and looked up at the man in the hammock.

"I must rouse the cook," he said to himself, with a smile. "That fellow little thinks how useful he is in keeping up my spirits. The most inveterate croaker and grumbler in the world—and yet, according to his own account, the only cheerful man in the whole ship's company. John Want! John Want! Rouse up, there!"

A head rose slowly out of the bedclothes, covered with a red night-cap. A melancholy nose rested itself on the edge of the hammock. A voice, worthy of the nose, expressed its opinion of the Arctic climate in these words:

"Lord! Lord! here's all my breath on my blanket. Icicles, if you please, sir, all round my mouth and all over my blanket. Every time I have snored I've frozen something. When a man gets the cold into him to that extent that he ices his own bed, it can't last much longer. Never mind! I don't grumble."

Crayford tapped the saucepan of bones impatiently. John Want lowered himself to the floor—grumbling all the way—by a rope attached to the rafters of his bed head. Instead of approaching his superior officer and his saucepan, he hobbled, shivering, to the fireplace, and held his chin as close as he possibly could over the fire. Crayford looked after him.

"Hello! what are you doing there?"

"Thawing my beard, sir."

"Come here directly, and set to work on these bones."

John Want remained immovably attached to the fireplace, holding something else over the fire. Crayford began to lose his temper.

"What the devil are you about now?"

"Thawing my watch, sir. It's been under my pillow all night, and the cold has stopped it. Cheerful, wholesome, bracing sort of climate to live in, isn't it, sir? Never mind. I don't grumble."

"No; we all know that. Look here! Are these bones pounded small enough?"

John Want suddenly approached the lieutenant, and looked at him with an appearance of the deepest interest.

"You'll excuse me, sir," he said; "how very hollow your voice sounds this morning!"

"Never mind my voice! The bones! the bones!"

"Yes, sir—the bones. They'll take a trifle more pounding. I'll do my best with them, sir, for your sake."

"What do you mean?"

John Want shook his head and looked at Crayford with a dreary smile.

"I don't think I shall have the honor of making much more bone soup for you, sir. Do you think yourself you'll last long, sir? I don't, saving your presence. I think about another week or ten days will do for us all. Never mind! I don't grumble."

He poured the bones into the mortar and began to pound them—under protest. At the same moment a sailor appeared, entering from the inner hut.

"A message from Captain Ebsworth, sir."

"Well?"

"The captain is worse than ever with his freezing pains, sir. He wants to see you immediately."

"I will go at once. Rouse the doctor."

Answering in those terms, Crayford returned to the inner hut, followed by the sailor. John Want shook his head again and smiled more drearily than ever.

Loaf Sugar.

"Father," said the bright little girl, "what is loaf sugar?"

"There are several kinds, my dear," replied Senator Sorghum. "The most important variety is that which enables a man by a little superior knowledge and prompt action to place himself beyond the necessity of working any more."—Washington Star.

BRYAN IN A TRAIN WRECK.

Twelve Persons Killed, But He Escaped Without Injury.

EMPORIA, Kas., Sept. 9.—One of the worst wrecks in the history of the Santa Fe railroad occurred three miles east of Emporia at about 7:30 p. m. Twelve or fifteen persons were killed, and as many more were badly hurt. The fast mail train going east and the Mexico & California express, westbound, collided head on. The Mexico & California express was pulled by two locomotives, and when they struck the engine drawing the fast mail the boilers of all three engines exploded and tore a hole in the ground so deep that the smoking cars of the westbound train went in on top of the engine and two mail cars balanced there without turning over. The engineer of the west-bound train had received orders to meet the fast mail at Emporia, and was making up lost time. These two are the fastest trains on the Santa Fe system, and the eastbound train must have been running at a speed of at least forty miles an hour. The west-bound train carried seven or eight coaches, and its passengers included many excursionists, who had been to hear Hon. W. J. Bryan speak at the county fair at Burlingame. Mr. Bryan himself was on the train, but was riding in the rear Pullman some 400 feet from the cars which were wrecked. Mr. Bryan helped to carry out the dead and wounded, and gave the greatest attention to their care. One poor fellow who was badly maimed called to Mr. Bryan and said: "I went to hear you to-day; I am dying and want to shake your hand and say God bless you. If you possibly can, Mr. Bryan, get me a drink of water." Mr. Bryan went into the fast mail car, one end of which was burning, and came out with the drink, which he gave to the suffering man.

TWENTY-FIVE ARE DEAD.

Bad Wreck On the Rio Grande Road at Newcastle, Colorado.

NEWCASTLE, Colo., Sept. 11.—A Denver & Rio Grande passenger train, west-bound, collided with a Colorado Midland stock train going east, near Newcastle, wrecking both engines and several cars of each train. Fire broke out in the ruins and the mail, baggage and express cars, smoker, day coach and tourist sleeper were burned. A number of passengers were not killed outright, but were pinned in the wreckage and perished in the flames. There were two hundred passengers. It is estimated that twenty-five were killed, and as many more bruised, scalded and burned, of whom six or more are likely to die. The trains collided on a curve round the mountain and there was no opportunity to even slacken speed. Blame is laid on the conductor of the stock train.

TERRIBLE FOREST FIRES.

Millions of Feet of Lumber Destroyed in Wyoming.

BUFFALO, Wyo., Sept. 11.—The forest fire which has been burning two or three weeks in the Big Horn country continues unabated, and is spreading rapidly, fanned by the high gale. Already twenty miles square, reported to have been covered with millions of feet of timber, has been destroyed. Settlers fought the fires until forced to give up. There is no prospect of rain. Unless something is done by the government there is no limit to the loss which may be sustained.

Havana dispatch: Horrors accumulate in Cuba. Besides those persons slain by machete or bullet, pestilence is claiming its victims by the hundred, and starvation daily adds to the alarming mortality. During August 500 persons died in Guines alone from epidemic diseases. All of the victims, with one exception, were Cubans. The rate of mortality among the refugees is terrible and the same is true regarding the troops. The mortality due to yellow fever, malaria and dysentery is excessive. It is estimated that thirty-seven out of every thousand sick soldiers in the hospitals throughout the island die. It is stated that from twenty to twenty-six deaths occur on each of the steamers which carry sick and disabled troops from Cuba to Spain. The bodies of those who die en route are thrown overboard. Three deaths occurred on one of these steamers recently before she left port.

A careful estimate of the shortage of food supply in Europe shows that in rye and potatoes the conditions are as bad as in wheat. Rye is as importent an article as wheat in many European countries, and the same is, of cource, true of potatoes. The shortage in wheat, rye, and potatoes, in Europe is now estimated as follows:

	Bushels,
Wheat	300,000,000
Rye	325,000,000
Potatoes	1,000,000,000
	1,625,000,000

With a shortage of 1,625,000,000 bushels in the food supply of Europe, the silver orators are thinking of revising their calamity argument of last year.

Export Butter.

Traveling through the country and noting the shipment of butter made from the creameries, it is pleasant to see many Australian packages waiting for the refrigerator car. On inquire of a railroad official what all this meant, he said: Much of it means that we are now exporting an unusual quantity of butter abroad due largly to the efforts of Secretary Willson." The Australian package is a square box made in that way for the purpose of saving room in the steamer, where freight is not charged for by weight but by the space occupied. Inquiring further we find that in Iowa and Minnesota large contracts are being made for butter made expressly for export, with little or no salt, with little or no color, with as little water as possible, placed in the Australian boxes, and protected as perfectly as possible from all odors that it might possibly acquire on shipboard. It is only necessary now secure the best of refrigeration on shipboard, the best of refrigaration at the exporting points, the best of refrigeration at the creameries and on the cars and cater to the taste, or whims, of the foreign buyer. Canada is to be our closest competitor for this trade, and she is meeting all these requirements in a very practical way. Secretary Wilson has done much by his butter exports and the discussions growing out of them to facilitate and increase this movement, which is preventing us from having a drug of first-class butter in the market, and is putting hundreds of thousands of dollars into the pockets of dairymen as well as exporters.—Wallaces' Farmer.

Bland, Tillman, and Bryon admit that there is "temporary" prosperity. A year ago they said even that couldn't come without free coinage.

"Because it is my deliberate judgement that the prosperity of America is mainly due to its system of protective laws, I urge that Germany has now reached the point where it is necessary to imitate the tariff system of the United States."—Bismark.

Henry Dusenburg is in this vicinity selling nursery stock. He got through with his family all right, and his wife is much improved in health.

For past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the greatest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and others in his community. Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed for Coughs, colds and Consumption. It don't fail. Trial bottles at Harr's Drug Store.

Tribute to the wife and mother.

It does make one tired—slang is excusable here—to read the census reports giving the number of women "engaged in self-supporting occupation," said list including clerks, typewriters, school-teachers, etc., but not one wife and mother. As if the woman who darn's her husband's stockings, keeps the children's faces clean, cooks for a family of a dozen, more or less, keeps a house in order, washes, irons, bakes, mends, sews, sweeps, nurses the sick, spanks the erring, and keeps an eye on a thousand and one things from early morning till late at night, and then sleeps with one eye open lest Tommy kicks the bed cloths off his sturdy little limbs or baby shows signs of croup, were not "self supporting." But come to think of it she isn't. She supports all the rest of the family and in nine cases out of ten has neither time nor strength left to look out for herself.—Lewiston (Me) Journal

An intelligent observer writing from Butler county, Iowa, says: "There is a disease among the hogs that is killing off large numbers. It is worse than any cholera that has ever been here. At first the hogs show loss of appetite, going off without feeding; then they appear to be feverish and week in the back and stagger. Their lungs fill up and some of them die within twenty-four hours after the symtoms appear. Of those affected about 10 per cent. recover." Possibly this is only a varety of the plague that goes by the name of hog cholera. There are numerous localities where the plague has made its appearance. Farmers should use due caution about feeding and avoid excess.—Homestead.

IT HAS MANY LIVES.

THE LIZARD IS VERY HARD TO KILL.

Sticking Its Brain and Soaking in Alcohol Don't Worry the Monitor—Found Along the River Nile—Distinct from Other Lizards.

THE monitor is distinguished among all lizards by the difficulty of killing it. It owes its name to its habit of whistling to give warning of the approach of crocodiles.

A live specimen of this curious lizard has just been brought to the London Zoo from South Africa. A naturalist who undertook to kill one writes.:

"Having caught one of the species by the neck so that she could not bite me, I got a large worsted needle, and gave her several punctures with it, not only in the heart, but in every part of the cranium which was in contact with the brain. This, however, was so far from answering my purpose, which was to kill her in the most speedy and least painful manner, without mangling or mutilating her, that she seemed to have still enough life left to be able to run away.

"After this, my host undertook to put an end to her, and, having given her several hard squeezes about the chest and tied her feet together, hung her up by the neck in a noose, which he drew as tight as he possibly could.

"From this situation she was found, in a space of forty-eight hours, to have extricated herself, though she still remained near the farm, appearing at the same time to be almost exhausted. Upon this we tied her feet close behind her, so that with her long and sharp claws, of which she had five upon each foot, she could not damage the serpents and other animals which I kept in a cask of brandy, and among which I put her with my own hands, holding her a long time under the surface of the liquor. Yet she was so far from being suffocated immediately that she flounced about, and even a quarter of an hour afterward convinced us by her motions that she had still some life remaining in her."

The Nile monitor or varan (Varanus Niloticus), of which the newcomer at the Zoo is a specimen, is, perhaps, the largest member of the family, and has been known to attain a length of over six feet. In structural character it is somewhat distinct from other lizards, approaching in several respects its enemy, the crocodile—the largest of existing reptiles. It is on the eggs of crocodiles, or the young crocodiles themselves, that it chiefly feeds, a habit which is said to explain the fact that it appears on the monuments of the ancient Egyptians. It is still common to the Nile, though it has also been found in the rivers of South Africa, as well as in Senegal and near Sierra Leone.

BULLET PROOF.

A Remarkable Cloth Tested That Comes Very Close to It.

This week there is to be a further test in Chicago of the power of Zegler's bullet-proof cloth to resist the steel-jacketed missiles of the Krag-Jorgensen rifle. The test will be made in the presence of the German and Austrian consuls by their request. Last week the first test was made by two soldiers from Fort Sheridan. Col. Hall, the commandant of the post; Lieut.-Col. Carpenter and a number of other officers were present. It was the first time that the army's new rifle had been tried against any of the so-called bullet-proof cloths, and the officers were quite confident that the gun would win. Lieut. Saranecki attached the cloth, which measured twenty-four by sixteen inches, to the wooden figure of a man which is used by the soldiers of the fort as a target. The first shot fired was at 400 yards' distance, and the bullet fell to the ground twisted after tearing a hole half an inch deep in the cloth. At 350 yards the bullet penetrated the cloth a quarter of an inch and stuck. At 300 yards the bullet went in deeper, and at 250 yards it went half way through. At 200 yards the bullet passed through, its head projecting a sixteenth of an inch. The army officers were much impressed by the tests, but say that the cloth cannot be made into uniforms on account of its weight. The piece used in the tests weighed fourteen pounds. Besides, the shock of impact would be sufficient to kill a man, even though the ball did not break the skin. The Krag-Jorgensen is the most powerful of modern rifles and will kill a man two miles away. It is thought that Zegler's cloth may be utilized to make shields for Gatling and other machine guns.

SHOTGUN INSTRUCTIONS.

A Missouri Judge's Unwritten Law Which the Jury Respected.

Judge Falconer, of Kentucky, who gave the "unwritten law" decision in the murder hearing of a man who shot the despoiler of his home, is but one of several men who have held openly on the bench that homicide is not a crime when committed to avenge one's honor.

Some years ago in the Criminal Court of St. Louis, Bill Smith was on trial for an attempt to murder Mrs. Sterling, a reputable woman who had the management of her husband's farm during his absence. The Sterling farm was in Illinois. Sterling was in California at the time of the attack. His wife was an attractive woman. One of the men on the farm was Bill Smith. His attentions to Mrs. Sterling were more emphatic than discreet and he was discharged. He went to St. Louis and arranged a plan by which Mrs. Sterling visited that city, though she was ignorant of Smith's connection with the scheme. He met her, to her surprise, soon aften her arrival, and demanded that she sell her farm, which she could have done at the time without the consent of her husband, and go with him out of the country. The woman declined. Smith forced her into a hallway and nearly succeeded in cutting her throat with a pocketknife. The attack would have carried but for the arrival of help.

Smith's immediate arrest followed, and he undertook to justify his act by the statement that the woman had trifled with his affections. Sterling arrived from California to assist the state in its prosecution. During the trial it was noticed that Sterling seldom took his right hand from his pocket. Laughlin, the judge, directed the jury to find Smith guilty, and then said:

"If Mr. Sterling had taken a double-barrelled shotgun on his return to this city and unloaded both barrels into the carcass of this man Smith, even if he had done it in this court-room, the act would have been not only justifiable, but proper and to Mr. Sterling's credit. But as he did not, gentlemen of the jury, you will pass upon the defendant's guilt, and I will assess the punishment, assuring you that it will be to the full extent."

Of course the verdict was guilty. In passing sentence, which was ten years, Laughlin scored Smith and repeated his shotgun instructions. When this was done Sterling took his hand out of his pocket. He had resolved to kill Smith if the verdict was different.

IT IS UNUSUAL.

Roman Catholic Priests Organize a Grand Army Post.

A Grand Army post has just been formed in Indiana whose membership, with one exception, is made up of Roman Catholic priests and brothers of the Order of the Holy Cross. This unique addition to the Grand Army is located at Notre Dame, the seat of Notre Dame university. The formation of the post was suggested by the presence in the university of so many instructors who fought in the war or were chaplains. A brother who fought all through the war in the Irish brigade was recently transferred to Notre Dame from an university, and a list of eligibles was a member of the Grand Army and wanted to remain one. The Very Rev. Father Corby, who was chaplain of the Irish brigade, is now superior of the Order of the Holy Cross. He approved the suggestion of a post at the university, and a list ofeligibles was made. Enough were found to make a quorum and six over. Accordingly the post was organized under permission regularly granted by State Commander Dodge. Notre Dame has a fine war record. In all, eight priests left there to serve as chaplains, most of whom are now dead. In addition, there were sixty sisters of the Order of the Holy Cross who went out as nurses, under Mother Mary Angela, a cousin of James G. Blaine. Most of the veterans among the brothers joined the organization after the close of the war. Gen. Olmstead, who now belongs to the order, is also a member. The only layman who has been admitted to this branch of the church militant is Col. William Haynes, who is the dean of the law school. Brother Leander, who was a private in the Fifteenth Regiment of the regular army all through the war, was chiefly instrumental in the post's organization.

A Golden Floor.

King George II was once invited out to dine with a wealthy and eccentric old duke, who possessed more money than he knew very well what to do with. Upon this occasion, wishing to impress his majesty with the immensity of his riches, he had the floor of the dining room paved from end to end with sovereigns, the heads being up. Each coin was stuck in a mixture of lime, which soon dried, leaving the precious "tile" securely fastened. When the king arrived, and was shown what had been done in his honor, his amazement knew no bounds, and it was with difficulty he could be persuaded to set foot upon the golden floor.

TRRIBLE WRECK IN ARCTIC SEA.

Forty-two of a Ship's Crew of Fifty-one Lost.

SEATTLE, Sept. 12.—Just before the steamer Cleveland left St. Michaels, the survivors of a most disastrous wreck, in which forty-two men lost their lives, reached the island. Only nine live to tell the tale of one of the most terribie trips ever taken in Arctic waters. The steam whaler Navareh, of San Francisco, cruising in Arc waters got caught in an iceberg. The particulars of the fearful loss of life that foliowed the unfortunate ship were not obtained by either passengers on the Cleveland nor her crew. As much of it as they know is contained in the brief summary of a few additional facts. After the steamer became jammed in the ice, there must have been part of the crew who tried to get out by working their way across the ice. There was thirty-one of these perished. Eleven more froze to death on the boat, leaving nine survivors.

A Universal Money Standard.

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., Sept. 10.—At a meeting of 250 delegates to the Trades Union Congress, in session in Birmingham, a resolution was adopted declaring "that the best interests of labor and productive industry imperatively press for an international settlement of the monetary question by means of the restoration to par of exchange between gold and silver money, so as to provide a common standard of values throughout the world. This meeting of representative trade unionists earnestly urges the government to carry out its pledges to parliament on the subject in a hearty, liberal spirit in the present negotiations for an international agreement."

No Franco-Russian Treaty.

LONDON, Sept. 10.—The Daily News Berlin correspondent says it is alleged on the authority of reliable sources at St. Petersburg that no written alliance between France and Russia exists, and that not even a verbal treaty was made, for the military convention was of an earlier date. The czar used the phrase "allied nation" in response to the urging of M. Hanotaux that unless something of the sort was said the French ministry would be overthrown on President Faure's return to Paris.

English Paper Warns America.

KNOWN IN KNOXVILLE

A CRIPPLE CURED.

The Chicago "Times-Herald" Correspondent at Knoxville Meets an Old Friend.

From the Times-Herald, Chicago, Ill.

At the Normal Institute at Knoxville, Iowa, on August 6th, the Knoxville correspondent of the Chicago Times-Herald was much surprised to meet his old friend, Mr. A. T. Conn, whom he believed to be a life-long cripple, from rheumatism and sciatica, moving around as brisk as anybody. As the last time Mr. Conn had been seen by the Times-Herald man he was on crutches, and in a terrible condition, the subject of his recovery was the topic of conversation. The following is a resume of Mr. Conn's story:

"You are aware that from overwork and exposure in April, 1894, I contracted sciatica and rheumatism, and grew steadily worse, notwithstanding the best of medical treatment that the neighborhood afforded, until I was at last confined to my bed, and what little locomotion I performed was done on crutches. From the time I was taken until August, 1895, I tried every remedy I could hear of without any relief whatever. It was at that time that a friend recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and was so enthusiastic over their virtues that I was persuaded to try them, and began to take them in September, 1895. I was rather discouraged at first to find myself decidedly worse, but was urged by my frinds to persevere and give the medicine a fair trial and so I did. After a while I began to feel an improvement, though it was not noticeable to those around me, but I knew I was better, and soon was so elated that I foolishly discarded my crutches, and received a severe fall for my pains. This so retarded my repovery that I became disheartened, and ave up taking Pink Pills, so great was my discouragement. I shortly after this mishap and set back, began again to take Pink Pills steadily and perseveringly, and in a short time could walk without crutches, and in January, 1896, was able to discontinue the medicine altogether, being entirely cured. Since then I have cleared a piece of brush land, and planted and attended this year's crop. I took in all seventeen boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills before I was entirely cured."

Mr. Conn's address is Pleasantville, Marion Co., Iowa, where he is as well known as in Knoxville, his former home.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

The Blue and the Gray.

Both men and women are apt to feel a little blue, when the gray hairs begin to show. It's a very natural feeling. In the normal condition of things gray hairs belong to advanced age. They have no business whitening the head of man or woman, who has not begun to go down the slope of life. As a matter of fact, the hair turns gray regardless of age, or of life's seasons; sometimes it is whitened by sickness, but more often from lack of care. When the hair fades or turns gray there's no need to resort to hair dyes. The normal color of the hair is restored and retained by the use of

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Stack or Thrash from Shock.

THIS is one of the problems that comes up regularly at this time of year, says Wallace's Farmer. It may be stated thus: Where farmers wish to sell their wheat or oats in the near future, is it cheapest and best to thrash from the stack or the shock? There is a good deal to be said on both sides, and, after all, the question is one that must be determined by circumstances. If the grain can be cut in good time, well shocked, the weather settled, and the machine and help available when wanted, we believe it is best to thrash direct from the shock. This, however, occurs only once in a while. The weather east of the Missouri cannot be depended upon, neither can thrashing machines nor help at this season of the year. Even when help can be obtained it is higher priced than later. The farmers by stacking their grain and letting it go through the sweat can change work and get through with very little outside labor. The probability is that the wheat will be put in the market in better condition and bring as good or better price. Forty years ago the man who was near the mill had an early variety of grain, and thrashed from the shock in nine cases out of ten got a better market than if he stacked and thrashed later. The price of wheat now is not determined by the local mill, but by the general market, and this again is determined not by the supply in the county or state, or even the United States, but by the markets of the world. Before any Iowa farmer can thrash his grain now, grain will be pouring in from Texas, Kentucky, Kansas and Missouri; in fact it is beginning to come into market already. Our conclusion, therefore, is that except in exceptional circumstances it is best to stack and begin thrashing as soon as the grain is in the right condition.

Asparagus.

Bulletin 10, Idaho Experiment Station:

Descriptive.—This popular and valuable vegetable needs but very little description. It is a native of Europe, where it may be found growing wild along the borders of sea marshes. Certain species are grown as ornamental plants. The undeveloped stem is the part used as food.

Culture.—Propagated by means of seed. The seed may be bought of seed dealers or taken from the small red berries found in autumn upon the mature stems of old plants. If the latter method is adopted proceed in the following manner: Select the largest and nicest branches; pick off the berries and gently mash; wash out the pulp with water and dry the seed. Sow the seed in early spring in rows wide enough to permit cultivation. Plants should stand about 3 to 5 inches apart. Select a rather rich soil for the seed bed. The young plants may be transplanted in the permanent bed the following spring, or the transplanting may be deferred until the second spring. Too much care can not be given to the preparation of the permanent bed. Select an open situation where plenty of sunshine falls. Naturally, the plant prefers a damp situation, but can be made to thrive very well on dry soil, if proper cultivation is given. The soil should be rich. Subsoil or trench the bed, adding large quantities of manure (well rotted cow dung is preferred). If the plantation is large the rows should be at least 2 feet apart. Put the plants 12 inches apart. The roots of the plant must be spread out equally in all directions. This is best attained by constructing a small mound of earth in the center of the hole, place the plant upon the top of the mound and let the roots extend down the sides. Cover with earth and firm with the foot. The crown of the plant should be two inches under ground. During the growing season cultivate and keep down all weeds. At end of season cut off the tops and cover the bed with coarse manure. Remove the litter in early spring. Cut the young shoots at the surface of the ground using a strong bladed knife.

Selling Range Cattle.

Live Stock Report, of Chicago, says: Despite the fact that we are into the middle of August and have reached the time when range cattle are ordinarily hard and fat enough for the eastern shipper and exporter as well as the dressed beef man, this year's arrivals thus far have been greatly disappointing in the matter of flesh and condition, and even the local slaughterers are not trying to buy them with any alacrity. They are remarkably soft and consequently shrink heavily en route, some shippers saying in fact that they hardly recognize their cattle as the same bunch they loaded. Of course as the season advances this condition of affairs will improve, but so general is the complaint of poor flesh and condition all over the range country it now looks as though receipts at market would be unprecedentedly small until the 10th or 15th of September. Where in ordinary years killers would take a whole trainload of one brand, this year they hardly want to buy more than three or four cars, so fearful are they of the way the stock is going to kill out. Such cattle as have been good enough to bring say $3.85 or better have sold fairly readily, but those which will be noted as selling under that figure have sold slowly, the very excellent condition of southern grass cattle this year largely accounting for this. Killers can get these latter at $3.40 to $3.65, and being smaller boned than the westerns, they kill out more satisfactorily, and thus can be handled more profitably than rangers costing the same figure. The killers are acting toward range cattle much the same as the lover of watermelon does toward that fruit when it first appears on the market—wants to see the inside of it before he purchases. Since in the meantime the condition of range cattle unfits them for eastern or export buyers and there is thus practically no competition for them on this market we advise shippers who are tributary to the South Omaha or Denver market to go there with their cattle. At those points both fat and feeder stock is in demand. Omaha is particularly well situated at present for handling these northwestern rangers, as she is a great distributing point for feeders and is increasing her beef slaughtering as well. Another and important point in her favor is the recently established joint rate covering stock cattle over the N. P. and C., M. & St. P. roads. We, of course, have no desire to say anything against one market to benefit another, but we think it only just to the shipper to advise him of our opinion as regards the most advantageous point for the disposal of his stock cattle.

Trellising Tomatoes.

When we grow tomatoes for market at ordinary prices we must economize in cost of production in every way possible, and trellising the plants would be out of the question, but when it comes to the home garden I regularly every season trellis at least a few plants, as they can be made a great ornamental feature of the grounds, writes T. Grenier in exchange. A tomato plant ladened with its glossy, high-colored fruit is a pretty object anyway, and a row of them, well held up, trimmed and tied, is really "a sight." One of the easiest ways of supporting a tomato plant for such effect (and this is my favorite way) is to simply stake it, and keep it trimmed to a single stalk. The stake may consist of a plain bean-pole, seven or eight feet high, or of a sawed stick, say two inches square and eight feet long. Be sure to set these stakes in a straight line, and all uniformly perpendicular, or, perhaps, slightly leaning. Then trim the plants to one or two stalks, uniformly. Keep all branches nipped off. Tie the stalks and especially the fruit clusters, with soft string, as for instance, strips of muslin, calico, or the like, and see what an ornament this "tomato patch" will be to your garden.

Brussels Sprouts.

A member of the cabbage tribe. Characteristics are a long central stem surmounted by an open head of leaves, and numerous small heads (½ inch, or larger in diameter) arranged, around the stem in the axils of the leaves. These small heads are termed "sprouts." The vegetable originated in Belgium and has been cultivated extensively around Brussels since the thirteenth century. Requires the same treatment as cabbage. Soil must be rich. Requires considerable moisture. The small sprouts must grow rapidly or they will be tough. Sow seed in hot bed and trasplant, or scatter seed in hills and thin. Plants must have plenty of room. Rows should be thirty inches apart and the plants not closer than two feet. Ordinary culture will suffice. Some authorities advise that the sprouts should be frosted before using. Our experience is that it causes a bitter taste. Sprouts half-inch in diameter are said to be much more palatable than the large ones. The top leaves are sometimes used as greens. The aphis gives considerable trouble. The best treatment is a thorough washing with soap suds.

Special Purpose Cow.—Where a general purpose cow now yields a profit it may be safely said that a special purpose one would do still better, if the breed best adapted to the existing circumstances was selected. It is not always a wise maxim to "let well enough alone." There is no such thing as "well enough."—Ex.

Watering Cows.—In the winter water the cows separately, and then you can know that each one drinks liberally. If it does not, then look after it, and ascertain the reason, for if it does not drink well the supply of milk will soon begin to fail.—Ex.

TRAINING THE YOUNG.

By N. S. Stowell.

Just now when the attention of the entire civilized world is turned upon England and the interesting events connected with the sixtieth anniversary of the coronation of Queen Victoria, it might be interesting to our people as well as to all others to study the methods adopted in the early training of this woman who has for so many years controlled the affairs of the most popular court in the world.

The little Victoria's education began with her existence. While it was by no means a certainty that she would come to the throne there was more than a possibility of such an event, and the wise and comprehensive course pursued in her bringing up was adopted in order to fit her for her great responsibilities in case they came to her.

The sons and daughters of the average American citizen have but a faint idea of the rigid discipline that the children of royal houses must undergo. There is scarcely a well-to-do child in this land who would not think itself most cruelly treated were it put through the course prescribed for and followed by the children of the German Emperor, and no doubt Victoria's education was conducted on equally strict lines.

Imagine a family of children trained from their infancy to such habits of promptness, studiousness, application and comprehensiveness. When ordinary girls are in their rudimentary classes, Victoria was almost complete mistress of several languages besides her own. She was thoroughly grounded in all of the elementary branches; for, of course, a princess and a possible queen must be letter perfect in ordinary matters of education. Her penmanship has excited the admiration of the world. As a musician it is said that she could have commanded a leading position on the operatic stage, had she been so situated that it would have been necessary or desirable. The intelligent and painstaking care of her instructors made it possible to use every moment of her existence for some wise purpose. She had recreations and pleasures, and enjoyed her early life quite as well as most children, and probably much more healthfully, as her entire time and conduct were regulated by those who knew what they were about, and, knowing, acted up to their lights.

There is no reason why any ordinarily intelligent child should not, at the age of twelve years, be as far advanced as most children are at fifteen or even eighteen years. The fault lies in the disposition of their time and the almost purposeless way in which their education is conducted.

The majority of children go to the public schools and learn all from similar books and in similar ways. The quick-witted, bright children catch ideas and make what seems like great advances. The dull ones often struggle along, only half comprehending the lessons, and never really grasping half a dozen facts about the thing they are studying. They grope through their entire educational career precisely in this way. It is safe to assert that nine-tenths of the children learn their lessons by rote and recite them without any clearly defined understanding of what their subject matter is or the facts the lessons are intended to convey.

It is not, therefore, to be wondered at if learning is merely smattering, and, if some day, there is a fierce rebellion in the mind of the grown-up, because so much time was wasted that might have been filled with profit and gain, mental, moral and physical. The argument that children can be overtaxed by this means is no argument at all, as it is well understood that the children of royal families are rarely ill, and the proportion of deaths in early life is astonishingly small. School children who feed on unwholesome food and are exposed to unsanitary influences cannot stand the high pressure of cramming processes to which they are sometimes subjected, but this really means nothing in the general summing up of the case.

Interesting study is no more taxing to the mind, if properly conducted, than are toys and games and other play occupations, and certainly it is far less of a strain on the vital forces than the exciting sights and scenes that so many little ones are treated to. As a matter of fact, at least one-half of the waking hours of the average child are wasted as far as any growth of the mind and intelligence is concerned, and it is in order for some one to suggest the best way in which this lost time can be turned to account, and the rising generation benefited by acquiring a store of information upon subjects on which at present they have but the vaguest and most shadowy ideas.

THE HEAT PLAGUE OF AUGUST, 1896.

Mrs. Pinkham's Explanation of the Unusual Number of Deaths and Prostrations Among Women.

The great heat plague of August, 1896, was not without its lesson. One could not fail to notice in the long lists of the dead throughout this country, that so many of the victims were women in their thirties, and women between forty-five and fifty.

The women who succumbed to the protracted heat were women whose energies were exhausted by sufferings peculiar to their sex; women who, taking no thought of themselves, or who, attaching no importance to first symptoms, allowed their female system to become run down.

Constipation, capricious appetite, restlessness, forebodings of evil, vertigo, languor, and weakness, especially in the morning, an itching sensation which suddenly attacks one at night, or whenever the blood becomes overheated, are all warnings. Don't wait too long to build up your strength, that is now a positive necessity! Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has specific curative powers. You cannot do better than to commence a course of this grand medicine. By the neglect of first symptoms you will see by the following letter what terrible suffering came to Mrs. Craig, and how she was cured:

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and think it is the best medicine for women in the world. I was so weak and nervous that I thought I could not live from one day to the next. I had prolapsus uteri and leucorrhœa and thought I was going into consumption. I would get so faint I thought I would die. I had dragging pains in my back, burning sensation down to my feet, and so many miserable feelings. People said that I looked like a dead woman. Doctors tried to cure me, but failed. I had given up when I heard of the Pinkham medicine. I got a bottle. I did not have much faith in it, but thought I would try it, and it made a new woman of me. I wish I could get every lady in the land to try it, for it did for me what doctors could not do."—MRS. SALLIE CRAIG, Baker's Landing, Pa.

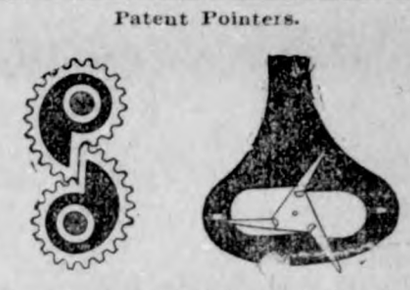
Patent Pointers.



In a recent expired patent is shown a clever mechanism, by means of which a shaft was checked or stopped three times during one revolution by means of a swinging pendulum, provided with end shoulders, as is shown. The shaft was provided with three arms, which worked within the pendulum, and alternately engaged the shoulders. The second illustration shows two gears, which are alternately rotated in opposite directions by the continuously rotating mutilated central pinion. Where a thing is marked "Patented" as of a date not of its patent, but of the date of an earlier patent to the same patentee, upon which it is an improvement, the U. S. circuit court recently held that the inventor had not complied with the law and so could not collect damages for infringement.

It is time to head off some of these head-on collisions.

It has finally been settled that Jay Gould had but one wife. Jay's mind ran in other channels.

People may, after all, have some choice between falling into a vat or into the hands of a Chicago coroner and the undertakers.

Mr. Croker having pulled himself down and out, Tammany may be said to have foozled its first drive for the mayorality bunker in the New York threesome.

There are now at sea, bound from Baltimore to European ports, forty-eight vessels laden with full or part cargoes of grain, each one carrying 50,000 to 100,000 bushels. This is said to be the largest number of vessels ever bound from an American port at one time.

Rainmakers in this country have been apparently inactive this season, but a drouth would have revived interest in their plans and theories. In Europe their experiments have attracted more attention. Germany offers a reward of $2,500 to anyone who can produce a downpour of rain at moderate expense. It is suggested that inventors in this line should discover how to stop excessive rains, with resulting floods.

Japan has dug up and resuscitated an old law which declares the departure from the country of any citizen without permission of the government a criminal offense and punishable by heavy penalties. This is lovely, old, autocratic tyranny a la Russe, and is a nice indication of the degree of public liberty striven for by this little toadstool nation which has heard somewhere the pretty fiction that if a baby fungus grows with all its might it can pry up a paving stone.

Lynching is murder, neither more or less, and the State of Texas has set other states, both north and south, a good example by making it so upon the statute books. The same law also provides that lynchers when put on trial shall be tried out of the county where the crime was committed, and that sheriffs who fail to protect prisoners from lynching parties shall be removed from office. The southern states are taking the lead in giving practical effect to the disapprobation which all law-abiding citizens feel for lynch law.

A good old mother received a dreadful shock the other day through a telegram from her boy, who is in New York city enjoying himself. As enjoying one's self sometimes costs money it is not strange that the young man sent the following somewhat slangy dispatch for more funds to his father, "Had my leg pulled. Broke. Send me $50 by wire." When the mother read this appeal she was plunged in grief. "My poor boy!" she moaned. "He must have been in one of those cable car things. Send him $100, father, and tell him to get the best doctor in the city."

A stranger visited police headquarters at Nantasket Beach the other evening and asked Chief Mitchell what it would cost to commit an assault. The chief told him it would be about $5 or $10. The man left the office and Chief Mitchell detailed two policemen to follow and watch him. The man went to the Auditorum, and as Conductor C. H. Thompson of the Miles Standish Band left the band stand the stranger struck him a fierce blow in the face. The policemen arrested the man and locked him up. At the station he said he was Dr. Edward M. Bates of Cincinnati, and said he came all the way from Cincinnati to chastise Thompson for insulting a friend of his, a woman singer, who sang here last summer. He paid a $10 fine.

No punishment that can be inflicted by civilized society upon such creatures as the slayer of Canovas will bear out the principle, "An eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth." The life of the assassin does not compensate for the life of the man slain. The question of adequate punishment is a puzzling one, but clearly that there is one punishment that would have a deterrent effect if the assassin could be made sure that he would have no chance of enjoying the world-wide notoriety that seems to be so dear to persons of his class during the brief period between the commission of the crime and its expiation. The incentive would be less. There would be fewer assassinations of men in high places if the punishment permitted were certain. Any person, name not mentioned, who has been caught, tried and sentenced to death, and that the sentence be duly executed.

Three thousand bushels of wheat were burned up. The fire originated in the cellar. The mill and wheat are fully covered by insurance.

Editor Sues for Slander.

WAUKON, Sept. 17.—Editors usually occupy the position of defendant in slander cases. All general rules, however, have their exception. Editor May, of the Waukon Standard, has brought an action against Rev. Ferguson, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at Waukon, in which he asks damages against the pastor for slanderous words, which he alleges were spoken of and concerning him by the said pastor, to the said editor's damage in the sum of $5,000.

Thorpe Depot Robbed.

MANCHESTER, Sept. 17.—The depot at Thorpe station, on the Chicago Great Western railway, was robbed of a package of money containing about $150. SIOUX CITY, Sept. 17.—The famous Rinehart case has been settled out of court. Henry Rinehart died a year ago, leaving an estate of several hundred thousand dollars. Hamilton is Cleared.

OTTUMWA, Sept. 17.—Jesse K. Hamilton, formerly bar tender at Chicago, was acquitted of complicity in the robbery of Bradley's bank, at Eldon, last January. Hamilton was not accused of active participation in the crime, but charged with receiving and delivering telegrams among the principals.

Excitement at Osage.

OSAGE, Sept. 17.—S. R. Pelton, ex-deputy treasurer of Mitchell county, was arrested on a charge of tampering with the records of tax apportionments during the month of March, 1896. The charges were preferred by J. B. Sheeban, the present treasurer, under whom Pelton was deputy for about five years.

STEELE SHOT IN SELF-DEFENSE

Defendant in Albia Murder Case Tells His Story.

ALBIA, Sept. 17.—The defendant in the Steele murder case, John G. Steele, testified in his own behalf. He is 55 years of age. He told a straight story and was not at all disconcerted by the prosecuting attorneys. He said Jacob Werner was digging a ditch by the railroad track that would drain water onto his (Steele's) land. He said: "I asked him not to do so until the question was settled by the trustees. He swore at me and said he would blow my brains out. He then grabbed his gun and threw it up to his shoulder and fired at me. I then shot him. He died in a few minutes."

CONTINUANCE FOR DICKERSON

Atlantic Man Escapes Trial in September Term.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Sept. 20.—Judge Macy sustained the motion for a continuance in the Dickerson case, and it was taken out of assignment and carried over to the next term. In support of the motion, affidavits were offered showing Dickerson's daughter is lying at the point of death. Other affidavits showed that the health of the defendant is very frail, and that the strain of a trial at this time would put his life in jeopardy. Dickerson is now at his farm in Missouri.

A $45,000 FIRE AT CRESTON.

Several Firms Burned Out With Heavy Loss.

CRESTON, Sept. 20.—Fire in the business district destroyed $45,000 worth of property and for more than an hour threatened the entire business section. The fire originated in the basement of R. N. Jones' dry goods store. Three brick blocks were completely gutted and the merchandise destroyed. The second stories were occupied by offices. The total loss will approximate $45,000, with nearly that amount of insurance.

Fire at Fort Madison.

FORT MADISON, Sept. 17.—Fire was discovered raging in the building of the Ideal Farm Implement Company. There were in the building 90 corn cutters and shockers, all complete and ready to set up, and 75 Kaffir corn cutters, also complete, all of which were sold. This finished product had a value of from $12,000 to $14,000, and would have all been shipped out, most of it to Kansas points, within a year.

Declines to Accept a Salary.

DES MOINES, Sept. 18.—The Hon. D. N. Richardson, of Davenport, secretary of the Iowa Soldiers' and Sailors' Monument commission, has presented the state of Iowa with $4.275, which represents his salary for fifty-seven months' service on the commission as secretary at $75 per month.

Murderous Assault by Tramps.

GIFFORD, Sept. 18.—Tramps attempted to enter the depot of the Iowa Central here, it is supposed for the purpose of burglary. Night Operator Moscrip, who was in the building, was shot and seriously wounded.

IOWA CONDENSED.

M. V. Kennedy, of Des Moines, has been awarded the contract for building the new sewer system.

Gen. Hiram Duryea has let contracts for the doubling of the capacity of the Sioux City starch works, of which he is the principal stockholder. In addition to this the company will at once erect a large warehouse and barns for the feeding of a large number of cattle. This means that Sioux City will be a center of the starch industry in the West, and involve the outlay of a great deal of money and will give employment to a large force of men.

Le Mars dispatch: Nick Hoffman, proprietor of the Dubuque house at Le Mars, was stabbed three times with a large pocket knife by Bert Woodell, of Struble. The affray occurred in Huffman's bar room. Hoffman's son got a long gash in his throat while trying to interfere. The old man's condition is dangerous. He had a big gash in the arm, a cut four inches deep in the shoulder and a cut in the side glancing along the rib above the heart. Woodell is in custody. He claims he fought in self-defense. Woodell's face is badly pounded.

While pouring molten iron at the Pioneer Stove Works at Leeds, a Sioux City suburb, a few days ago, five men were frightfully burned. In handling the 1,500-pound ladle, John Michaelson and William Kreig were slightly spattered. Stung by the pain, one of them dropped the handles and the contents of the ladle spilled over the floor. Everyone in the vicinity was more or less burned. The building blazed up, but the fire was quickly extinguished. Those most seriously injured were: Henry Anderson, spectator; William Kreig, workman; John Michaelson, workman; Charles Neussle, proprietor; John Neussle, proprietor. There have been no deaths yet, but some of the victims are critically ill.

ALL OVER THE WORLD

YELLOW FEVER SCARE.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 14.—Seven cases of actual yellow fever have developed in New Orleans. The declaration is made over the signatures of medical experts who investigated the cases for the board of health. Dr. Lehman went to Ocean Springs and reports that he found no actual fever cases there. Conditions are so alarming at Biloxi that the city council has asked the state to assume charge of health matters.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14.—The official dispatches to the surgeon general make the yellow fever in the South more serious of aspect. Dr. Guiteas, the government expert, reports a case of yellow fever in the city hospital at Mobile, Ala., also a suspect case, and adds that he apprehends a serious outbreak. At the same time Surgeon Carter telegraphs from Ocean Springs that four cases of yellow fever exists at Berkley, that there has been eight cases known to be yellow fever, and that two exposed physicians are at Van Cleve and Scranton, practically under guard.

MADRID, Sept. 15.—The official Gazette announces that all vessels arriving in Spain from ports between New Orleans and Ocean Springs, La., will be subject to quarantine.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17.—No new cases of yellow fever are reported and nothing alarming from the patients. The indications are that there will be no immediate deaths here. No doubt is in the minds of the physicians that the eighteen cases reported are of genuine yellow fever.

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 17.—No more people are leaving the city, for two reasons: There are very few left here, and none of them can get out on account of quarantine. Business is dead.

Mayor Redfield, of Edwards, telegraphed the Associated Press: "Eight cases of yellow fever in this town and three in the country. No deaths. All doing well."

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 17.—The board of health reports one new case of yellow fever, making six in all. No deaths.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 18.—The fever situation in New Orleans has assumed a more serious aspect than at any time since Sunday, when six of the St. Claude cases were declared yellow fever. The board of health has officially announced the appearance of eight new cases, and one death, that of Zena Brauner. At the office of the board of health the reports were considered somewhat surprising and disappointing.

The report of the board of health at Biloxi says that there are nineteen cases of actual yellow fever under treatment with diagnosis reserved as to twelve cases. There were seven new cases reported in twenty-four hours.

JACKSON, Miss., Sept. 20.—In addition to tearing up the Alabama & Vicksburg railroad tracks west of the city, the crowd also burned a trestle on the same road. The cause of the trouble was the disregard of officials to the orders of the authorities not to stop trains here, but to run through the city at a twenty mile rate. Indignation is at fever heat, and the people declare that if it is necessary to compel the observance of their quarantine regulations they will burn every bridge between here and Vicksburg.

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 20.—A large number of new cases are reported. An effort of the citizens to move into the country has been stopped by the guards.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 20.—The total number of cases here is thirty-five and the death rate has not reached 10 per cent, showing the mildness of the fever. Twenty new cases are reported from Edwards, Miss.

ENGLAND AND SILVER.

Willing to Hold One-fifth in Reserve if Price is Suitable.

LONDON, Sept. 18.—At the semi-annual meeting of the Bank of England Governor George Sandeman said: "You are probably aware of the proposals laid before the government in the summer by the United States and France, whereby this country might increase its use of silver as a contribution to an international agreement which, while not affecting our gold standard, might enable France and America to resume free coinage. Among the proposals is one asking the bank to hold the amount of silver permissible under the act of 1844 against the notes." The governor then read a letter, dated July 29, addressed to the chancellor of the exchequer, as follows: "Referring to our conversation, we beg to say the bank is prepared to carry out what is laid down as permissible in the bank charter, viz.: Hold one-fifth of the bullion held against its note issue in silver, provided always the French mint is again open to free coinage of silver and the price at which silver is procurable and saleable is satisfactory."

FIVE LYNCHED IN INDIANA.

Men Suspected of Ordinary Theft Strung Up.

VERSAILLES, Ind., Sept. 17.—A mob of forty men lynched Lyle Levi, Bert Andrews, Clifford Gordon, William Jenkins and Henry Shuler. They had been arrested for burglary and were taken from the authorities. Frequent robberies had enraged the citizens of the county and the mob was composed of citizens from Milan, Sunman and other towns.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 18.—An Osgood, Ind., special to the Times-Star says: There will be an awful reckoning for the slaughterers of the five men in the Versailles jail. All the victims have many relatives, who are determined that somebody must suffer for the lynching.

Wellington Retires.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 16.—United States Senator George L. Wellington has resigned the chairmanship of the republican state central committee. In resigning, Senator Wellington delivered a very bitter speech, in which he predicted defeat for the republican party in Maryland.

Famine Stalks in Havana.

HAVANA, Sept. 18.—During the last few days the inhabitants of the city of Havana have been without meat. Milk is also very scarce. Only the sick in the hospitals are supplied regularly with either article.

The Graeco-Turkish Treaty.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 20.—A treaty of peace between Turkey and Greece has been signed.

BREVITIES.

The steamer Bella is returning from the Klondike with half a million of gold.

John L. Sullivan recently announced that he would run for mayor of Boston. Sullivan said his political platform would be to license gambling places and disorderly houses.

Another expedition recently landed near Havana. It is one that Minister de Lome led the revenue officials to expect would start from Bridgeport, Conn. The expedition sailed from the Jersey coast without trouble. As a result, 3,000 more rifles and 800,000 more cartridges are now in the hands of the insurgents."

The sultan has ordered a commission composed of two Mussulmans, three Armenians and one Greek, to visit the Armenian villayets, which have been the chief sufferers from the massacres, and raise funds to rebuild the Armenian schools, churches and monasteries, and build orphanges. The commission will start immediately.

It is said the Argentine Republic has taken steps to retaliate on the United States for supposed discrimination in the new tariff. The state department has received a cable from Minister Buchanan, at Buenos Ayres, to the effect that the Argentina tariff for next year has been sent to the Argentina congress. It recommends increased duty of 66 per cent on plows, harrows and other agricultural machinery and kerosene, and allows the president to apply at will an additional 50 per cent duty.

A tornado from the gulf a few nights since induced a tidal wave which did some damage to the towns of Sabine City and Port Arthur. Eight persons were killed, two at Sabin and six at Port Arthur. The damage at Sabine is inconsiderable, except to shipping. Two tugs owned by Moore and Betts were sunk, drowning both Moore and Betts. Damage to buildings in both the old and new towns of Sabine City was slight. At Port Arthur fully two-thirds of the buildings, temporary structures, were blown down. Six persons were killed at Port Arthur, from a falling house to which they had gone for safety, and fifteen wounded.

Details of the capture of Victoria de Las Tunas by Cuban insurgents show that the town was first attacked on August 14. On the night of the 27th a heavy fire of musketry was maintained by the enemy and the next day their artillery opened fire, destroying a great part of the town. The insurgents took possession of the ruins of the town on the 30th, when the military commander, three officers, and 75 soldiers surrendered. The remainder of the troops of the garrison had previously lain down their arms. All the Spanish guns were made useless to the insurgents before the surrender. The insurgents admit a loss of over a hundred killed.

Sarah Bernhardt had a narrow escape from death at Belleisle-en-Mer, department of Morbihan, France, while endeavoring to reach the seashore via the cliffs. After descending a short distance Mme. Bernhardt was unable to advance or retreat. Her shrieks for help attracted the attention of a bather, who climbed up to her side and siezed her just as the bowlder to which she was clinging broke away and thus she was saved from being crushed to death. The actress and her rescuer lost her footing and rolled down the cliffs to the sea, where they were rescued by a passing boat. Mme. Bernhardt was only slightly bruised, but her rescuer was seriously injured.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"LIKE THE STARS," LAST SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

From the Text, Daniel xii. 3: "They That Turn Many to Righteousness Shall Shine as the Stars Forever and Ever."

EVERY man has a thousand roots and a thousand branches. His roots reach down through all the earth; his branches spread through all the heavens. He speaks with voice, with eye, with hand, with foot. His silence often is loud as thunder, and his life is a dirge or a doxology. There is no such thing as negative influence. We are all positive in the place we occupy, making the world better or making it worse, on the Lord's side or on the devil's, making up reasons for our blessedness or banishment; and we have already done work in peopling heaven or hell. I hear people tell of what they are going to do. A man who has burned down a city might as well talk of some evil that he expects to do, or a man who has saved an empire might as well talk of some good that he expects to do. By the force of your evil influence you have already consumed infinite values; or you have by the power of a right influence, won whole kingdoms for God.

It would be absurd for me, by elaborate argument, to prove that the world is off the track. You might as well stand at the foot of an embankment, amid the wreck of a capsized rail-train, proving by elaborate argument that something is out of order. Adam tumbled over the embankment sixty centuries ago, and the whole race, in one long train, has gone on tumbling in the same direction. Crash! crash! The only question now is, by what leverage can the crushed thing be lifted? By what hammer may the fragments be reconstructed? I want to show you how we may turn many to righteousness, and what will be our future pay for so doing.

First. We may turn them by the charm of a right example. A child coming from a filthy home was taught at school to wash its face. It went home so much improved in appearance that its mother washed her face. And when the father of the household came home and saw the improvement in domestic appearance, he washed his face. The neighbors, happening in, saw the change, and tried the same experiment, until all that street was purified, and the next street copied its example, and the whole city felt the result of one schoolboy washing his face. That is a fable, by which we set forth that the best way to get the world washed of its sins and pollution is to have our own heart and life cleansed and purified. A man with grace in his heart and Christian cheerfulness in his face and holy consistency in his behavior is a perpetual sermon; and the sermon differs from others in that it has but one head, and the longer it runs the better.

Again: We may turn many to righteousness by prayer. There is no such detective as prayer, for no one can hide away from it. It puts its hand on the shoulder of a man ten thousand miles off. It alights on a ship mid-Atlantic. The little child cannot understand the law of electricity, or how the telegraph operator, by touching the instrument here, may dart a message under the sea to another continent; nor can we, with our small intellect, understand how the touch of a Christian's prayer shall instantly strike a soul on the other side of the earth. You take ship and go to some other country, and get there at eleven o'clock in the morning. You telegraph to America and the message gets here at six o'clock the same morning. In other words it seems to arrive here five hours before it started. Like that is prayer. God says: "Before they call, I will hear." To overtake a loved one on the road, you may spur up a lathered steed until he shall outrace the one that brought the news to Ghent; but a prayer shall catch it at one gallop. A boy running away from home may take the midnight train from the country village and reach the seaport in time to gain the ship that sails on the morrow; but a mother's prayer will be on the deck to meet him, and in the hammock before he swings into it, and at the capstan before he winds the rope around, and on the sea, against the sky, as the vessel ploughs on toward it. There is a mightiness in prayer. George Muller prayed a company of poor boys together, and then he prayed up an asylum in which they might be sheltered. He turned his face toward Edinburgh and prayed and there came a thousand pounds. He turned his face toward Dublin and prayed, and there came a thousand pounds. The breath of Elijah's prayer blew all the clouds off the sky, and it was dry weather. The breath of Elijah's prayer blew all the clouds together, and it was wet weather. Prayer, in Daniel's time, walked the cave as a lion-tamer. It reached up, and took the sun by its golden bit, and stopped it, and the moon by its silver bit, and stopped it.

We have all yet to try the full power of prayer. The time will come when the American Church will pray with its face toward the West and all the prairies and inland cities will surrender to God; and will pray with face toward the sea, and all the islands and ships will become Christian. Parents who have wayward sons will get down on their knees and say: "Lord, send my boy home," and the boy in Canton shall get right up from the gaming-table, and go down to find out which ship starts first for America.

Not one of us yet knows how to pray. All we have done as yet has only been pottering. A boy gets hold of his father's saw and hammer, and tries to make something, but it is a poor affair that he makes. The father comes and takes the same saw and hammer, and builds the house or the ship. In the childhood of our Christian faith, we make but poor work with these weapons of prayer, but when we come to the stature of men in Christ Jesus, then, under these implements, the temple of God will rise, and the world's redemption will be launched. God cares not for the length of our prayers; or the number of our prayers, or the beauty of our prayers, or the place of our prayers; but it is the faith in them that tells. Believing prayer soars higher than the lark ever sang; plunges deeper than diving-bell ever sank; darts quicker than lightning ever flashed. Though we have used only the back of this weapon instead of the edge, what marvels have been wrought! If saved, we are all the captives of some earnest prayer. Would God that, in desire for the rescue of souls, we might in prayer lay hold of the resources of the Lord Omnipotent!

We may turn many to righteousness by Christian admonition. Do not wait until you can make a formal speech. Address the one next to you. You will not go home alone to-day. Between this and your place of stopping you may decide the eternal destiny of an immortal spirit. Just one sentence may do the work. Just one question. Just one look. The formal talk that begins with a sigh, and ends with a canting snuffle, is not what is wanted, but the heart throb of a man in dead earnest. There is not a soul on earth that you may not bring to God if you rightly go at it. They said Gibraltar could not be taken. It is a rock, sixteen hundred feet high, and three miles long. But the English and Dutch did take it. Artillery, and sappers and miners, and fleets pouring out volleys of death, and thousands of men reckless of danger, can do anything. The stoutest heart of sin, though it be rock, and surrounded by an ocean of transgression, under Christian bombardment may hoist the flag of redemption.

Again: Christian workers shall be like the stars in the fact that they have a light independent of each other. Look up at the night, and see each world show its distinct glory. It is not like the conflagration, in which you cannot tell where one flame stops and another begins. Neptune, Herschel, and Mercury are as distinct as if each one of them were the only star; so our individualism will not be lost in heaven. A great multitude—yet each one as observable, as distinctly recognized, as greatly celebrated, as if in all the space, from gate to gate, and from hill to hill, he were the only inhabitant; no mixing up—no mob—no indiscriminate rush; each Christian worker standing out illustrious—all the story of earthly achievement adhering to each one; his self-denials and pains and services and victories published. Before men went out to the last war, the orators told them that they would all be remembered by their country, and their names be commemorated in poetry and in song; but go to the graveyard in Richmond, and you will find there six thousand graves, over each of which is the inscription, "Unknown." The world does not remember its heroes; but there will be no unrecognized Christian worker in heaven. Each one known by all; grandly known; known by acclamation: all the past story of work for God gleaming in cheek and brow and foot and palm. They shall shine with distinct light as the stars, forever and ever.

Again: Christian workers shall shine like the stars in clusters. In looking up, you find the worlds in family circles. Brothers and sisters—they take hold of each other's hands and dance in groups. Orion in a group. The Pleiades in a group. The solar system is only a company of children, with bright faces, gathered around one great fireplace. The worlds do not straggle off. They go in squadrons and fleets, sailing through immensity. So Christian workers in heaven will dwell in neighborhoods and clusters.

I am sure some people I will like in heaven a great deal better than others. Yonder is a constellation of stately Christians. They lived on earth by rigid rule. They never laughed. They walked every hour anxious lest they should lose their dignity. They loved God, and yonder they shine in brilliant constellation. Yet I should not long to get into that particular group. Yonder is a constellation of small-hearted Christians—asteroids in the eternal astronomy. While some souls go up from Christian battle, and blaze like Mars these asteroids dart a feeble ray like Vesta. Yonder is a constellation of martyrs, of apostles, of patriarchs. Our souls, as they go up to heaven, will seek out the most congenial society.

Yonder is a constellation almost merry with the play of light. On earth they were full of sympathies and songs and tears and raptures and congratulations. When they prayed their words took fire; when they sang, the tune could not hold them; when they wept over a world's woes, they sobbed as if heart-broken; when they worked for Christ, they flamed with enthusiasm. Yonder they are—circle of light! constellation of joy! galaxy of fire! Oh, that you and I, by that grace which can transform the worst into the best, might at last sail in the wake of that fleet, and wheel in that glorious group, as the stars for ever and ever!

Again: Christian workers will shine like the stars in swiftness of motion. The worlds do not stop to shine. There are no fixed stars save as to relative position. The star apparently most fixed flies thousands of miles a minute. The astronomer, using his telescope for an alpenstock, leaps from world-crag to world-crag, and finds no star standing still. The chamois hunter has to fly to catch his prey, but not so swift is his game as that which the scientist tries to shoot through the tower of observatory. Liks petrels mid-Atlantic, that seem to come from no shore, and be bound to no landing place—flying, flying—so these great flocks of worlds rest not as they go—wing and wing—age after age—for ever and ever. The eagle hastes to its prey, but we shall in speed beat the eagles. You have noticed the velocity of the swift horse under whose feet the miles slip like a smooth ribbon, and, as he passes, the four hoofs strike the earth in such quick beat, your pulses take the same vibration. But all these things are not swift in comparison with the motion of which I speak. The moon moves 54,000 miles in a day. Yonder, Neptune flashes on 11,000 miles in an hour. Yonder, Mercury goes 109,000 miles in an hour. So like the stars the Christian shall shine in swiftness of motion.

You hear now of father or mother or child sick 1,000 miles away, and it takes you two days to get to them. You hear of some case of suffering that demands your immediate attention, but it takes you an hour to get there. Oh, the joy when you shall, in fulfilment of the text, take starry speed, and be equal to 100,000 miles an hour! Having on earth got used to Christian work, you will not quit when death strikes you. You will only take on more velocity. There is a dying child in London and its spirit must be taken up to God; you are there in an instant to do it. There is a young man in New York to be arrested from going into that gate of sin; you are there in an instant to arrest him. Whether with spring of foot, or stroke of wing, or by the force of some new law that shall hurl you to the spot where you would go, I know not; but my text suggests velocity. All space open before you with nothing to hinder you in mission of light and love and joy, you shall shine in swiftness of motion as the stars for ever and ever.

Again: Christian workers, like the stars, shine in magnitude. The most illiterate man knows that these things in the sky, looking like gilt buttons, are great masses of matter. To weigh them, one would think that it would require scales with a pillar hundreds of thousands of miles high, and chains hundreds of thousands of miles long, and at the bottom the chains basins on either side hundreds of thousands of miles wide, and that then omnipotence alone could put the mountains into the scales and the hills into the balance. But puny man has been equal to the undertaking, and has set a little balance on his geometry, and weighed world against world. Yea, he has pulled out his measuring line, and announced that Herschel is 36,000 miles in diameter, Saturn 79,000 miles in diameter, and Jupiter 89,000 miles in diameter, and that the smallest pearl on the beach of heaven is immense beyond all imagination. So all they who have toiled for Christ on earth shall rise up to a magnitude of privilege, and a nagnitude of strength, and a magnitude of holiness, and a magnitude of joy; and the weakest saint in glory become greater than all that we can imagine of an archangel.

Brethren, "It doth not yet appear what we shall be." Wisdom that shall know everything; wealth that shall possess everything; strength that shall do everything; glory that shall circumscribe evrything! We shall not be like a taper set in a sick man's window, or a bundle of sticks kindled on the beach to warm a shivering crew; but you must take the diameter and the circumference of the world if you would get any idea of the greatness of our estate when we shall shine as the stars for ever and ever.

The rich fool frowns on one half the world, and envies the other half.

THOUSANDS RETURN TO WORK.

Strike of Miners Ends in an Advance of Eleven Cents.

PITTSBURG, Sept. 17.—After nearly three months of idleness, between 15,000 and 18,000 coal miners in Pittsburg district returned to work in accordance with the action of their convention, authorizing the men to commence work in all mines complying with the provisions of the 65-cent scale adopted at Columbus. The remainder of the 23,000 miners of the district will be working before the close of the week. It is estimated that the strike, which lasted sixty-five days, cost the people of the Pittsburg district between $5,000,000 and $7,000,000. Of this amount the miners lost $2,350,000 in wages. The strike against the De Armitts will continue indefinitely, arrangements having been made to assess the miners 5 per cent of their wages to defray the the expenses of keeping up the fight. The miners gained an advance of 11 cents a ton by the strike.

BUTTER IN ENGLAND.

Wilson Receives Reports From Third Shipment.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson has received returns from the third shipment of butter to London. It came from creameries from Minnesota and Massachusetts. It cost 2½ cents per pound to send Minnesota butter through in refrigerator compartments and somewhat more to send Massachusetts butter, owing to the lack of refrigerator cars, and had to be expressed part of the way. London retailers paid the same freight as for the best Danish. It sold for 18½ to 20 cents per pound, and this yielded a profit of 2 cents a pound on Minnesota butter, but Massachusetts butter brought the same price at home.

SPANISH CRUELTY TO WOMEN.

Recent Intercessions by Them in the Cisneros Case.

HAVANA, Sept. 18.—The Spanish authorities do not hesitate to show their resentment of the interest displayed by the wives of Americans in the case of Evangeline Cessio Cesneros. They not only abruptly shut off all communication with friends, but they have thrown into the prison for lewd women in Santa Clara five women who dared to prepare a most courteous appeal to Weyler for the release of Evangeline. These women are Senora Rosa Plana, Senoritas Carmen and Nicolassa Gutierres, Senora Micaela Ruiz and Senorita Consuelo Avile. All these ladies belong to the best families of Santa Clara.

TRIED TO KILL DIAZ.

Attempt to Assassinate the President of Mexico.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 17.—An attempt to assassinate President Diaz was made yesterday. The assault on the president was committed by Ignacio Anulfoa, a violent character, and occurred during the military procession. The man was felled by a cane by a companion of the president, and was immediately taken into custody by the sheriff.

A Mob's Vengeance.

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—A special to the Evening Telegram from Mexico City says: Arroyo, who assaulted President Diaz, was lynched. A mob apparently unorganized, but directed in some mysterious way, forced the doors of the jail, overpowered the guards, and dragged out the trembling Arroyo. About twenty lynchers have been arrested. Crowds of people throng the streets cheering for Diaz and the republic.

Change 2-Cent Stamp to Green.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The secretary of the treasury and the postmaster general, after consultation with the president, have decided to change the color of the current 2-cent postage stamp from carmine to green of the shade now used on government notes. The 10-cent postage stamp, which is now printed in green, will be changed to some other color.

Andree's Baloon.

ST. PETERSBURG, Sept. 20.—A telegram from Krasnoyatsk, Siberia, says that on September 14 at 11 o'clock at night the inhabitants of the village of of Antzifirowskoje in the district of Yeniseisk, Artic Russia, saw a balloon believed to be that of Professor Andree. It was in sight five minutes.

Washington dispatch: The senate of the national legislature of the republic of Hawaii has by this time ratified the treaty annexing the Hawaiian islands to the United States. This assertion was made by Lorin M. Thurston, charge d'affairs to the United States. Mr. Thurston said the senate of the Hawaiian legislature had been called to assemble September 8, and as that body is unanimous for annexation he had no doubt it was ratified without a dissenting voice. Both the senate and the house of the Hawaiian legislature are pledged to annexation, according to Thurston, and he has no doubt that so far as Hawaii is concerned all steps possible have been taken to accomplish it

TURKEY HOLDS THESSALY.

Several Years Will Be Required to Repair the Damage Done.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17.—As a result of the Turkish occupation of Thessaly according to a dispatch to the state department from the United States consul, Horton, at Athens, there are now over 100,000 Thessalian refugees scattered through Greece, mostly in a condition of destitution. Several years will be required to repair the damage done and to re-establish life and industry on their former basis after peace has been declared. The Turkish army of occupation reaped and appropriated all the grain, which amounted to 264,400,002 pounds of wheat, 53,280,000 pounds of Indian corn, and 59,200,000 pounds of barley. All sheep and cattle not driven away by the fleeing inhabitants went to feed the Turks, a serious matter for Greece, as the principal meat supply has been heretofore derived from Thessaly.

IMPORTATION OF CHINAMEN.

Powerful Conspiracy to Violate the Law is Unearthed.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 19.—Six letters were introduced in evidence at the preliminary hearing of Yee Gee, the Chinese interpreter, employed by Collector Saunders at Port Townsend in the examinations of Chinese "merchants," all of which tended to show the existence of a big conspiracy for the unlawful entry of Chinese into this country. The ring is apparantly backed by unlimited money. The letters indicated that it included a Chinese firm in San Francisco, a firm at Hong Kong, which is apparently a banker of the combination, and two merchants in Victoria. Although the authorities have been working on the case but three weeks, but they seem to have enough evidence showing that nearly 1,000 Chinese have been fraudulently entered.

LEE RETURNS TO CUBA.

The Situation There Needs Someone Familiar With Conditions.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Consul General Lee, of Cuba, held a long conference with President McKinley and Gen. Alger. The situation was carefully reviewed, but the president did not give an outline of his policy. General Lee will return to Havana about the middle of October, as the president felt that the critical character of the situation makes it inadvisable to make a change at present.

MADRID, Sept. 20.—Captain General Weyler cables the government that he is perfectly confident of being abie to pacify Cuba in four months.

Thief Mortally Wounded.

CHADRON, Neb., Sept. 19.—Three masked highwaymen entered the postoffice at Belmont, and by the liberal display of six shooters compelled the postmaster to deliver up some $400 of postoffice funds. They made their escape, but two were apprehended in Crawford after lively fighting, in which one of the robbers was mortally wounded. The men are a portion of the gang which has been terrorizing the Black Hills.

Five Children Burned.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Sept. 19.—News of a terrible accident near the little town of Richmond, in Little River county, has reached here. English Ship Names.

The naming of ships is one of the difficulties that the admiralty overcome by using the old names over and over again. To adopt a new name into the navy seriously interferes with the service signal books.

The old names are in the code, and are as convenient for the ships of today as for those of Nelson's time. But the introduction of a new name necessitates an alteration in all the books. That is why the old names survive generation after generation.—London World.

Camphor is mostiy produced in Japan, Formosa, and some parts of China and the Philippines. Secretary Wilson, the head of the Department of Agriculture, proposes to give the citizens of the Gulf States an opportunity to experiment in this line. He is preparing to distribute camphor-tree slips to that section and is thus likely to add another industry to those of the agricultural element.

"After a great smash like that of 1893 or that of 1873 there is nothing to do but wait and let the business of the world settle itself, carefully keeping meanwhile the medicine men of finance with their feathers and rattles out of the way of the sick man. When public confidence is profoundly shaken it must re-establish itself. It has been shaken by causes, and those causes must be removed."

Now that the soft-coal strike has been practically settled without bloodshed, it is proper to call attention of those who are scolding about the interference of the courts in matters of this sort to the fact that the use of the injunction has doubtless been very valuable in preventing disturbances. It has saved the effusion of a great deal of blood by preventing the congregation of those whose assemblage would have worked them into a condition almost certain to result.

Another proof of the generally improved business conditions is found in the enormous increase in the output of pig-iron. When business generally is good the demand for iron is good. It enters into the production of articles for the farm, for the railroads, for building, for sea-going vessels, and almost every business enterprise, and has rightly been denominated a business berometer. In October of last year the weekly production of pig-iron in the United States averaged 112,000 tons. The average weekly output for September of this year will average about 190,000 tons. That is the difference between protection business and free-trade idleness, protection prosperity and free-trade adversity.

No man or woman can enjoy life or accomplish much in this world while suffering from a torpid liver. DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the pills that cleanse that organ quickly. Harr.

THE FROZEN DEEP.

A NOVEL BY WILKIE COLLINS.

INTERNATIONAL PRESS ASSOCIATION.

CHAPTER VII.

"HOUSE the doctor," he repeated. "Suppose the doctor should be frozen? He hadn't a ha'porth of warmth in him last night, and his voice sounded like a whisper in a speaking trumpet. Will the bones do now? Yes, the bones will do now. Into the saucepan with you," cried John Want, suiting the action to the word, "and flavor the hot water if you can! When I remember that I was once an apprentice at a pastry-cook's—when I think of the gallons of turtle-soup that this hand has stirred up in a jolly hot kitchen—and when I find myself mixing bones and hot water for soup, and turning into ice as fast as I can, if I wasn't of a cheerful disposition I would feel inclined to grumble. John Want! John Want! Whatever had you done with your natural senses when you made up your mind to go to sea?"

A new voice hailed the cook, speaking from one of the bedplaces in the side of the hut. It was the voice of Francis Aldersley. "Who's that croaking over the fire?"

"Croaking?" repeated John Want, with the air of a man who considers himself the object of a gratuitous insult. "Croaking? You don't find your own voice at all altered for the worse, do you, Mr. Frank? I don't give him," John proceeded, speaking confidentially to himself, "more than six hours to last. He's one of your grumblers."

"What are you doing there?" asked Frank.

"I'm making bone soup, sir, and wondering why I ever went to sea."

"Well, why did you go to sea?"

"I'm not certain, Mr. Frank. Sometimes I think it was natural perversity, sometimes I think it was false pride at getting over sea-sickness; sometimes I think it was reading Robinson Crusoe and books warning of me not to go to sea."

Frank laughed. "You're an old fellow. What do you mean by false pride at getting over sea-sickness? Did you ever get over sea-sickness in some new way?"

John Want's dismal face brightened in spite of himself. Frank had recalled to the cook's memory one of the noteworthy passages in the cook's life.

"That's it, sir!" he said. "If ever a man cured sea-sickness in a new way yet, I am the man—I got over it, Mr. Frank, by dint of hard eating. I was a passenger on board a packet-boat, sir, when first I saw blue water. A nasty lopp of sea came on at dinner time, and I began to feel queer the moment the soup was put on the table. 'Sick?' says the captain, 'Rather, sir,' says I. 'Will you try my cure?' says the captain. 'Certainly, sir,' says I 'is your heart in your mouth yet?' says the captain. 'Not quite, sir,' says I. 'Mock turtle soup,' says the captain, and helps me. I swallow a couple of spoonfuls, and turn as white as a sheet. The captain cocks his eye at me. 'Go on deck, sir,' says he, 'get rid of the soup, and then come back to the cabin.' I got rid of the soup and then came back to the cabin. 'Cod's head-and-shoulders,' says the captain, and helps me. 'I can't stand it, sir,' says I. 'You must,' says the captain, 'because it's the cure.' I crammed down a mouthful and turned paler than ever. 'Go on deck,' says the captain. 'Get rid of the cod's head, and come back to the cabin.' Off I go and back I come. 'Boiled leg of mutton and trimmings,' says the captain, and helps me. 'No fat, sir!' says I. 'Fat's the cure,' says the captain, and makes me eat it. 'Lean's the cure,' says the captain, and makes me eat it. 'Steady,' says the captain. 'Sick,' says I. 'Go on deck,' says the captain; 'get rid of the boiled leg of mutton and trimmings, and come back to the cabin.' Off I go, staggering—back I come more dead than alive. 'Devilled kidneys,' says the captain. I shut my eyes and got 'em down. 'Cure's beginning,' says the captain. 'Mutton chop and pickles.' I shut my eyes and got them down. 'Broiled ham and cayenne pepper,' says the captain. 'Glass of stout and cranberry tart. Want to go on deck again?' 'No, sir,' says I. 'Cure's done,' says the captain. 'Never you give in to your stomach and your stomach will end in giving in to you.'"

Having stated the moral purpose of his story in those unanswerable words John Want took himself and his saucepan into the kitchen. A moment later Crayford returned to the hut, and astonished Frank Aldersley by this question:

"Have you anything in your berth, Frank, that you set a value on?"

Frank looked puzzled. "Nothing that I set the smallest value on—when I am out of it," he replied. "What does your question mean?"

"We are almost as short of fuel as we are of provisions," Crayford proceeded. "Your berth will make good firing. I have directed Bateson to be here in ten minutes with his ax."

"Very attentive and considerate on your part," said Frank. "What is to become of me, if you please, when Bateson has chopped my bed into firewood?"

"Can't you guess?"

"I suppose the cold has stupefied me. The riddle is beyond my reading. Suppose you give me a hint."

"Certainly. There will be beds to spare soon—there is to be a change at last in our wretched lives here. Do you see it now?"

Frank's eyes sparkled. He sprang out of his berth and waved his fur cap in triumph.

"See it!" he exclaimed; "of course I do! The exploring party is to start at last. Do I go with the expedition?"

"It is not very long since you were in the doctor's hands, Frank," said Crayford, kindly. "I doubt if you are strong enough yet to make one of the exploring party."

"Strong enough or not," returned Frank, "any risk is better than pining and perishing here. Put me down, Crayford, among those who volunteer to go."

"Volunteers will not be accepted in this case," said Crayford. "Captain Helding and Captain Ebsworth see serious objections, as we are situated, to that method of proceeding."

"Do they mean to keep the appointments in their own hands?" asked Frank. "I, for one, object to that."

"Wait a little," said Crayford. "You were playing backgammon the other day with one of the officers. Does the board belong to him or to you?"

"It belongs to me. I have got it in my locker here. What do you want with it?"

"I want the dice and the box for casting lots. The captains have arranged—most wisely, as I think—that Chance shall decide among us who goes with the expedition, and who stays behind in the huts. The officers and crew of the Wanderer will be here in a few minutes to cast the lots. Neither you nor any one can object to that way of settling the question. Officers and men alike take their chances together. Nobody can grumble."

"I am quite satisfied," said Frank. "But I know of one man among the officers who is sure to make objections."

"Who is the man?"

"You know him well enough, too. The 'Bear of the Expedition'—Richard Wardour."

"Frank! Frank! you have a bad habit of letting your tongue run away with you. Don't repeat that stupid nickname when you talk of my good friend, Richard Wardour."

"Your good friend? Crayford! your liking for that man amazes me."

Crayford laid his hand kindly on Frank's shoulder. Of all the officers of the Sea-Mew, Crayford's favorite was Frank.

"Why should it amaze you?" he asked. "What opportunities have you had of judging? You and Wardour have always belonged to different ships. I have never seen you in Wardour's society for five minutes together. How can you form a fair estimate of his character?"

"I take the general estimate of his character," Frank answered. "He has got his nickname because he is the most unpopular man in his ship. Nobody likes him—there must be some reason for that."

"There is only one reason for it," Crayford rejoined. "Nobody understands Richard Wardour. I am not talking at random. Remember, I sailed from England with him in the Wanderer, and I was only transferred to the Sea-Mew long after we were locked up in the ice. I was Richard Wardour's companion on board ship for months, and I learned there to do him justice. Under all his outward defects, I tell you there beats a great and generous heart. Suspend your opinion, my lad, until you know my friend as well as I do. No more of this now. Give me the dice and the box."

Frank opened his locker. At the same time the silence of the snowy waste outside was broken by a shouting voice hailing the hut—"Sea-Mew, a-hoy!"

CHAPTER VIII.

THE sailor on watch opened the outer door. There, plodding over the ghastly white snow, were the officers of the Wanderer approaching the hut. There, scattered under the merciless black sky, were the crew, with the dogs and sledges, waiting the word which was to start them on their perilous and doubtful journey.

Captain Helding, of the Wanderer, accompanied by his officers, entered the hut—in high spirits at the prospect of a change. Behind them, lounging in slowly by himself, was a dark, sullen, heavy-browed man. He neither spoke nor offered his hand to anybody; he was the one person present who seemed to be perfectly indifferent to the fate in store for him. This was the man whom his brother officers had nicknamed the Bear of the Expedition. In other words—Richard Wardour.

Crayford advanced to welcome Captain Helding. Frank—remembering the friendly reproof which he had just received—passed over the other officers of the Wanderer, and made a special effort to be civil to Crayford's friend.

"Good morning, Mr. Wardour," he said. "We may congratulate each other on the chance of leaving this horrible place."

"You may think it horrible," Wardour retorted. "I like it."

"Like it? Good heavens! Why?"

"Because there are no women here."

Frank turned to his brother officers without making any further advances in the direction of Richard Wardour. The Bear of the Expedition was more unapproachable than ever.

In the meantime the hut had become thronged by the able-bodied officers and men of the two ships. Captain Helding, standing in the midst of them, with Crayford by his side, proceeded to explain the purpose of the contemplated expedition to the audience which surrounded him. He began in these words:

"Brother officers and men of the Wanderer and Sea-Mew, it is my duty to tell you, very briefly, the reasons which have decided Captain Ebsworth and myself on dispatching an exploring party in search of help. Without recalling all the hardships we have suffered for the last two years—the destruction, first of one of our ships, then of the other; the death of some of our bravest and best companions; the vain battles we have been fighting with the ice and snow and boundless desolation of these inhospitable regions—without dwelling on these things, it is my duty to remind you that this, the last place in which we have taken refuge, is far beyond the track of any previous expedition, and that consequently our chances of being discovered by any rescuing parties that may be sent to look after us is, to say the least of it, a chance of the most uncertain kind. You all agree with me, gentlemen, so far?"

The officers (with the exception of Wardour, who stood apart in sullen silence) all agreed, so far.

The Captain went on: "It is therefore urgently necessary that we should make another, and probably a last, effort to extricate ourselves. The winter is not far off, game is getting scarcer and scarcer, our stock of provisions is running low, and the sick—especially, I am sorry to say, the sick in the Wanderer's hut—are increasing in number day by day. We must look to our own lives, and to the lives of those who are dependent on us, and we have no time to lose."

The officers echoed the words cheerfully.

"Right! right! No time to lose."

Captain Helding resumed: "The plan proposed is, that a detachment of the able-bodied men and officers among us should set forth this very day and make another effort to reach the nearest inhabited settlements, from which help and provisions may be dispatched to those who remain here. The new direction to be taken, and the various precautions to be adopted, are all drawn out ready. The only question now before us is—who is to stop here, and who is to undertake the journey?"

The officers answered the question with one accord: "Volunteers." The men echoed their officers—"Aye, aye, volunteers."

Those Unnecessary Questions.

He had lost control of his wheel and the wheel left him to his fate. He rose in the air and then pitched upon the dusty road, gathering great quantities of dirt and accumulating aches and bruises. A few moments afterward a sympathetic countryman came along. "Had a fall, eh?" "No." "You didn't? Then what's happened?" "I climbed a tree to look at the scenery. How are crops and what are you charging a dozen for Franco-German potatoes?"—Judge.

ALASKAN WEATHER.

JAPAN CURRENT PROTECTS IT FROM EXTREMES.

Midsummer Days that Have No Night—Hazy Mornings with a Glorious Awakening at Noon—The Fading of the Clouds.

IN THE current number of the Century there is an article on "The Alaska Trip" by John Muir, the California writer and naturalist. Mr. Muir says:

The climate of all that portion of the coast that is bathed by the Japan current, extending from the southern boundary of the territroy northward and westwad to the island of Atoo, a distance of nearly twenty-five hundred miles, is remarkably bland, and free from extremes of heat and cold throughout the year. It is rainy, however; but the rain is of good quality, gentle in its fall, filling the fountains of the streams, and keeping the whole land fresh and fruitful, while anything more delightful than the shining weather after the rain—the great, round sun-days of June, July and August—can hardly be found elsewhere. An Alaska midsummer day is a day without night. In the extreme northern portion of the territory the sun does not set for weeks, and even as far south as Sitka and Fort Wrangel it sinks only a few degrees below the horizon, so that the rosy colors of the evening blend with those of the morning, leaving no gap of darkness between. Nevertheless, the full day opens slowly. At midnight, from the middle point between the gloaming and the dawn, a low arc of light is seen stealing along the horizon, with gradual increase of height and span and intensity of tone, accompanied usually by red clouds, which make a striking advertisement of the sun's progress long before he appears above the mountain tops.

For several hours after sunrise everything in the landscape seems dull and uncommunicative. The clouds fade, the islands and the mountains, with ruffs of mist about them, cast ill-defined shadows, and the whole firmament changes to pale pearl-gray with just a trace of purple in it. But toward noon there is a glorious awakening. The cool haziness of the air vanishes, and the richer sunbeams, pouring from on high, make all the bays and channels shine. Brightly now play the round-topped ripples about the edges of the islands, and over many a plume-shaped streak between them, where the water is stirred by some passing breeze.

On the mountains of the mainland and in the high-walled fiords that fringe the coast, still finer is the work of the sunshine. The broad white bosoms of the glaciers glow like silver, and their crystal fronts, and the multitude of icebergs that linger about them, drifting, swirling, turning their myriad angles to the sun, are kindled into a perfect blaze of irised light. The warm air throbs and wavers, and makes itself felt as a life-giving, energizing ocean embracing all the earth. Filled with ozone, our pulses bound, and we are warmed and quickened into sympathy with everything, taken back into the heart of nature, whence we came. We feel the life and motion about us, and the universal beauty; the tides marching back and forth with weariless industry, laving the beautiful shores, and swaying the purple dulse of the broad meadows of the sea where the fishes are fed; the wild streams in rows white with waterfalls, ever in bloom and ever in song, spreading their branches over a thousand mountains; the vast forests feeding on the drenching sunbeams, every cell in a whirl of enjoyment; misty flocks of insects stirring all the air; the wild sheep and goats on the grassy ridges above the woods, bears in the berry-tangles, mink and beaver and otter far back on many a river and lake; Indians and adventurers pursuing their lonely ways; birds tending their young—everywhere, everywhere beauty and life, and glad, rejoicing action.

Through the afternoon all the way down to the west the air seems to thicken and become soft, without losing its fineness. The breeze dies away, and everything settles into a deep, conscious repose. Then comes the sunset with its purple and gold—not a narrow arch of color, but oftentimes filling more than half the sky. The horizontal clouds that usually bar the horizon are fired on the edges, and the spaces of clear sky between them are filled in with greenish yellow and amber; while the flocks of thin, overlapping cloudlets are mostly touched with crimson, like the outleaning sprays of a maple-grove in the beginning of Indian summer; and a little later a smooth, mellow purple flushes the sky to the zenith, and fills the air, fairly steeping and transfiguring the islands and mountains, and changing all the water to wine.

MAN'S BEST FRIEND.

Because she is his mother.

Second because she is his wife.

First and foremost woman is man's best friend:

Because without her he would be rude, rough, and ungodly.

Because she can with him endure pain quietly and meet joy gladly.

Because she is patient with him in illness, endures his fretfulness, and "mothers" him.

Because she teaches him the value of gentle words, of kindly thought, and of consideration.

Because on her breast he can shed tears of repentance, and he is never reminded of them afterward.

Gross Outrages

Upon the stomach and bowels are perpetrated by multitudes of injudicious people who, upon experiencing the annoyance of constipation in a slight degree, infiltrate their bowels with drenching evacuants, which enfeeble the intestinal membranes to a serious extent, sometimes, even, superinducing dysentery and piles. It also banishes dyspepsia, malarial complaints, rheumatism, and kidney trouble.

Patent Pointers.

In a recent expired patent is shown a clever mechanism, by means of which a shaft was checked or stopped three times during one revolution by means of a swinging pendulum, provided with four shoulders, as is shown. The shaft was provided with three arms, which worked within the pendulum, and alternately engaged the shoulders. The second illustration shows two gears, which are alternately rotated in opposite directions by the continuously rotaing mutilated central pinion. Where a thing is marked "Patented" as of a date not of its patent, but of the date of an earlier patent to the same patentee, upon which it is an improvement, the U. S. circuit court recently held that the inventor had not complied with the law and so could not collect damages for infringement.

BROWN, AN ALABAMA HERO.

Negro Who Wears a Gold Watch Given by a Sunday School.

From the Atchison Globe: There have been many shocking stories in the papers of late descriptive of atrocities perpetrated upon negroes accused of crime in the South. It is, therefore, especially pleasant to recall a recent incident that has the effect of vivid contrast. Scott Brown was a big, awkward negro, who lived in Montgomery, Ala. He was one of the happy kind who are properly objects of envy to the dyspeptic white man. Scott was always a cheerful creature to look at, but nobody thought of him as at all an uncommon specimen of his race. Perhaps he isn't. He was walking along Commerce street, in Montgomery, one afternoon, when suddenly there was an uproar, and Scott saw the cause of it rushing toward him. A runaway team was coming at a breakneck speed, and right in the track of the maddened horses were two pretty little children crossing the street. Scott is said to have reached the middle of the street in one jump. There wasn't time to make two. The leaping horses seemed to be absolutely upon the children who stood perfectly still, dazed. Scott gave one of them a push that sent her out of reach of danger, but there was not time to repeat the act. So, swiftly clutching the other child to his broad breast, he fell forward, bending over her, shielding her with his body. In a fraction of a second the horses were upon him, over him, with a crash and a pounding of hoofs. The spectators saw him half rise and then fall weakly back, the child still clasped in his arms. She was entirely unhurt, but Scott was pretty nearly killed. However, he recovered in a few weeks and was substantially rewarded by Mr. J. W. Branscomb, the father of the two children. Then the little folks in the First Methodist Sunday school, to which the Branscomb children belonged, got up a fund, and when Scott was well enough they gave him a reception and also a gold watch bearing the inscription, "Court Street Sunday School to Scott Brown for His Heroism June 12, 1897."

WHERE DIAMONDS COME FROM

Brazil and South Africa Furnish the Bulk of the Product.

For centuries the only source of diamonds was India, the chief of which was the region of Golconda. The phrase "diamonds of Golconda" refers not to the mines but to the town where they were taken for sale. It is now little more than an abandoned fort, the Indian mines being largely worked out. In 1734 diamonds were found in Brazil and for 120 years diamonds were brought from that source. After various attempts to work these diamond mines by individuals, about a century ago the firm of Hope & Co. of Amsterdam undertook the work and for the privilege assumed the government debt of Brazil. Amsterdam thus continued to hold her position as the center of the diamond cutting industry,, employing, directly or indirectly, from 30,000 to 40,000 people. Of late Antwerp, Paris and London have been overtaking Amsterdam in this industry, Antwerp cutting one-quarter of the world's yield today. Within the last thirty years the product of the Brazil mines has declined to the extent of $150,000 annually. The introduction of new machinery must again render these mines important, but they are now undersold by the African diamond field. The African discoveries began in 1856 and have had several distinct stages of development. Probably had it not been for the diamonds the African gold mines would not have risen to their present importance. The first diamonds were found on the Gong Gong river in the neighborhood of the Orange river, and the method followed there is the same as that in Brazil, two or three men forming a company and working on their account. These mines, known as the "river diggings," are now of limited importance.

"As to the actual work under a skylight, only a few general hints may be given, as here each must 'work out her own salvation,'" writes Frances Benjamin Johnston in an article, "What a Woman Can Do With a Camera," in the Ladies' Home Journal. "Do not attempt to pose people, or to strain your sitters into uncomfortable or awkward positions, in order to obtain picturesque effects. Watch them, and help them into poses that are natural and graceful. Study their individuality, striving to keep the likeness, and yet endeavoring to show them at their best. Avoid emphasizing the peculiarities of a face either by lighting or pose; look for curves rather than angles or straight lines, and try to make the interest in the picture center upon what is most effective in your sitter. The one rule of lighting is never to have more than a single source of light. Many portraits, otherwise good, are rendered very inartistic by being lighted from several different directions."

MRS. KRINER'S LETTER

About Change of Life.

"I suffered for eight years and could find no permanent relief until one year ago. My trouble was Change of Life. I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and relief came almost immediately. I have taken two bottles of the Vegetable Compound, three boxes of Pills and have also used the Sanative Wash, and must say, I have never had anything help so much. I have better health than I ever had in my life. I feel like a new person, perfectly strong. I give the Compound all the credit. I have recommended it to several of my friends who are using it with like results. It has cured me of several female diseases. I would not do without Mrs. Pinkham's remedies for anything. There is no need of so much female suffering. Her remedies are a sure cure."—MRS. ELLA KRINER, Knightstown, Henry Co., Ind.

KLEMME - - IOWA.

"A freight car famine" has a terrifying sound, but it does not necessarily mean that anybody goes hungry; quite the contrary.

The invasion of England by American playwrights and players is in the nature of poetical retribution. We have somewhat like 10,000 ready for export.

A bicycle ordinance that can scorch through the council and not be punctured in the courts is what the wheelmen are looking out for as the next model.

They had a dynamite explosion across the border from Buffalo the other day, and immediately the Buffalo papers claimed a local earthquake. That is the clearest case of stealing thunder we ever heard of.

There is still great activity in the wheat market, incident to the large demand for American wheat to make up the shortage in other countries. The market has been peculiar to a farmer's market rather than a trader's; that is, it has been a market the advance in which came at a time to benefit the farmers, some of whose old wheat was still on hand, while their new wheat was just beginning to be harvested. The scheming speculators got left this time.

Seekers after treasure going to Alaska have attracted so much attention that the coming from Alaska to one of the Middle States of a group of persons also searching for hid treasure may have passed unnoticed. Six Indian girls have left that far country to be educated at Carlisle for missionary service. What computation could measure the value of the probable acquisition of these girls and its use as compared with the gold which a few of the many Klondike pilgrims will find?

Because of the depredations of wheelmen, two very beautiful country places along the Hudson have recently been closed to bicyclists. Rare flowers had been plucked, ferns dug up bodily, boughs broken from the exotic trees, peanut shells scattered over the lawns, and the very owners of the grounds warned by the insistent bell to stand aside. No aristocracy can compare in "effeteness" with such manners as these. The arrogance of unbridled liberty is even ruder than the exclusiveness of wealth.

In letters to our government Japan disclaims any designs of her own on the Hawaiian islands, but makes formal protest against their annexation by the United States on three grounds: First, that the maintenance of existing conditions is essential to the good understanding of the powers which have interests in the Pacific; second, that annexation would endanger the rights of Japanese residents in Hawaii, who number 25,000; and third, that it might lead Hawaii to postpone the settlement of the claims of Japan against her. Our government has replied, insisting on the right of annexation, but giving Japan friendly assurances that her rights and those of her subjects will be respected.

The United States and Russia have never yet had a dispute. On the contrary, the very warmest friendship has always existed between them. During the civil war a Russian fleet prevented a British fleet from blowing up New York. In 1893 the czar offered to loan us $100,000,000 in gold to replenish the reserve. There is not much immigration from Russia, but as a rule the Russian makes a good citizen of any country. Thousands of Americans live and do business in Russia. From these we learn that Russia is not the sort of a despotism that some British writers try to make out. The country is well governed and wealth is equally distributed. The common laborer is better off than his brother in America. There are no prisons and very little crime. The alleged horrors of Siberia that we read about in English papers are not horrors at all. A man convicted of crime is sent to Siberia for a term of years. He is put to work, but is not shackled. If he is married, he may take his wife with him. He receives fair remuneration for his services and at the end of his term of service rarely quits his exile. A single year in a British prison is equivalent to a life sentence to Siberia. We cannot learn too much about Russia. Some time ago there was talk of an alliance between the United States and England. Our senate wisely refused to ratify it. We do not think that a similar proposition from Russia would be as speedily refused. Perhaps a treaty will be concluded before the end of the century. In the meantime there is a perfect understanding between the two nations. Russia alone among Europeans is friendly to the Monroe doctrine. There is not the slightest doubt but that in case of necessity she would aid us to defend it.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

GAGGED AND BOUND.

Murphy Brothers, Near Cascade, Victims of Daring Robberies.

DUBUQUE, Sept. 24.—About four miles southeast of Cascade live two brothers named Murphy. They are bachelors, live alone and own considerable property and are commonly supposed to have much of their wealth in the house. A neighbor had occasion to visit the house and found both men tied and gagged, lying on the floor and utterly helpless. He released them and they told a story of robbery that was exceptionally daring. Early in the afternoon two men suddenly appeared at the door, assaulted, overpowered and bound them. The fellows were masked and after searching the house over for the large amount of money they supposed to be concealed there, they attempted, by threats, to make the brothers divulge its hiding place. This they did not do, and the robbers finally took everything they could find of value and gagged their victims. They took their time about leaving, first thoroughly rummaging the house over. They hitched up a gray horse belonging to the Murphys and drove away with it.

MRS. BEHRENS'S NEW DEFENSE

Proposes to Show Her Husband Killed Himself by Inches.

DAVENPORT, Sept. 26.—The attorneys for Mrs. Christina Behrens, charged with the murder of her husband a few weeks ago, are moving all things to secure a disinterment of the victim's body for a thorough examination. They believe that the remains were buried together and that the stomach in which poison was found was not an organ belonging to the dead man's entity. The theory of the state is that the poison which killed Behrens was given him very shortly before his death came, but the defense expects to show that the man had died of slow poisoning. They think Behrens committed suicide. Mayor Smith refused to issue a permit for the body's disinterment, because the cemetery is outside the city limits, and the attorneys for the widow will continue to search for authority to move the body. Mrs. Behrens keeps her husband's clothing in her cell and cries a great deal.

F. NOVAK IS INDICTED.

Benton County Grand Jury Holds Him for the Murder of Ed Murray.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Sept. 24.—Frank Novak, who was pursued by detectives to Alaska and captured at Dawson City and brought back, has been indicted by the grand jury for the murder of Edward Murray. The charges of conspiracy and arson were not considered. Attorney Milner, who has been retained to defend Novak, declares his client has a defense the state little dreams of, and when made public will place Novak in a more favorable light before the public. He says there is no truth in the report that Novak admitted to William Murray that he guessed it was the remains of Edward Murray found in the debris of the burned building. A change of venue will be demanded.

TEST OF ANTI-CIGARETTE LAW

Iowa's New Statute Opposed on Original Package Grounds.

NEWTON, Sept. 24.—The constitutionality of Iowa's new anti-cigarette law is to be tested in this city. Peter Gottard, a restaurant keeper, was fined $25 and costs for selling cigarettes. He claims that a box of cigarettes is an original package, and he is therefore entitled to sell them under the provisions of the interstate commerce act. The case has been appealed. It is understood the cigarette trust will send an attorney to defend Gottard.

Sutherland Boy Killed.

SUTHERLAND, Sept. 24.—Willie Hoyt, about 18 years of age, whose mother lives in Sutherland, was stealing a ride from Sioux Rapids to Sutherland. He was on the trucks in under the sleeping car and fell off and was run over by the wheels. His right limb was severed from the body at the hip. He died about two hours later. He had been in a habit of stealing rides in this manner.

Pardoned Conditionally.

DUBUQUE, Sept. 24.—Bernard Hansen has been pardoned conditionally on the application of the judge and the prosecutor. He killed a street car conductor, aided by one Leo Aboon, who on a second trial escaped. Hansen was serving a twenty year sentence from 1891.

Stevens Gets Three Years.

HOG CHOLERA.

Tests to Be Made Under the Direction of the Agricultural Society.

DES MOINES, Sept. 24.—R. P. Dodge, of Atlanta, Ga., is in Iowa for the purpose of making tests and demonstrations in the treatment and cure of hog cholera and swine plague. He will make tests at all points in Iowa where the disease is prevalent, if requested to do so. He claims to have a new method, a cure in many cases and a preventive in all. He will travel under the direction of the Iowa Agricultural society, and more directly under the management of Vice-President John Cownie. Requests for his presence should be addressed to Mr. Cownie at the state house. The tests are made wholly without expense and have the endorsement of the agricultural department of Georgia. Mr. Dodge expects to remain in the state until November 1.

ONLY ASSAULT AND SUICIDE.

Family Quarrel at Vincent Results Fatally.

FORT DODGE, Sept. 27.—Mons Minson, a young man living three miles south of Vincent, in a quarrel with his two brother-in-laws, L. L. Larson and Osmind Peterson, shot each of them with a revolver, neither of them being seriously hurt. In the afternoon Constable Harding went out to arrest Minson, who, upon his approach fled to to the house, locked himself in his room and fired a shot through his head, dying instantly. The quarrel is supposed to have been over a love affair in which the suicide had become entangled. Three bullets have been taken from Larson's legs and one from Peterson's. Both will recover. A famiiy quarrel was the cause.

Fortune for a Prisoner.

SAN FRANCISCO. Sept. 25.—W. F. Karron, now imprisoned in the county jail charged with embezzlement, has fallen heir to $250,000. James Karron, the prisoner's uncle, who was a prominent mining operator in Montana and Nevada, died recently at Austin, Ia., leaving property valued at $500,000, to be equally divided between his two nephews. One of these is the prisoner, W. F. Karron. while the other is Linnie Karron, a barber at Sioux City, Iowa.

Oskaloosa Failure Adjusted.

OSKALOOSA, Sept. 26.—A big law suit, growing out of the failure of McIntire Bros. & Wilson, last winter, has been settled in the district court. The Mahaska County Bank will get its claim of $12,000 in full. The other creditors will be paid pro rata out of what is left. J. B. Farwell & Co. tried very hard to establish the priority of their claim of $11,000, but could not do so. It is understood the other creditors will get about 50 cents on the dollar.

IOWA CONDENSED.

John Steele was convicted at Albia, Monroe county, of murder in the first degree and the sentence is fixed at penitentiary for life. Steele murdered his neighbor, Jacob Werner.

In the case of C. J. Stevens, the last of those tried in Wapello county for the Eldon bank robbery, although the state presented the evidence of five people to whom Stevens had confessed to instigating the entire plot, the jury brought in a verdict of breaking and entering.

Kate Ensminger, aged about 20 years, was found dead in her room in Des Moines' Whitechapel district. She had died from an overdose of chloroform administered accidentally or otherwise by her own hand, as found by the coroner. She was the daughter of respectable parents.

At Keokuk recently John M. Schlattery, a Macomb, Ill., laborer, filed suit in the federal court against Mrs. Catherine Sower, near Burlington, for $10,000 for personal injuries. He claims he was inquiring for work at her house and her big dog chewed up his left leg between the knee and ankle.

Mrs. Andy Burnett, of Creston, wife of a Burlington route engineer, took a teaspoonful of carbolic acid and told the doctor when he arrived not try to save her life, that she wanted to die. She refused to take the medicine, and it was forced down her throat. She now says she took the medicine by accident, evidently changing her mind as to her intentions after recovering her better senses.

Keokuk dispatch: The Davis will case, which has so long been in litigation, has at last been settled and the money distributed among the ones to whom it has been decreed to belong. Judge H. H. Trimble and son, Palmer Trimble, of Keokuk, who represented some of the claimants, have been paid their fee, which amounts to the sum of $100,000. ALL OVER THE WORLD

YELLOW FEVER SCARE.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 21.—At its sessions, the board of health decided to send an appeal to Governor Foster, asking him to supply the board with $25,000 to assist the board in prosecuting its fight against yellow fever. Eighteen new cases are reported at New Orleans.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 22.—A special from Cairo, Ill., to the Post-Dispatch says: Dr. Guiteras has diagnosed two more cases of illness here as yellow fever. A quarantine against Cairo, Ill., is unnecessary and unwarranted by the facts in the case. By no possibility can contagion be carried from Cairo at the present time, or spread through the city with the restrictions imposed.

LOUISVILLE, Sept. 23.—Two cases of yellow fever have developed here. The health officers declare that the disease will not spread.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 23.—Twelve new cases and two deaths are reported, one of the latter being Dr. Lovell, who contracted the fever while attending patients suffering with the disease.

EDWARDS, Miss., Sept. 23.—There are eight new cases of yellow fever, a total to date of eighty; deaths, one, a total of three. All the cases except two are doing well. The disease is spreading rapidly. Five hundred people within the lines are unaffected. The indications are that nothing except a killing frost can allay the disease.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 25.—After a mass meeting of citizens, a riotous crowd gathered around the Beauregard school building, which was being converted into a yellow fever hospital, and openly threatened that at the first opportunity they would fire it. A small force of police were ordered to the scene. While they were engaged in attempting to quell the riotous mob in front, two incendiaries with a five-gallon can of oil quickly had the building in flames. Chief Gaster finally arrived with a big squad of firemen, who beat back the mob. Then the firemen went actively to work and saved the building. The action of the mob was roundly denounced on all sides.

EDWARDS, Miss., Sept. 27.—Owing to the rapid spread of the disease, the situation is serious. The summary stands thus: Total cases to date, 140; deaths to date, 6.

AUSTRIA WOULD INTERVENE.

Does Not Want to See American-Spanish War.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The correspondent of the Daily Telegraph at Vienna says: It is learned from a reliable source that the Vienna cabinet would immediately intervene in a conflict between Spain and the United States. The news of the ultimatum created excitement in political circles, and the universal opinion was that such action would be unjustifiable.

TOOK HIS OWN LIFE.

Chief of Police of Mexico Uses a Pistol.

CITY OF MEXICO, Sept. 25.—Ex-Chief of Police Eduardo Velasquez shot himself in the head, dying instantly. No one knows how he procured the pistol. The action is generally approved.

England and Egypt.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—The Politique Coloniale publishes a dispatch from St. Petersburg saying that as a result of the exchange of views between the chancelleries at St. Petersburg, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, Rome and Constantinople, the sultan of Turkey will address the powers shortly on the subject of Great Britain's evacuation of Egypt. Russia, supporting the sultan, will invite a conference at Constantinople or St. Petersburg, with the object of settling the question on a basis of autonomy, Egypt to be under the suzerainty of the sultan.

Seventeen Miners Killed.

EL PASO, Texas, Sept. 27.—The San Pedro mine, in the Corralltos group, twelve miles from El Paso, in Mexico, caved in, killing seventeen men who were at work in the mine at the time. The unfortunates were buried alive under thirty feet of rock and dirt. The San Pedro is one of the oldest mines in the group and is rich with silver.

Illinois Miners Killed.

MARION, Ill., Sept. 26.—One man was killed, three were fatally injured and six were severely burned and bruised by an explosion of gas in the Williamson county coal mines. An unknown miner is still imprisoned in the shaft and was undoubtedly instantly killed.

Loss of Lives in Wreck.

MADRAS, Sept. 25.—Owing to the floods having washed away the bridge of the Bangalore-Mysore railroad near Maddur, an engine and five cars filled with passengers were precipitated into the river, causing a great loss of life.

LONDON BANKERS AND SILVER

Met to Consult on Bank of England's Attitude.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—A meeting of the bankers of London was held to protest against the action of the Bank of England undertaking to carry one-fifth of its reserve in silver under certain conditions. There was a large attendance, representing powerful interests. Several prominent bankers were not represented, but it was said to be due to the fact that the heads of the banks unrepresented were not in London. A resolution protesting against the Bank of England's proposed action was adopted. This action of the London bankers is unprecedented.

HUNDRED AND FIFTY KILLED.

Train Wreck Caused by Bridge Collapse in India.

BOMBAY, Sept. 27.—Recent advices from the scene of the wreck of the bridge of the Bengalore-Myrose railroad, near Maddur, indicates that 150 persons, mostly natives, were killed, and 14 injured. Seventy persons succeeded in making their escape.

Gobin Takes No Salary.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 26.—The recently elected commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, Gen. J. B. S. Gobin, of Lebanon, has made a decidedly popular move at the outset of the administration in the general order issued a few days ago to the effect that in the interest of economy himself and employes would serve without salary. For years the commander-in-chief has drawn $2,000 annually from the exchequer of the order, the adjutant general a similar sum and the quartermaster general $1,200 per annum. Gen. Gobin's order will thus effect a considerable saving in the expenses of the national administration, and it is not regarded as probable that future administrations will go back to the salary system.

Forty Perish in Landslide.

ROME, Sept. 25.—Forty persons were killed and many injured by a landslide at the sulphur mines near Girgenti.

BREVITIES.

The Pacific steamer City of Peking, which has just arrived from the Orient, by way of Honolulu, brings word that the Hawaiian congress ratified the treaty of annexation on September 10. There was no opposition.

The coroner's jury sitting in the inquest on the Santa Fe wreck, near Emporia, Kan., in which thirteen people were killed and several injured, returned the verdict placing the responsibility on Dispatcher King, of Topeka. The railway company is blamed for negligence in not having the Lang office thoroughly equipped and the agent at Larson for not using all the precautions in his power.

Surgeon F. R. Smythe, of the marine hospital service, has written to the surgeon general informing him of the existence of two cases of leprosy in Walsh county, North Dakota. The victims are Scandinavians and the disease is said to be well developed. One of the patients is said to be anxious to return to Sweden. Dr. Smythe says he is uninformed as to what precautions the local authorities have taken to prevent the spread of the disease.

The president appointed E. A. Nye, formerly editor of the Danville, Ill., Commercial, consul to Hankow, China. The salary amounts to $3,000 and the fees aggregate $1,000 additional. Mr. Nye was appointed auditor of war last spring and like his friend Mr. Calhoun, who refused the appointment as comptroller of the treasury, declined the office. He is now managing editor of the Des Moines Daily News and announces that he will decline the consulship.

Andrew Smith and wife, colored, living near Donalds, S. C., locked in their house six children, the youngest 18 months old, and the oldest 7 years. The parents went to church. An hour later the neighbors heard frightful screams coming from Smith's house, the interior of which was in flames. Efforts were made to save the children, but it was impossible to reach them, and all perished. It is supposed an oil lamp left burning was overturned. When the parents returned a pile of bones and ashes is all that they found.

Section 22 of the Dingley act, it is announced, does not impose discriminating duties upon goods brought into the United States through contiguous countries under consular seal or upon goods imported through ocean ports in foreign vessels which are not specially exempted by treaty. Attorney General McKenna is of the opinion that, except as to goods not the product of a contiguous country which are imported into the United States directly from such contiguous country, the language of the section is not clear enough to make it certain that congress intended to change the previously existing law. He believes that the verbiage is altogether too vague to justify an interpretation changing in any way the law as contained in the revised statutes as far as it affects imports through ocean ports or through contiguous countries under consular seal. This is the opinion of the attor[illegible] general.

CHAPTER VIII.—(CONTINUED.)

Wardour still preserved his sullen silence. Crayford noticed him, standing apart from the rest, and appealed to him personally. "Do you say nothing?" he asked.

"Nothing," Wardour answered. "Go or stay, it's all one to me."

"I hope you don't mean that?" said Crayford.

"I do."

"I am sorry to hear it, Wardour."

Captain Helding answered the general suggestion in favor of volunteering by a question which instantly checked the rising enthusiasm of the meeting.

"Well," he said, "suppose we say volunteers. Who volunteers to stop in the huts?"

There was a dead silence. The officers and men looked at each other confusedly. The captain continued:

"You see we can't settle it by volunteering. You all want to go. Every man among us who has the use of his limbs naturally wants to go. But what is to become of those who have not got the use of their limbs? Some of us must stay here and take care of the sick."

Everybody admitted that this was true.

"So we get back again," said the captain, "to the old question—Who among the able-bodied is to go, and who is to stay? Captain Ebsworth says, and I say, let Chance decide it. Here are dice. The numbers run as high as twelve—double sixes. All who throw under six stay; all who throw over six go. Officers of the Wanderer and Sea-Mew, do you agree to that way of meeting the difficulty?"

All the officers agreed—with the one exception of Wardour, who still kept silence.

"Men of the Wanderer and Sea-Mew, your officers agree to cast lots. Do you agree, too?"

The men agreed without a dissentient voice. Crayford handed the box and the dice to Captain Helding.

"You throw first, sir. Under six, 'stay.' Over six, 'go.'"

Captain Helding cast the dice; the top of the cask serving for a table. He threw seven.

"Go," said Crayford. "I congratulate you, sir. Now for my own chance." He cast the dice in his turn. "Three. Stay! Ah, well! well! if I can do my duty and be of use to others, what does it matter whether I go or stay? Wardour, you are next, in the absence of your first lieutenant."

Wardour prepared to cast without shaking the dice.

"Shake the box, man!" cried Crayford. "Give yourself a chance of luck!"

Wardour persisted in letting the dice fall out carelessly, just as they lay in the box.

"Not I!" he muttered to himself. "I've done with luck." Saying those words, he threw down the empty box, and seated himself on the nearest chest, without looking to see how the dice had fallen.

Crayford examined them. "Six!" he exclaimed. "There! you have a second chance, in spite of yourself. You are neither under nor over; you throw again."

"Bah!" growled the Bear. "It's not worth the trouble of getting up for. Somebody else throw for me." He suddenly looked at Frank. "You! you have got what the women call a lucky face."

Frank appealed to Crayford. "Shall I?"

"Yes, if he wishes it," said Crayford.

Frank cast the dice. "Five! He stays! Wardour, I am sorry, I have thrown against you."

"Go or stay," reiterated Wardour, "it's all one to me. You will be luckier, young man, when you cast for yourself."

Frank cast for himself.

"Eight. Hurrah! I go!"

"What did I tell you?" said Wardour. "The chance was yours. You have thriven on my ill luck."

He rose as he spoke to leave the hut. Crayford stopped him.

"Have you anything particular to do, Richard?"

"What has anybody to do here?"

"Wait a little then. I want to speak to you when this business is over."

"Are you going to give me any more good advice?"

"Don't look at me in that sour way, Richard. I am going to ask you a question about something which concerns yourself."

Wardour yielded without a word more. He returned to his chest and cynically composed himself to slumber.

The casting of the lots went on rapidly among the officers and men. In another half hour Chance had decided the question of "Go" or "Stay" for all alike. The men left the hut. The officers entered the inner apartment for a last conference with the bed-ridden captain of the Sea-Mew. Wardour and Crayford were left together alone.

CHAPTER IX.

CRAYFORD touched his friend on the shoulder to rouse him. Wardour looked up, impatiently, with a frown. "I was just asleep," he said. "Why do you wake me?"

"Look round you, Richard. We are alone."

"Well—and what of that?"

"I wish to speak to you privately, and this is my opportunity. You have disappointed and surprised me to-day. Why did you say it was all one to you whether you went or stayed? Why are you the only man among us who seems to be perfectly indifferent whether we are rescued or not?"

"Can a man always give a reason for what is strange in his manner or his words?" Wardour retorted.

"He can try," said Crayford quickly, "when his friend asks him."

Wardour's manner softened.

"That's true," he said. "I will try. Do you remember the first night at sea, when we sailed from England in the Wanderer?"

"As well as if it was yesterday."

"A calm, still night," the other went on thoughtfully. "No clouds, no stars. Nothing in the sky but the broad moon, and hardly a ripple to break the path of light she made in the quiet water. Mine was the middle watch that night. You came on deck, and found me alone——"

He stopped. Crayford took his hand, and finished the sentence for him. "Alone—and in tears."

"The last I shall ever shed," Wardour added bitterly.

"Don't say that. There are times when a man is to be pitied, indeed, if he can shed no tears. Go on, Richard."

Wardour proceeded—still following the old recollections, still preserving his gentler tones.

"I should have quarrelled with any other man who had surprised me at that moment," he said. "There was something, I suppose, in your voice, when you asked my pardon for disturbing me, that softened my heart. I told you that I had met with a disappointment which had broken me for life. There was no need to explain further. The only hopeless wretchedness in this world is the wretchedness that women cause."

"And the only unalloyed happiness," said Crayford, "the happiness that women bring."

"That may be your experience of them," Wardour answered. "Mine is different. All the devotion, patience, the humility, the worship that there is in man I laid at the feet of a woman. She accepted the offering as women do—accepted it easily, gracefully, unfeelingly—accepted it as a matter of course. I left England to win a high place in my profession before I dared to win her. I braved danger and faced death. I staked my life in the fever-swamps of Africa to gain the promotion that I only desired for her sake—and gained it. I came back to give her all, and to ask nothing in return but to rest my weary heart in the sunshine of her smile. And her own lips—the lips I had kissed at parting—told me that another man had robbed me of her. I spoke but few words when I heard that confession, and left her forever. 'The time may come,' I told her, 'when I shall forgive you. But the man who has robbed me of you shall rue the day when you and he first met.' Don't ask me who he was! I have yet to discover him. The treachery had been kept secret; nobody could tell me where to find him; nobody could tell me who he was. What did it matter? When I had lived out the first agony I could rely on myself—I could be patient and bide my time."

"Your time? What time?"

"The time when I and that man shall meet, face to face. I knew it then; I know it now—it was written on my heart then, it is written on my heart now—we two shall meet and know each other! With that conviction strong within me, I volunteered for this service, as I would have volunteered for anything that set work and hardship and danger, like ramparts, between my misery and me. With that conviction strong within me still, I tell you it is no matter whether I stay here with the sick or go hence with the strong. I shall live till I have met that man! There is a day of reckoning appointed between us. Here in the freezing cold, or away in the deadly heat—in battle or in shipwreck—in the face of starvation, under the shadow of pestilence—I, though hundreds are falling round me, I shall live! live for the coming of one day! live for the meeting with one man!"

He stopped, trembling, body and soul, under the hold that his own terrible superstition had fastened on him. Crayford drew back in silent horror. Wardour noticed the action—he resented it—he appealed in defense of his one cherished conviction to Crayford's own experience of him.

"Look at me!" he cried. "Look how I have lived and thriven, with the heartache gnawing at me at home, and the winds of the icy north whistling round me here! I am the strongest man among you. Why? I have fought through hardships that have laid the best-seasoned men of all our party on their backs. Why? What have I done that my life should throb as bravely through every vein in my body at this minute, and in this deadly place, as ever it did in the wholesome breezes of home? What am I preserved for? I tell you again, for the coming of one day—for the meeting with one man."

He paused once more. This time Crayford spoke.

"Richard!" he said, "since we first met I have believed in your better nature, against all outward appearance. I have believed in you firmly, truly, as your brother might. You are putting that belief to a hard test. If your enemy had told me that you had ever talked as you talk now, that you had ever looked as you look now, I would have turned my back on him as the utterer of a vile calumny against a just, a brave, an upright man. Oh! my friend, my friend, if ever I have deserved well of you, put away those thoughts from your heart! Face me again with the stainless look of a man who has trampled under his feet the bloody superstitions of revenge, and knows them no more! Never, never, let the time come when I cannot offer you my hand as I offer it now—to the man I can still admire, to the brother I can still love!"

The heart that no other voice could touch felt that appeal. The fierce eyes, the hard voice, softened under Crayford's influence. Richard Wardour's head sunk on his breast.

"You are kinder to me than I deserve," he said. "Be kinder still, and forget what I have been talking about. No! no more about me; I am not worth it. We'll change the subject, and never go back to it again. Let's do something. Work, Crayford—that's the true elixir of our life! Work, that stretches the muscles and sets the blood a-glowing. Work, that tires the body and rests the mind. Is there nothing in hand that I can do? Nothing to carry?"

The door opened as he put the question. Bateson—appointed to chop Frank's bed-place into firing—appeared punctually with his ax. Wardour, without a word of warning, snatched the ax out of the man's hand.

"What's this wanted for?" he asked.

"To cut up Mr. Aldersley's berth there into firing, sir."

"I'll do it for you! I'll have it down in no time!" He turned to Crayford. "You needn't be afraid about me, old friend. I am going to do the right thing. I am going to tire my body and rest my mind."

The evil spirit in him was plainly subdued—for the time at least. Crayford took his hand in silence, and (followed by Bateson) left him to this work.

The Most Beautiful Foot.

The most beautiful foot is the slender one. The stylish girl recognizes this fact. Her shoes are always large enough to avoid cramping the foot, and yet they are snug and wonderfully neat and delicate. That is the reason why some girls can dance all night without rest, while others have to retire early from a brilliant ball, leaving their hearts behind—in case they do not dance and suffer so much with their feet as to preclude the possibility of real enjoyment. If a girl wears a proper shoe, when the foot is bare, and she stands upon it in the privacy of her bedroom, it will be as pretty and delicate as a baby's. The instep would be high, the heel delicately formed, the skin as white as alabaster, with possibly blue veins showing through. The general form of the foot will be slender, the toes tapering parallel, and separated by about the thickness of a sheet of paper, and adorned with pink-tinted nails. A girl who has such feet as these—and there are many who have them—well may take pride and pleasure in contemplating them.

A man doesn't want to go to congress to benefit the people, but to benefit himself.

SENSATION IN SPAIN.

The Government Has Been Deceived by De Lome and Weyler.

MADRID, Sept. 25.—The attitude of the United States has caused a great sensation at Madrid, because opinion has been lured on by the optimistic communication of the Spanish minister at Washington upon the character and correct attitude of the government, and that, too, with several warnings from Mr. Olney and Mr. Cleveland's messages. The official bulletins of Captain General Weyler have received too much confidence, when the United States government was every month receiving from its consuls and special envoys totally different views. The general impression at San Sebastian and Madrid is that the Spanish government will try to drag negotiations along, unless it rejects purely and simply the good offices of the United States on the ground of public opinion and upon the further ground that the opposition would not permit it to tolerate foreign intervention, even though amicable.

WAR SHIPS FOR HAWAII.

United States Prepared to Checkmate Any Move by Japan.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25.—Uncle Sam does not intend to be caught napping in Hawaii. Notwithstanding the denials of Japanese officials, the administration is suspicious that the wily Japs meditate some sort of a coup. There is a feeling in Washington that the Japs deny too vigorously and protest too much. At any rate orders have been sent to the gunboat Wheeling, now at Mare island, to proceed without delay to Hondolulu. The Yorktown is already on its way to the Hawaiian capital. It was originally intended that the cruiser Philadelphia should return to the United States very soon, but now the understanding is that the Philadelphia will be kept at Hondolulu till the Japanese cruiser Naniwa leaves that port for Japan, as it is reported she is about to do. The Japanese may not be meditating action, but the administration thinks it wise to be on the safe side.

JAPAN READY TO FIGHT US.

Said to Be Prepared to Resist Hawaiian Annexation by Force.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24.—Japan has been landing troops in Hawaii during the last three months preparatory to resisting all attempts to annex the islands to the United States. The steamer City of Pekin, from Hong Kong via Honolulu, brings this news with the confirmation that it itself landed 174 Japanese soldiers at the capital of Hawaii under the guise of laborers. The Japanese are bitterly opposed to the treaty of annexation, which was ratified September 19 by the Hawaiian senate, and it is supposed that a desperate resistance will be made to this measure by the mikado. More than 1,000 soldiers from the land of the chrysanthemum are now in Hawaii, it is asserted, and it is claimed they only wait the word of command to fight any attempt made to hand the islands over the United States.

MAY BALK SEALING SCHEMES.

Prospect That Washington Conference Will Fizzle.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Touching the Ottawa report that Bering sea negotiations have reached an issue that threatens to cause an abandonment of the projected conference on account of the insistance of the United States upon Japanese and Russian representation, it is admitted at the state department that there has been some correspondence between the United States and Great Britain since the note of July last, which has already been published. But in this additional correspondence there is nothing to warrant the conclusions drawn at Ottawa.

"Buck" Kilgore Dead.

ARDMORE, I. T., Sept. 24.—United States Judge Kilgore, ex-congressman from Texas, died yesterday. By his friends he was known as "Buck," and attracted publicity in the Fifty-first congress by kicking in a green baise door, which had been locked by order of Speaker Reed during a filibustering scene.

Pittsburg dispatch: The bituminous coal miners' strike is officially at an end. The ten days which the miners should remain idle have ended and the 150,000 men who have been idle for eleven weeks, resumed work at an advance of 20 per cent on their wages. Desultory fights will be continued, but the most interesting one will be the fight in the New York and Cleveland Gas Coal Company, as it is the ambition of the miners to make that company pay 65 cents a ton. The task is admitted to be a hard one. The miners got practically all they asked for, and more than the conservative members expected. All the miners in the Pittsburg district, where the price has been accorded have gone to work. The operators are getting all the cars they need and the mines are making phenomenal runs.

TO KILL M'KINLEY.

Crank Supposed to Have Had Designs on the Life of the President.

Joseph Bloomfield Jackson, who is said to be a crank from Meriden, Conn., was arrested a few nights since at the door of the White House after an unsuccessful attempt to enter the executive mansion. Jackson was heavily armed. He has been in the city several days and at the Raleigh house, where he has been stopping made mysterious boasts as to what he was going to do to high officials of the government. He sent a letter to a local newspaper containing similar threats. He has been under espionage several days and is now behind the bars. Officers thought nothing of the arrest until on searching him they found a loaded revolver. Only a charge of vagrancy and carrying concealed weapons can be made against him and his treatment will not be materially different than that given to hundreds other cranks removed from the White House grounds without disturbance, but nevertheless, there is a fear and belief, that Major McKinley might, had he driven out in the afternoon, instead of being closeted with visitors, have been attacked and perhaps shot as he entered his carriage. It is thought that Jackson's mind is unbalanced.

SPANIARDS IN A TRAP.

Cubans Feign Retreat and Draw Soldiers Into an Ambuscade.

Havana dispatch: General Calixto Garcia has announced his intention of driving the Spaniards out of eastern Cuba. His latest movement was against Manzanillo, one of the most important seaports on the southern coast. Twelve hundred rebels, under command of Brigadier Salvador Rios, appeared before that town and called upon the garrison to surrender. In reply the Spanish commander, Brigadier Toral, sent out a column of men. The rebels feigned retreat, and the Spanish troops, encouraged by what they thought a cowardly flight, pressed after the enemy. The flight and pursuit lasted for two kilometers, when, at the estate of Tranquilisad, the rebels turned, and with re-enforcements that had been lying in ambush, fell upon the Spanish rear. The result was a veritable slaughter. The Spanish put their loss down at 108 killed and sixty-nine wounded, but other advices state that out of the column only three men escaped to return to Manzanillo. The others were killed, wounded or taken prisoners.

HE CONFESSED.

Mexico City Chief of Police Ordered Lynching of Arroyo.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 24.—Velasquez, ex-inspector general of police, now in prison, confesses that he ordered the killing of Arroyo. His servant admits buying the knives with which the deed was committed. Velasquez says the man was not tortured. The judge has decided to hold Velasquez and Cabrora for trial.

Scores Drowned.

VIENNA, Sept. 25.—The steamer Ika, with a crew of ten and fifty Austrian passengers, was entering the port at Flume, on the river Flumara, when she collided with the English steamer Tiria, which was leaving. The bows of the Ika were stove in and she sank in two minutes. Boats hastily put off and saved the captain and seven others, but most of the passengers perished.

Hunter Not Guilty.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Sept. 24.—The jury in the case of Dr. Godfrey Hunter, charged with attempting to bribe members of the legislature to vote for him for United States senator, returned a verdict of "not guilty."

Filibusters Are Slaughtered.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 24.—A Floridan from Cuba reports that a recent filibustering expedition for the island was captured, and that nineteen men were slain by the Spaniards.

IOWA PATENT OFFICE REPORT

DES MOINES, Sept. 22.—Thirty patents were issued August 31st to one inventor, F. H. Richards, of Hartford, Conn., for thirty different weighing machines. The secretary of a company in Lake View, Iowa, says: "We recorded our assignment in the county where we do business," and asks "should it be recorded anywhere else?" Answer: Recording any paper that affects the title to a patented invention in a county or state is not a legal notice to the public. The following is the law upon the subject: Section 4898. Every patent, or any interest therein, shall be assignable in law by an instrument in writing, and the patentee or his assigns or legal representatives may, in like manner, grant and convey an exclusive right under his patent to the whole or any specified part of the United States. An assignment, grant or conveyance shall be void as against any subsequent purchaser or mortgagee for a valuable consideration, without notice, unless it is recorded in the patent office within three months from the date thereof.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce myself as an independent candidate for the office of treasurer of Hancock County. Subject to the decision of the voters at the general election to be held in November.

THOMAS DUFF.

My reason for doing so after being a candidate at the primaries, are that I do not consider that I was beaten by any fair means whatever. But by all the foul and corrupt schemes that could be concocted by a gang of political tricksters, in the townships where the elections were conducted by Gowdy committeemen. And after a thorouh and careful invesitgation for two weeks, I have every reason to beleive that I was not voted out but counted out.

You should have all the home-grown products that are consumed in the family that can be grown on your farm, but you should never be a home-groan man. Groaning, growling and fretting is as injurious to a sweet temper as a balky horse would be.

If you have a good farm and some good sons, let them do the farming and you (do the) rest. When a man has worked hard on a farm until he has several boys large enough to go ahead with the farm, he should take a well-earned vacation. It will do the boys no harm to be placed in responsible positions occasionly, and the work will only have a tendency to make them better adapted to battle in life.

The progressive farmer will need to study what the country stands most in need of and grow that product. He should not be bound to any stereotyped rules of rotation if it is not proving lucrative. It is so much easier to make sales of an article that is in demand than it is of those for which there is no demand. Beans, honey, buckwheat, fruit, onions and other crops may be added to the staple crops, as the appearance of a good demand is promising.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"MUSIC IN THE CHURCHES" SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

From the Text, II. Chron. 5:13 as Follows: "It Came Even to Pass the Singers Were as One to Make One Sound in the Praise of the Lord."

THE temple was done. It was the very chorus of all magnificence and pomp. Splendor crowded against splendor. It was the diamond necklace of the earth. From the huge pillars crowned with leaves and flowers and rows of pomegranate wrought out in burnished metal, down even to the tongs and snuffers made out of pure gold, everything was as complete as the God-directed architect could make it. It seemed as if a vision from heaven had alighted on the mountains. The day for dedication came. Tradition says that there were in and around about the temple on that day two hundred thousand silver trumpets, forty thousand harps, forty thousand timbrels, and two hundred thousand singers; so that all modern demonstrations at Dusseldorf or Boston seem nothing compared with that. As this great sound surged up amid the precious stones of the temple, it must have seemed like the River of Life dashing against the amethyst of the wall of heaven. The sound arose, and God, as if to show that he was well pleased with the music which his children make in all ages, dropped into the midst of the temple a cloud of glory so overpowering that the officiating priests were obliged to stop in the midst of the services.

There has been much discussion as to where music was born. I think that at the beginning; "when the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy," that the earth heard the echo. The cloud on which the angel stood to celebrate the creation was the birthplace of song. The stars that glitter at night are only so many keys of celestial pearl, on which God's fingers play the music of the spheres. Inanimate nature is full of God's stringed and wind instruments. Silence itself—perfect silence—is only a musical rest in God's great anthem of worship. Wind among the leaves, insect humming in the summer air, the rush of billow upon beach, the ocean far out sounding its everlasting psalm, the bobolink on the edge of the forest, the quail whistling up from the grass, are music. While visiting Blackwell's Island, I heard, coming from a window of the lunatic asylum, a very sweet song. It was sung by one who had lost her reason, and I have come to believe that even the deranged and disordered elements of nature would make music to our ear, if we only had acuteness enough to listen. I suppose that even the sounds in nature that are discordant and repulsive make harmony in God's ear. You know that you may come so near to an orchestra that the sounds are painful instead of pleasurable, and I think that we stand so near devastating storm and frightful whirlwind, we cannot hear that which makes to God's ear and the ear of the spirits above us a music as complete as it is tremendous.

I propose to speak about sacred music, first showing you its importance and then stating some of the obstacles to its advancement.

I draw the first argument for the importance of sacred music from the fact that God commanded it. Through Paul he tells us to admonish one another to psalms and hymns and spiritual songs; through David he cries out: "Sing ye to God, all ye kingdoms of the earth." And there are hundreds of other passages I might name, proving that it is as much a man's duty to sing as it is his duty to pray. Indeed, I think there are more commands in the Bible to sing than there are to pray. God not only asks for the human voice, but for the instruments of music. He asks for the cymbal and the harp and the trumpet. And I suppose that in the last days of the church the harp, the lute, the trumpet, and all the instruments of music that have given their chief aid to the theater and bacchanal, will be brought by their masters and laid down at the feet of Christ and then sounded in the church's triumph on her way from suffering into glory. "Praise ye the Lord!" Praise him with your voices. Praise him with stringed instruments and with organs.

I draw another argument for the importance of this exercise from the impressiveness of the exercise. You know something of what secular music has achieved. You know it has made its impression upon governments, upon laws, upon literature, upon whole generations. One inspiring national air is worth thirty thousand men as a standing army. There comes a time in the battle when one bugle is worth a thousand muskets. In the earlier part of our civil war the government proposed to economize in bands of music, and many of them were sent home, but the generals in the army sent word to Washington: "You are making a very great mistake. We are falling back and falling back. We have not enough music." I have to tell you that no nation or church can afford to severely economize in music.

Why should we rob the programmes of worldly gaiety when we have so many appropriate songs and tunes composed in our own day, as well as that magnificent inheritance of church psalmody which has come down fragrant with the devotions of other generations—tunes no more worn out than when our great-grandfathers climbed up on them from the church pew to glory? Dear old souls, how they used to sing! And in those days there were certain tunes married to certain hymns and they have lived in peace a great while, these two old people, and we have no right to divorce them. Born as we have been amid this great wealth of church music, augmented by the compositions of artists in our day, we ought not to be tempted out of the sphere of Christian harmony, and try to seek unconsecrated sounds. It is absurd for a millionaire to steal.

Many of you are illustrations of what a sacred song can do. Through it you were brought into the kingdom of Jesus Christ. You stood out against the warning and the argument of the pulpit, but when, in the sweet words of Charles Wesley or John Newton or Toplady, the love of Jesus was sung to your soul, then you surrendered, as an armed castle that could not be taken by a host, lifts its windows to listen to a harp's trill. * * *

But I must now speak of some of the obstacles in the way of the advancement of this sacred music, and the first is that it has been impressed into the service of Satan. I am far from believing that music ought always to be positively religious. Refined art has opened places where music has been secularized, and lawfully so. The drawing room, the concert, by the gratification of pure taste and the production of harmless amusement and the improvement of talent, have become very forces in the advancement of our civilization. Music has as much right to laugh in Surrey Gardens as it has to pray in St. Paul's. In the kingdom of nature we have the glad fifing of the wind as well as the long-meter psalm of the thunder. But while all this is so, every observer has noticed that this art, which God intended for the improvement of the ear, and the voice, and the head, and the heart, has often been impressed into the service of error. Tartini, the musical composer, dreamed one night that Satan snatched from his hand an instrument and played upon it something very sweet—a dream that has often been fulfilled in our day, the voice and the instruments that ought to have been devoted to Christ, captured from the church and applied to the purposes of sin.

Another obstacle has been an inordinate fear of criticism. The vast majority of people singing in church never want anybody else to hear them sing. Everybody is waiting for somebody else to do his duty. If we all sang then the inaccuracies that are evident when only a few sang would be drowned out. God asks you to do as well as you can, and then if you get the wrong pitch or keep wrong time he will forgive any deficiency of the ear and imperfection of the voices. Angels will not laugh if you should lose your place in the musical scale or come in at the close a bar behind. There are three schools of singing, I am told—the German school, the Italian school, and the French school of singing. Now, I would like to add a fourth school, and that is the school of Christ. The voice of a contrite, broken heart, although it may not be able to stand human criticism, makes better music in God's ear than the most artistic performance when the heart is wanting. God calls on the beasts, on the cattle, on the dragons, to praise him, and we ought not to be behind the cattle and the dragons.

Another obstacle in the advancement of this art has been the erroneous notion that this part of the service could be conducted by delegation. Churches have said, "O, what an easy time we shall have. The minister will do the preaching, and the choir will do the singing, and we will have nothing to do." And you know as well as I that there are a great multitude of churches all through this land where the people are not expected to sing. The whole work is done by delegation of four or six or ten persons, and the audience are silent. In such a church in Syracuse, an old elder persisted in singing, and so the choir appointed a committee to go and ask the elder if he would not stop. You know that in many churches the choir are expected to do all the singing, and the great mass of the people are expected to be silent, and if you utter your voice you are interfering. In that church they stand, the four, with opera-glasses dangling at their side, singing "Rock of Ages, Cleft for Me," with the same spirit that, the night before on the stage, they took their part in the Grand Duchess or Don Giovanni.

My Christian friends, have we a right to delegate to others the discharge of this duty which God demands of us? Suppose that four wood-thrushes propose to do all the singing some bright day, when the woods are ringing with bird voices. It is decided that four wood-thrushes shall do all of the singing of the forest. Let all other voices keep silent. How beautifully the four warble! It is really fine music. But how long will you keep the forest still? Why, Christ won't come into that forest and look up, as he looked through the olives, and he would wave his hand and say, "Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord," and, keeping time with the stroke of innumerable wings, there would be five thousand bird voices leaping into the harmony. Suppose this delegation of musical performers were tried in heaven; suppose that four choice spirits should try to do the singing of the upper Temple. Hush now! thrones and dominions and principalities. David, be still, though you were the "sweet singer of Israel." Paul, keep quiet, though you have come to that crown of rejoicing. Richard Baxter, keep still, though this is the "Saints' Everlasting Rest." Four spirits now do all the singing. But how long would heaven be quiet? How long? "Hallelujah!" would cry some glorified Methodist from under the altar. "Praise the Lord!" would sing the martyrs from among the thrones. "Thanks be unto God who giveth us the victory!" a great multitude of redeemed spirits would cry—myriads of voices coming into the harmony and the one hundred and forty and four thousand breaking forth into one acclamation. Stop that loud singing! Stop! Oh, no; they cannot hear me. You might as well try to drown the thunder of the sky, or beat back the roar of the sea, for every soul in heaven has resolved to do its own singing. Alas! that we should have tried on earth that which they cannot do in heaven, and, instead of joining all our voices in the praise of the Most High God, delegating perhaps to unconsecrated men and women this most solemn and most delightful service.

Music ought to rush from the audience like the water from a rock—clear, bright, sparkling. If all the other part of the church service is dull, do not have the music dull. With so many thrilling things to sing about, away with all drawling and stupidity! There is nothing makes me so nervous as to sit in a pulpit and look off on an audience with their eyes three-fourths closed and their lips almost shut, mumbling the praises of God. During my recent absence I preached to a large audience, and all the music they made together did not equal one skylark. People do not sleep at a coronation. Do not let us sleep when we come to a Saviour's crowning. In order to a proper discharge of this duty, let us stand up, save as age or weakness or fatigue excuses us. Seated in an easy pew we cannot do this duty half so well as when, upright, we throw our whole body into it. Let our song be like an acclamation of victory. You have a right to sing. Do not surrender your prerogative.

We want to rouse all our families upon this subject. We want each family of our congregation to be a singing school. Childish petulance, obduracy and intractability would be soothed if we had more singing in the household, and then our little ones would be prepared for the great congregation on Sabbath day, their voices uniting with our voices in the praises of the Lord. After a shower there are scores of streams that come down the mountain side with voices rippling and silvery, pouring into one river, and then rolling in united strength to the sea. So I would have all the families in our church send forth the voice of prayer and praise, pouring it into the great tide of public worship that rolls on and on to empty into the great wide heart of God. Never can we have our church sing as it ought until our families sing as they ought.

There will be a great revolution on this subject in all our churches. God will come down by his Spirit and rouse up the old hymns and tunes that have not been more than half awake since the time of our grandfathers. The silent pews in the church will break forth into music, and when the conductor takes his place on the Sabbath Day there will be a great host of voices rushing into the harmony. My Christian friends, if we have no taste for this service on earth, what will we do in heaven, where they all sing, and sing forever? I would that our singing today might be like the Saturday night rehearsal for the Sabbath morning in the skies, and we might begin now, by the strength and by the help of God, to discharge a duty which none of us has fully performed. And now what more appropriate thing can I do than to give out the Doxology of the heavens; "Unto him who hath loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, to him be glory forever!"

Relative Truth.—All religions contain some good, some more than others, hence some of them are better than others.—Rev. Dr. Harcourt, Methodist, Philadelphia, Pa.

HISTORIC OLD WELL.

TO BE FILLED BECAUSE OF ITS DISEASE POWER.

A Great "Health Giving" Spring Found to Be Full of Sewage Bacteria—More Dangerous Than the Bengal Tiger.

THE great Northern Liberty life giving Ponce de Leon springs of eternal youth well, situated on 5th street, between I and K streets northwest, has been abandoned and filled up by orders of the commissioners, who found upon an analysis made of the water that instead of containing lithia in large quantities, it was the home of billions of sewage bacteria, says the Washington Post. This animal, while not formidable of shape, is even more dangerous than the Bengal tiger, or the Rocky Mountain goat, and acts as the advance agent of typhoid.

The great Northern Liberty well is as old as Washington itself, and some persons claim that it is even older, being one of the especial points of vantage noted in this locality by George Washington when he was traveling about the country looking for a site on which to found a city bearing his name. And it is further averred that when the father of his country was a resident of the newly founded city his body servant used to journey to the Northern Liberty well each morning with a jug, fill it with the clear, sparkling waters of the well, and take it home to be used as drinking water for the gallant general. And even further, it is stated that after a ball or reception, when the general's home had been the gathering place for convivial spirits, that the journey to the well was repeated several times in the course of the morning, and it is a well known fact that the general was never a sufferer from headaches. Knowing all these things, it is not strange that the inhabitants of the neighborhood should have gathered together around the old well a few days ago when the work of filling it up was begun and uttered protests loud and long against such an action. But the employes of the engineering department heeded not the pleadings of the multitude, and proceeded with their work the celebrated hole in the ground was soon no more.

The water of this well was supposed to have been identical with that sold from a private spring not more than 100 feet from it, and which is advertised as a panacea for all the ills that flesh is heir to. This water brings a market value of 25 cents a gallon, and it was suggested by many that with the well the spring might do more business. This suggestion carried no weight at the health office, and the water from the private spring may not be allowed to be dispensed throughout the city much longer, as the report of the health department for 1895 rates the spring as "suspicious—sewage bacteria," and it is understood that a recommendation will be made to the commissioners that it be closed.

Her Hand Was Saved.

From the Kansas City Journal: William Lorts, who was conductor on the Union Pacific passenger train which recently ran off a bridge near Byers, Colo., relates an incident of the wreck that closely trends upon the horrible. "The chair car," says Mr. Lorts, "was on end in the water. After we had carried the injured passengers out and were about to abandon the car, I heard faint groans. I took my lantern and climbed down into the car. I found a woman with her head just above the water. I got assistance and tried to lift her out, but she was fast, and we could not move her. I discovered that she was held fast by her hand between two seats. I called for an axe and told her I would have to cut her hand off to save her life, as the car was sinking fast. She looked at me piteously, but said nothing. I took off my coat and put it over her head so she could not see the cruel blows with the axe. Then she commenced to beg me not to chop off her arm. By pure accident I found a piece of iron down in the water and with this I managed to pry the seats far enough apart to release her. It was the heaviest lifting of my life. We carried her off the car, and as we reached safety the car sank from sight. Two seconds later and we would all have been drowned.

Papa's Mistake.

"What is your darling little baby crying about, Mrs. Stebs?" "Oh, her papa thought she wasn't old enough to notice, and went and bought her a 1895 bicycle. Just like a man!"—Detroit Free Press.

STATE FAIR JUDGES DECIDED

That Time and Labor Must Be Saved for Our Housekeepers.

The judges at the Iowa state fair were greatly surprised to find that there exists a vast, material difference between the various sewing machines now on the market, and that one particular make stands out pre-eminently in advance of all others.

Time and labor must be saved for our housekeepers, and with this object in view the judges carefully examined all of the sewing machines exhibited. They discovered that the "No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson" sews one-third faster than any vibrating shuttle sewing machine made, and, through the adoption of ball bearings was, by far, the lightest running of any machine exhibited. They unanimously granted to it the first premium.

Housekeepers, you cannot afford to sew by hand, neither should your lives be burdened with cheap, slow-sewing and hard-running sewing machines. Before purchasing a machine, write to Wheeler & Wilson Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill., for full particulars regarding their "New No. 9."

LAST MONTH

Of the Tennessee Centennial and Industrial Exposition.

The month of October closes this greatest of all Expositions ever held in the South, and next to the Columbian, the best ever held in this country. For the closing month, special attractions have been arranged, and the rates from all parts of the country have been made lower than ever before known. The location (Nashville, Tenn.) is on the main line of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, directly on its through car route between the North and South, and the trip in either direction via that city can be made as cheaply, if not cheaper, than via any other route. Ask your ticket agent for rates, or write to C. P. Atmore, General Passenger Agent, Louisville, Ky., for rates and information

A Prophecy.

"Do you think the New York team will be in at the death of the race for the pennant."

"Be in at the death?" replied the rooter; "they will be it."

HIS FLYBOOK.

It Is Dearer to the Angler Than Any Other Possession.

Is there anything closer to an angler's heart than his fly-book? I know of a case where a burglar, among other things, took a fly-book. He was arrested and speedily convicted and imprisoned. He cleared things out pretty well in the house, but the owner seemed to care nothing about the missing fur coats, sealskin sacks, silverware and other valuable lares and penates, but he did bewail the loss of his book of flies. The other things he could buy again, but to get together such an assortment of valuable flies seemed to him an impossible thing. He had been years collecting them, picking up odd ones here and there, until, for quality and variety his book could not be excelled. It was a fly storehouse, as it were. No matter where he intended fishing, or whether for trout, bass or salmon, he could always find a choice assortment to draw from with which to fill up a supplementary book. Although it was some time ago he yet bewails the loss of that fly-book. Many have been the efforts to get track of it, but all in vain. He has gone to the expense of sending to the prison, in a distant city, and endeavoring to prevail upon the convict to divulge the hiding place of the book, but without success. A persistent search of the pawnshops and periodical advertising have produced no better results.

There were flies in that book for trout and salmon in Irish waters; flies for the salmon and trout of the Scotch lakes and the English streams, and flies for the salmon of Norway. The favorites from Maine to California, and from one end of Canada to another, were collected in that wallet anything and everything from the featherdown midget with cobweb gut to the lordly salmon fly, absolutely irresistible to the lurking salmon deep down in the icy pools of the Cascapedia. There were flies in that book on which famous bass, trout and salmon had been hooked, each fly carrying with it memories of battles fought from canoes among the rushing, swirling waters.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

MISERLY WITH DYING BREATH.

Passing of Halte Sven, Worth a Quarter of a Million.

From the Chicago Times-Herald: "Halte Sven," a character of the North Side for some fifty years, died at the Alexian Brothers' hospital last Thursday as the result of a fall from the second story of a building at Hobble street and Milton avenue. "Halte Sven"—which means "Lame Sven"—was a miser. His name was S. U Johnson, but few knew it. He owned a score of apartment houses on the North Side and his wealth is estimated at $250,000. But the old man had lived for years on what he could find in the garbage boxes of the neighborhood. If any of his Swedish countrymen offered him a drink he requested to be given the coin it would cost and pocketed it with thanks.

Many stories are told of "Halte Sven's" peculiarities. One day he called at one of his handsome apartment houses, and a servant who did not know him came to the door. She assumed he was a tramp, and without questioning him gave him some food. He eagerly devoured the food and then astounded the girl by requesting her to tell her master the landlord had been there for the rent. He died bewailing the expense incurred at the Alexian Brothers' hospital, and almost with his last breath begged to be removed to the free County hospital.

A sister in Minneapolis is his only heir.

The Bird of Paradise.

A creature of most gorgeous beauty is the bird of paradise. As an ornament of beauty and grace, the bird of the sun—or bird of God, as it is sometimes called by the people of Ternate—stands unrivaled, and no bird has given rise to more romantic and fabulous tales; such, for instance, as the ridiculous assertion that the bird of paradise lives all its life long on the wing and in the air, and is born without legs. The natives of Gilolo and New Guinea have a curious custom of cutting off the legs of all dead birds of paradise offered for sale or barter, and this may have given rise to the legend as to the bird being without legs. The true reason, however, for this peculiar operation is that the birds are supposed to be much better preserved, and the natives are also enabled to more easily wear them as ornamets to their helmets in mock battles.

A Misguided Being.

"Charley," said young Mrs. Torkins, "I wish that the United States senate were in session."

"I don't see why."

"Because it doesn't cost anything to get in."

"But what makes you want to get in?"

"You said yesterday that sometimes the proceedings of the senate were a perfect farce. And you know they do say so many clever things at farces."—Washington Star.

That Terrible Scourge.

Malarial disease is invariably supplemented by disturbance of the liver, the bowels, the stomach and the nerves. To the removal of both the cause and its effects Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is fully adequate. It "fills the bill" as no other remedy does, performing its work thoroughly. Its ingredients are pure and wholesome, and it admirably serves to build up a system broken by ill health and shorn of strength. Constipation, liver and kidney complaint and nervousness are conquered by it.

In this workaday world few women are so placed that physical exertion is not constantly demanded of them in their daily life.

Mrs. Pinkham makes a special appeal to mothers of large families whose work is never done, and many of whom suffer and suffer for lack of intelligent aid.

To women, young or old, rich or poor, Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., extends her invitation of free advice. Oh, women! do not let your lives be sacrificed when a word from Mrs. Pinkham, at the first approach of weakness, may fill your future years with healthy joy.

MRS. A. C. BUHLER, 1123 North Albany avenue, near Humboldt Park, Chicago, Ill., says: "I am fifty-one years old and have had twelve children, and my youngest is eight years old. I have been suffering for some time with a terrible weakness; that bearing-down feeling was dreadful, and I could not walk any distance. I began the use of Lydia E. Rev. Haefner goes to Parker, S. D. This is the latest arrangement.

Wm. Burgess has bills up for a public sale of all of the stock on his farm, 3 miles northeast of Goodell, Saturday, Oct. 16th. He has rented his farm for the coming year.

[illegible] to the boat and returns [illegible] a billet of wood. He stoops to [illegible]e the wood on the fire, and stops. [illegible]ank is dreaming, and murmuring in his dream. A woman's name passes his lips. Frank is in England again—at the ball—whispering to Clara the confession of his love.

Over Richard Wardour's face there passes the shadow of a deadly thought. He rises from the fire; he takes the wood back to the boat. His iron strength is shaken, but it still holds out. They are drifting nearer and nearer to the open sea. He can launch the boat without help; he can take the wood and the fuel with him. The sleeper on the iceberg is the man who has robbed him of Clara—who has wrecked the hope and the happiness of his life. Leave the man in his sleep, and let him die!

So the tempter whispers. Richard Wardour tries his strength on the boat. It moves; he has got it under control. He stops, and looks around. Beyond him is the open sea. Beneath him is the man who has robbed him of Clara. The shadow of the deadly thought grows and darkens over his face. He waits with his hands on the boat—waits and thinks.

The iceberg drifts slowly; over the black water; through the ashy light. Minute by minute the dying fire sinks. Minute by minute the deathly cold creeps nearer to the sleeping man. And still Richard Wardour waits—waits and thinks.

They told how he ate, drank, slept, talked, walked, winked, smiled, dressed and undressed. The result, we believe, was the supremest disgust the city ever felt. If it was not flunkeyism it was the silliest of all possible slush by way of personal revenge or political opposition; and the only man of the crowd who didn't suffer from it was Mr. Croker.

Wilhelmina, the young girl who will presently be queen of Holland, refuses to marry the prince her mother picked out for her and insists on choosing her own time for marrying and likewise the man who is to be her husband. That is sheer rebellion. No prospective queen and no real queen has any right to such privileges. They are reserved solely for the young sovereigns of the world who have nothing to do with affairs of state.

What a picture of a mechanical education which cares for figures and not for faith; for marks and not for manliness; for catch question more than for a clear setting forth of the fundamentals of morality!

THE NEWS IN IOWA

NOVAK'S STORY IS REVEALED.

Death of Murray Was an Accident According to It.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Oct. 8.—C. C. Perrin, the detective who captured Frank A. Novak, who is charged with the murder of Edward Murray, together with arson and conspiracy, has made a detailed report to the Thiel agency and this report has just been made public. It is a very interesting account of the detective's trip to Klondyke and his return, together with a confession made by Novak to him. Novak, in this alleged confession, is made to claim that he had a bottle of whisky in his store, heavily charged with morphine, for the benefit of robbers who might break into his store, and that after he and Murray had entered the store on that night, he went below to fix up the fire and that Murray drank a large part of the contents of the bottle. He discovered it when he returned up stairs. He says he placed Murray in bed and then went down stairs and lay down on a counter and fell asleep, and that when he awoke the store was on fire. He claims to have made two attempts to rescue Murray, but was unable to do so. Fearing his story would not be believed, he fled.

QUADE'S FAMILY ARRESTED

Wife, Daughter and Son Held fo Investigation.

MANSON, Oct. 8.—Sheriff White arrested Mrs. Fred Quade, daughte Mary and son Anton, on an informa tion sworn out by Constable Richmond as alleged accessories to the murde of Fred Quade. At the preliminary trial they will undoubtedly waive examination, and the case will be brought before the grand jury a Rockwell City. Quade was killed by a gunshot while sleeping at a table in his house late at night. He had quarreled with his daughter, who was in a delicate condition. A gun was found on the premises, one barrel having been recently discharged. The large number of suspicious circumstances that have come to light warrant the action taken.

REPUBLICANS IN COURT.

Wright-Hancock Election Contest Appealed From State Board.

DES MOINES, Oct, 8.—Hancock county republicans are not content with the decision of the state elections board that the name of F. C. Hartshorn, of Wright county, shall go on the ticket as the nominee of the republicans. M. R. Chambers, the Hancock county nominee, appeared in the district court of Polk county and secured a writ of certiorari, commanding the state board to appear with the records before Judge Spurrier for a review of the case. An injunction restraining the board from certifying Hartshorn's name to the auditors of Hancock and Wright counties was issued, to hold good pending the decision of the certiorari case.

BEATEN AND ROBBED.

Washington Man Found in an Alley Bound and Gagged.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Harvey Cherry, who had just returned from Nebraska, where he sold his farm and had $9,000 on his person, was waylaid by three footpads at an early morning hour, knocked senseless and robbed of the money and a valuable gold watch. He was found gagged and bound in an alley, almost dead from loss of blood from an ugly gash in the head. He can give no explanation of the affair and cannot describe his assailants. A reward of $100 has been offered for the guilty parties.

The Mysterious Murder of Quade.

ROCKWELL CITY, Oct. 10.—The majority of the neighbors and friends of the Quade family think that whoever is responsible for the ruin of Mary the eldest daughter, is the man who committed the murder of Fred Quade for the purpose of shielding himself from a similar fate, which would have overtaken him, had Mr. Quade lived to learn the truth concerning his daughter. Mary still refuses to divulge the name of the author of her ruin.

Laylander a Poor Shot.

CEDAR FALLS, Oct. 9.—Burglars entered the residence of O. J. Laylander, superintendent of city schools, entrance being effected through a kitchen window. Twenty-five dollars in cash, besides an equal amount of drafts and school orders, were taken. Superintendent Laylander awoke and fired two shots at the retiring burglars, but missed his mark. There is no clue to the guilty parties.

Fire at New Providence.

NEW PROVIDENCE, Oct. 10.—A few days ago a large barn belonging to Abe Hincheon, living in the southwest part of New Providence, was burned, together with one horse, 2,000 bushels of oats, 250 bushels of rye, fifty tons of hay, new binder, mower, top buggy, three sets of double harness and a windmill

PROBABLE MURDER.

Farnhamville Merchant Shot and Seriously Wounded.

ROCKWELL CITY, Oct. 8.—Burglars entered the general store of Hough, Smith & Felter at Farnhamville. Hough's residence is connected by a burglar alarm, and being aroused, he hastened to the store, opened the door and saw three men. Hough fired two shots at them and then stepped out in the street and called for help. The burglars rushed to the front door and shot him, one ball taking effect in his neck near the jugular vein. Hough went into convulsions and the burglars made their escape. Officers were at once notified, but their is no clue, no arrests have been made. This store has been visited five or six times by burglars in the past few years, and one or two men have served time in the penitentiary for the offense, and suspicion points to them as the probable guilty parties upon this occasion. Hough is still alive, with little hope for his recovery.

YELLOW FEVER SCARE.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—The city council held a conference with the local members of the legislature and it was resolved to ask the governor to place $50,000 at the disposal of the board of health to aid in the fever fight.

OCEAN SPRINGS, Miss., Oct. 5.—Surgeon Murray returned from Scranton and reports between forty and fifty cases of fever there, with four deaths.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Two new cases of yellow fever are reported at Nittayuma, Miss.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct 5.—Refugees from the yellow fever stricken districts of the south who come into Indiana are to receive attention from the boards of health hereafter.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 7.—Yesterday was a record breaker. The board of health officially announces that during the twenty-four hours ending at 9 p. m. there were: Cases of yellow fever, 46; deaths, 5; total cases to date, 425; total deaths from yellow fever to date, 43; total cases absolutely recovered, 134; total cases under treatment, 248. Advices from Edwards and Biloxi, Miss., state that the disease continues to spread.

KILLED FOUR THOUSAND.

Terrible Slaughter in a Battle With Brazilian Troops.

RIO JANEIRO, Oct. 11.—Late reports from Canudos place the number of persons killed in battle there at 4,000. Reports also state that the fanatics now admit that Antonio Conselheiro, their leader, was killed. Few details of the battle have been received, but there is no doubt that the fight was one of the largest in number of persons killed that ever occurred in Brazil. While there is a probability that the number of dead is less than now estimated, reports show that the battle was literally a slaughter of the fanatics, who were hemmed in on all sides by the government troops, and, armed principally with knives and swords, were helpless under the steady fire of rifles of the soldiers. This one-sided fighting continued for several hours and at the end of that time hundreds of fanatics lay dead in heaps all over the ground which they had so long held from the government. The Brazilian order was to "annihilate the fanatics," and it was obeyed to the last of the ability of her soldiers. Conselheiro, it is authoritatively stated, was killed as he urged his forces on to the last stand for their lives.

VICTORIOUS CUBANS.

Heavy Losses Sustained by the Spaniards in a Recent Fight.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—The Herald's Havana special says: A big battle occurred October 2, in Camerone hills, not far from Mantanzas, between the Spanish under General Molina and the rebels under the command of Betancourt, Sanquilley and Raoull Arango. The Herald's correspondent in Mantanzas obtained an account of the fight from a Spanish official who was present. From this it appears that the rebel infantry was strongly entrenched in an almost inaccessible position on the hills, and all efforts to dislodge them were futile, resulting only in heavy loss to the attacking forces. The insurgents had only a few men killed and jeered and taunted the Spanish during the whole engagement. Molina nearly met death. Enraged at his failure he returned to attack the next day, but with no better success. Large numbers of wounded and dying Spanish soldiers were brought into Mantanzas.

DEFICIENCY OF $5,000,000.

Brooklyn City is in a Bad Hole According to Experts.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Comptroller Fitch's expert accountants, who have been at work investigating the records and accounts in Brooklyn preparatory to consolidation have found discrepancies in accounts amounting to $5,000,000. The officials of Brooklyn deny that there is or has been any malfeasance, and allege that the discrepancies reported by Comptroller Fitch's experts are due in large part to the defective system of bookkeeping followed in the towns which were recently annexed to Brooklyn.

Nebraska Ballot Contest.

LINCOLN, Oct. 11.—Secretary of State Porter, after listening all day to the arguments of the respective protestors, decided that both the free silver republicans and national democrats were entitled to a place on the official ballot. It is said an appeal will be taken by both sides to the supreme court, but the sentiment seems to be against such a course.

GLEN FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 9.—John R. Gentry and Robert J. broke the pacing team record, going the mile in faultless style in 2:08. This was done after the pair had been sent a mile in 2:11, and before the close of the day's sport, Gentry, with running mate, paced a mile in 2:03¾.

The party consisted of two Englishmen and ninety Ascaris.

Columbus, Ohio, dispatch: The time within which state tickets must be qualified and presented to the secretary of state for insertion on the Australian ballot has closed. Eight tickets will be presented on this ballot to the voters of Ohio, viz: Republican, democratic, regular prohibition, liberal prohibition, gold democratic, populist, negro protective and socialist. The last six are not likely to secure 60,000 votes altogether.

The friends of Captain General Weyler made a grand rally in his behalf at Havana recently and did all they could possibly do to prevent his recall to Spain. At a meeting at which many of the wealthier class of Spaniards were present resolutions indorsing General Weyler were adopted with great enthusiasm and a cable message was sent to the government of Madrid announcing that the representatives of the trading, mercantile and industrial communities were satisfied with the course followed by Captain General Weyler looking to an early and complete pacification of Cuba and expressing fear that his recall will delay the pacification. It was further agreed to organize a public demonstration in General Weyler's honor.

A dispatch from Tacoma says: The steamer Victoria brings news of the most disastrous floods that have visited China for many years. Sixty villages near Tung Chou, containing over 80,000 inhabitants, have been destroyed by floods and the people either drowned or forced to flee. No means of finding out how many thousands have been drowned, but the number is estimated by Chinese authorities at 15,000 to 20,000. The flooded district is within twelve miles of Pekin, the capital of China. As a rule, Chinese officials make very little stir when a calamity like this happens, but the proximity of the disaster has resulted in its being brought to the attention of the emperor, who has ordered that all possible relief be given.

Yokohama papers received at Tacoma contain full accounts of a severe storm which passed over the country on September 4, and reports of great havoc are coming in from all quarters. At the latest date 376 houses were totally destroyed in Tokio, 7,728 partially damaged and 14,043 submerged. In Shidzouka there were 1,060 houses demolished, 4,000 seriously damaged, thirty-eight persons killed and forty-two injured. At Toyama 750 houses were flooded, bridges washed away, the rice crop ruined and other damage done. An American sailing vessel went ashore at Awagone and a number of lives were lost. At Yejiri the whole town is in ruins. In Koishikawa 1,500 houses were submerged, among them the Presbyterian mission and Baptist schools. Most of the legation buildings were badly damaged.

"I have a casualty to report," said the captain, "which diminishes our numbers by one. My second lieutenant, who was to have joined the exploring party, has had a fall on the ice. Judging by what the quartermaster tells me, I am afraid the poor fellow has broken his leg."

"I will supply his place," cried a voice at the other end of the hut.

Everybody looked round. The man who had spoken so was Richard Wardour.

Crayford instantly interfered—so vehemently as to astonish all who heard him.

"No!" he said. "Not you, Richard, not you."

"Why not?" Wardour asked sternly.

"Why not, indeed?" added Captain Helding. "Wardour is the very man to be useful on a long march. He is in perfect health, and he is the best shot among us. I was on the point of proposing him myself."

Crayford failed to show his customary respect for his superior officer. He openly disputed the captain's conclusions.

"Wardour has no right to volunteer," he rejoined. "It has been settled, Captain Helding, that chance shall decide who is to go and who is to stay."

"And chance has decided it," said Wardour. "Do you think we are going to cast the dice again, and give an officer of the Sea-Mew a chance of replacing an officer of the Wanderer? There is a vacancy in our party, not in yours; and we claim the right of filling it as we please. I volunteer, and my captain backs me. Whose authority is to keep me here after that?"

"Gently, Wardour," said Captain Helding "A man who is in the right can afford to speak with moderation." He turned to Crayford. "You must admit yourself," he continued, "that Wardour is right this time. The missing man belongs to my command, and in common justice one of my officers ought to supply his place."

It was impossible to dispute the matter further. The dullest man present could see that the captain's reply was unanswerable. In sheer despair, Crayford took Frank's arm and led him aside a few steps. The last chance left of parting the two men was the chance of appealing to Frank.

"My dear boy," he began, "I want to say one friendly word to you on the subject of your health. I have already, if you remember, expressed my doubts whether you are strong enough to make one of an exploring party. I feel these doubts more strongly that ever at this moment. Will you take the advice of a friend who wishes you well?"

Wardour had followed Crayford. Wardour roughly interposed before Frank could interpose.

"Let him alone!"

Crayford paid no heed to the interruption. He was too earnestly bent on withdrawing Frank from the expedition to notice anything that was said or done by the persons about him.

"Don't, pray don't, risk hardships which you are unfit to bear!" he went on entreatingly. "Your place can be easily filled. Change your mind, Frank. Stay here with me."

Again Wardour interfered. Again he called out, "Leave him alone!" more roughly than ever. Still deaf and blind to every consideration but one, Crayford pressed his entreaties on Frank.

"You owned yourself just now that you were not well seasoned to fatigue," he persisted. "You feel (you must feel) how weak that last illness has left you. You know (I am sure you know) how unfit you are to brave exposure to cold and long marches over the snow."

Irritated beyond endurance by Crayford's obstinacy—seeing, or thinking he saw, signs of yielding in Frank's face—Wardour so far forgot himself as to seize Crayford by the arm and attempt to drag him away from Frank. Crayford turned and looked at him.

"Richard," he said, very quietly, "you are not yourself. I pity you. Drop your hand."

Wardour relaxed his hold with something of the sullen submission of a wild animal to its keeper. The momentary silence which followed gave Frank an opportunity of speaking at last.

"I am gratefully sensible, Crayford," he began, "of the interest which you take in me——"

"And you will follow my advice?" Crayford interposed eagerly.

"My mind is made up, old friend," Frank answered, firmly and sadly. "Forgive me for disappointing you. I am appointed to the expedition. With the expedition I go." He moved nearer to Wardour. In his innocence of all suspicion, he clapped Wardour heartily on the shoulder. "When I feel the fatigue," said poor simple Frank, "you will help me, comrade—won't you? Come along!"

Wardour snatched his gun out of the hands of the sailor who was carrying it for him. His dark face became suddenly irradiated with a terrible joy.

"Come!" he said. "Over the snow and over the ice! Come! where no human footsteps have ever trodden, and where no human trace is ever left."

Blindly, instinctively, Crayford made an effort to part them. His brother officers, standing near, pulled him back. They looked at each other anxiously. The merciless cold, striking its victims in various ways, had struck in some instances at their reason first. Everybody loved Crayford. Was he, too, going on the dark way that others had taken before him? They forced him to seat himself on one of the lockers. "Steady, old fellow!" they said kindly—"steady!" Crayford yielded, writhing inwardly under a sense of his own helplessness. What in God's name could he do? Could he denounce Wardour to Captain Helding on bare suspicion—without so much as the shadow of a proof to justify what he said? The captain would decline to insult one of his officers by even mentioning the monstrous accusation to him. The captain would conclude, as others had already concluded, that Crayford's mind was giving way under stress of cold and privation. No hope, literally, no hope now but in the numbers of the expedition. Officers and men, they all liked Frank. As long as they could stir hand or foot they would help him on the way—they would see that no harm came to him.

The word of command was given; the door was thrown open; the hut emptied rapidly. Over the merciless white snow—under the merciless black sky—the exploring party began to move. The sick and helpless men, whose last hope of rescue centered in their departing messmates, cheered faintly. Some few whose days were numbered sobbed and cried like women. Frank's voice faltered as he turned back at the door to say his last words to the friend who had been a father to him.

"God bless you, Crayford!"

Crayford broke away from the officers near him, and, hurrying forward, seized Frank by both hands. Crayford held him as if he would never let him go.

"God preserve you, Frank! I would give all I have in the world to be with you. Good-by! Good-by!"

Frank waved his hand—dashed away the tears that were gathered in his eyes—and hurried out. Crayford called after him, the last, the only, warning that he could give:

"While you can stand, keep with the main body, Frank!"

Wardour, waiting till the last—Wardour, following Frank through the snow-drift—stopped, stepped back, and answered Crayford at the door:

"While he can stand, he keeps with me!"

CHAPTER XII.

LONE! alone on the Frozen Deep!

The Arctic sun is rising dimly in the dreary sky. The beams of the cold northern moon, mingling strangely with the dawning light, clothe the snowy plains in hues of livid gray. An ice-field on the far horizon is moving slowly southward in the spectral light. Nearer, a stream of open water rolls its slow black waves past the edges of the ice. Nearer still, following the drift, an iceberg rears its crags and pinnacles to the sky; here, glittering in the moonbeams; there, looming dim and ghostlike in the ashy light.

Midway on the long sweep of the lower slope of the iceberg, what objects rise and break the desolate monotony of the scene? In this awful solitude can signs appear which tell of human life? Yes! The black outline of a boat just shows itself, hauled up on the berg. In an ice-cavern behind the boat, the last red embers of a dying fire flicker from time to time over the figures of two men. One is seated, resting his back against the side of the cavern. The other lies prostrate with his head on his comrade's knee. The first of these men is awake, and thinking. The second reclines, with his still white face turned up to the sky—sleeping or dead. Days and days since, these two have been given up by their weary and failing companions as doomed and lost. He who sits thinking is Richard Wardour. He who lies sleeping or dead is Frank Aldersley.

The iceberg drifts slowly; over the black water; through the ashy light. Minute by minute the dying fire sinks. Minute by minute the deathly cold creeps nearer and nearer to the lost men.

Richard Wardour rouses himself from his thoughts, looks at the still white face beneath him, and places his hand on Frank's heart. It still beats feebly. Give him his share of the food and fuel still stored in the boat, and Frank may live through it. Leave him neglected where he lies, and his death is a question of hours, perhaps minutes—who knows?

Richard Wardour lifts the sleeper's head and rests it against the cavern side. He goes to the boat and returns with a billet of wood. He stoops to place the wood on the fire, and stops. Frank is dreaming, and murmuring in his dream. A woman's name passes his lips. Frank is in England again—at the ball—whispering to Clara the confession of his love.

Over Richard Wardour's face there passes the shadow of a deadly thought. He rises from the fire; he takes the wood back to the boat. His iron strength is shaken, but it still holds out. They are drifting nearer and nearer to the open sea. He can launch the boat without help; he can take the food and the fuel with him. The sleeper on the iceberg is the man who has robbed him of Clara—who has wrecked the hope and the happiness of his life. Leave the man in his sleep, and let him die!

So the tempter whispers. Richard Wardour tries his strength on the boat. It moves; he has got it under control. He stops, and looks around. Beyond him is the open sea. Beneath him is the man who has robbed him of Clara. The shadow of the deadly thought grows and darkens over his face. He waits with his hands on the boat—waits and thinks.

The iceberg drifts slowly; over the black water; through the ashy light. Minute by minute the dying fire sinks. Minute by minute the deathly cold creeps nearer to the sleeping man. And still Richard Wardour waits—waits and thinks.

CHAPTER XIII.

THE spring has come. The air of the April night just lifts the leaves of the sleeping flowers. The moon is queen in the cloudless and starless sky. The stillness of the midnight hour is abroad, over land and over sea.

In a villa on the westward shore of the Isle of Wight, the glass doors which lead from the drawing room to the garden are yet open. The shaded lamp yet burns on the table. A lady sits by the lamp reading. From time to time she looks out into the garden and sees the white-robed figure of a young girl pacing slowly to and fro in the soft brightness of the moonlight on the lawn. Sorrow and suspense have set their mark on the lady. Not rivals only, but friends who formerly admired her, agree now that she looks worn and aged. The more merciful judgment of others remark, with equal truth, that her eyes, her hair, her simple grace and grandeur of movement have lost but little of their olden charms. The truth lies, as usual, between the two extremes. In spite of sorrow and suffering, Mrs. Crayford is the beautiful Mrs. Crayford still.

The delicious silence of the hour is softly disturbed by the voice of the young lady in the garden.

"Go to the piano, Lucy. It is a night for music. Play something that is worthy of the night."

Mrs. Crayford looks round at the clock on the mantel-piece.

"My dear Clara, it is past twelve! Remember what the doctor told you. You ought to have been in bed an hour ago."

"Half an hour, Lucy—give me half an hour more! Look at the moonlight on the sea. Is it possible to go to bed on such a night as this? Play something, Lucy—something spiritual and divine."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Only a Little Premature.

"I can't hear a suit that isn't pending," said a judge to a young lawyer who was seeking advice.

England Will Not Join in the Sealing Conference.

LONDON, Oct. 8.—The foreign office has informed Ambassador Hay as a finality that Great Britain will not participate in the sealing conference with representatives of Russia and Japan, on the ground that they were not sufficiently interested in the question to entitle them to representation. The British government, however, asserted a willingness to confer with the United States alone. It is thought probable that this will result in two meetings, one between the United States and Japan and Russia, the other between the United States, Great Britain and Canada. The withdrawal of Great Britain from the joint conference is due to Canadian objections.

A SCORE BURNED TO DEATH.

Manitoba Forest Fires Are Spreading Into Dakota.

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 8.—The forest fire that has been raging in Manitoba close to the boundary line for the past ten days has broken out more furiously than ever. Ten or twelve persons are reported to have been burned to death, and the fire is rapidly spreading over the boundary line into Dakota. Up to this time the fire has been confined to the Canadian side of the boundary, but the swath on the line between the United States and Manitoba has been obliterated and fear is entertained that the fire will get beyond the control of the settlers. At Beauzjour, Manitoba, seven persons lost their lives.

Bimetallism Soon to Be Settled.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—The British government's answer to the proposals of the United States and France for bimetallism by international agreement will probably be ready within a fortnight. Possibly it will be delivered even earlier, as there is evidence that the ministers are disturbed by the prolongation of the controversy over the monetary question in the press and wish to put an end to it.

LITERARY NOTES.

The October number of The Delineator is called the autumn number, and its representation of the new Russian blouse-waists, fan-back skirts, and all the other autumn novelties in dress modes and millinery is made complete by a series of artistic color-plates. The literary features include a bright and crisp novelette, "A Triumph of Mind," by Anna Eichberg King, author of the captivating "Kitwyk Stories."

McClure's Magazine for October will contain a description of what must be one of the most curious and thrilling spectacles in all the world—an elephant round up in Siam. The article will be illustrated from a series of photographs showing the various steps in the dangerous proceeding of driving 200 wild elephants into a corral and choosing out such as desired for the royal elephant stables and bringing them into subjection.

Harper's Bazar of October 2d, as is usual with the first number of the month, gives additional space to the "Department of Women's Clubs," which is rapidly assuming the form of an authoritative resume of this most important branch of social activity.

The interiors of one thousand of the most attractive homes in the United States have been photographed by The Ladies' Home Journal. One hundred of the best of these pictures will be reproduced in that magazine. The first article of the series—"Inside of a Hundred Homes"—will appear in the October Journal.

An article describing and illustrating science-teaching in the University of Chicago will occupy a prominent place in Appletons' Popular Science Monthly for October. Prof. Frederick Starr, the author, is not the least among the forces tending to advance this new university to the front rank, and his description of its aims and methods is sympathetic as well as comprehensive.

In addition to special literary features, in the October Atlantic appears the first installment of a new novel by Mr. F. Hopkinson Smith, which he entitles "Caleb West." Mr. Smith regards this as by far his best effort in fiction, and the reader will find that in its opening chapters he is introduced into the vigorous out-door life of lighthouse builders, whose courage and manliness are of the primary sort.

The Art Amateur for October is one of the most superb numbers yet issued by that magazine. The color plate which accompanies it, "Cherry Ripe," shows us a charming little girl, in white dress and bonnet and pink silk coat, carrying a basket of cherries on the left arm, while with the right hand she holds aloft a small bunch. A more delightful child picture it would be hard to imagine.

"The Young Mountaineers" is the title of a neat volume of short stories by Charles Egbert Craddock (Mary N. Murfree), author of "In the Tennessee Mountains," "Down the Ravine," "The Prophet of the Great Smoky Mountains," and a host of other equally good books. The volume contains ten excellent short stories of rare merit, and all who have read the works of this charming writer will readily believe us when we say that no stories are more entertaining than thi[illegible] collection. A MISSIONARY MEDICINE.

Cleanliness begins within. If a man isn't clean inside, he is far from Godliness. A constipated sinner is a stench in the nostrils of the Deity. A man whose food sours in his stomach, and whose liver is leaden, can't help looking at the world hatefully with jaundiced eye, and conjuring up evil thoughts in his tortured brain. Cleanliness of person begets cleanliness of thought. Cascarets, Candy Cathartic are the missionary medicine which purifies men's bodies and minds. Pure, fragrant, palatable, mild and positive, they clean out the intestinal canal, stimulate the liver and strengthen the bowels. Then a man enjoys again feeling of charity and brotherly love for his fellows and recommends others to take Cascarets and be as happy as he.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlian's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therin, we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results, is puting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty. Libertytown, Maryland. IOWA'S NEW CODE.

Changes in Iowa's code have gone into effect, and some of them may be important. The ballot law is changed. Now there are but two ways recognized in marking. One is by marking the circle at the head of the ticket, which shall be counted a vote for the straight ticket, and the other way is by marking in the square in front of the name of each person for whom the voter wishes to cast his ballot. No candidate will be allowed to have his name on the official ballot in more than one place.

The cigarette mulct tax of $300 a year will cause a decided decline in cigarette paper, and coffin nails will be an unknown quantity. No dealer can afford to pay $300 mulct tax, as profits are too small.

The manufacturing law permits the manufacture of intoxicating liquors, in the state of Iowa, which such manufacture had not heretofore been allowed under the old liquor law.

The medical law requires a stronger test of a man's abilities before he is allowed to practice medicine, and traveling medicine man and "herb doctors" get nearly a knock out."

The municipal law has been rewritten with a view to clearness and accuracy. No money can be appropriated by the city council, except by ordinance. New license powers are given to municipal corporations.

There are special changes in the school laws. Instead of six members of the board of education, there will be seven and three electors will be elected to succeed the two whose terms will expire. It is provided that a parent or guardian sending a child to a school in another district than his own, and paying there-for, shall have the privilege of deducting the amount of cash expense from his school tax in his district.

Those who believe chronic diarrhoea to be incurable should read what Mr. P. E. Grisham, of Gaars Mills, La., has to say on the subject, viz.: I have been a sufferer from chronic diarrhoea ever since the war and have tried all kinds of medicines for it. At last I found a remedy that effected a cure and that was Chamberlin's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy." This medicine can always be depended upon for Colic, cholera morbus, dysentry and diarrhoea. It is pleasant to take and never fails to effect a cure. 25 and 50 cent sizes for sale by J. L. Harr.

You can't afford to risk your life by allowing a cold to develope into pneumonia or consumption. Instant relief and a certain cure are afforded by One Minute Cough Cure. Harr.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"CORN HUSKING TIME," SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

From the Following Text: Job, Chapter V., Verse 26: "As a Shock of Corn Cometh In in His Season."—The Harvest Waiting for the Lord.

GOING at the rate of forty miles the hour a few days ago I caught this sermon. If you have recently been in the fields of Pennsylvania, or New Jersey, or New York, or New England, or any of the country districts, you know that corn nearly all cut. The sharp knife struck through the stalks and left them all along the fields until a man came with a bundle of straw and twisted a few of these wisps of straw into a band, and then gathering up as much of the corn as he could compass with his arms, he bound it with this wisp of straw, and then stood it in the field in what is called a shock.

It is estimated that there are now several billion bushels of corn standing in the shock, waiting to be husked. Sometime during the latter part of next month, the farmers will gather, one day on one farm, another day on another farm, and they will put on their rough husking apron, and they will take the husking peg, which is a piece of iron with a leather loop fastened to the hand, and with it unsheath the corn from the husk and toss it into the golden heap. Then the wagons will come along and take it to the corn crib.

How vividly to all those of us who were born in the country comes the remembrance of husking time. We waited for it as for a gala day in the year. It was called a frolic. The trees having for the most part shed their foliage, the farmers waded through the fallen leaves and came through the keen morning air to the gleeful company. The frosts which had silvered everything during the night began to melt off of the top of the corn shocks. While the farmers were waiting for others, they stood blowing their breath through their fingers, or threshing their arms arounds their body to keep up warmth of circulation.

Roaring mirth greeted the late farmer as he crawled over the fence. Joke and repartee and rustic salutation abounded. All ready, now! The men take hold the shock of corn and hurl it prostrate, while the moles and mice which have secreted themselves there for warmth attempt escape. The withe of straw is unwound from the corn shock, and the stalks, heavy with the wealth of grain, are rolled into two bundles, between which the husker sits down. The husking peg is thrust in until it strikes the corn, and then the fingers rip off the sheathing of the ear, and there is a crack as the root of the corn is snapped off from the husk, and the grain, disimprisoned, is hurled up into the sunlight.

The air is so tonic, the work is so very exhilarating, the company is so blithe, that some laugh, and some shout and some sing, and some banter, and some tease a neighbor for a romantic ride along the edge of the woods in an eventide, in a carriage that holds but two, and some prophesy as to the number of bushels to the field, and others go into competition as to which shall rifle the most corn shocks before sundown.

After a while, the dinner horn sounds from the farmhouse, and the table is surrounded by a group of jolly and hungry men. From all the pantries and the cellars and the perches of fowl on the place the richest dainties come, and there is carnival and neighborhood reunion, and a scene which fills our memory, part with smiles but more with tears as we remember that the farm belongs now to other owners, and other hands gather in the fields, and many of those who mingled in that merry husking scene have themselves been reaped "like as a shock of corn cometh in in his season."

There is a difference of opinion as to whether the Orientals knew anything about the corn as it stands in our fields; but recent discoveries have found out that the Hebrew knew all about Indian maize, for there have been grains of the corn picked up out of ancient crypts and exhumed from hiding places where they were put down many centuries ago, and they have been planted in our time and have come up just such Indian maize as we raise in New York and Ohio; so I am right when I say that my text may refer to a shock of corn just as you and I bound it, just as you and I threw it, just as you and I husked it. There may come some practical and useful and comforting lessons to all our souls, while we think of coming in last "like a shock of corn coming in in his season."

It is high time that the King of Terrors were thrown out of the Christian vocabulary. A vast multitude of people talk of death as though it were the disaster of disasters instead of being to a good man the blessing of blessings. It is moving out of a cold vestibule into a warm temple. It is migrating into groves of redolence and perpetual fruitage. It is a change from bleak March to roseate June. It is a change of manacles for garlands. It is the transmuting of the iron handcuffs of earthly incarceration into the diamonded wristlets of a bridal party; or to use the suggestion of my text, it is only husking time. It is the tearing off of the rough sheath of the body that the bright and the beautiful soul may go free. Coming in "like a shock of corn cometh in in his season." Christ broke up a funeral procession at the gate of Nain by making a resurrection day for a young man and his mother. And I would that I could break up your sadness, and halt the long funeral procession of the world's grief by some cheering and cheerful view of the last transition.

We all know that husking time was a time of frost. Frost on the fence. Frost on the stubble. Frost on the ground. Frost on the bare branches of the trees. Frost in the air. Frost on the hands of the huskers. You remember we used to hide behind the corn stacks so as to keep off the wind, but still you remember how shivering was the body and how painful was the cheek, and how benumbed were the hands. But after awhile the sun was high up, and all the frosts went out of the air, and hilarities awakened the echoes and joy from one corn shock went up, "Aha, aha!" and was answered by joy from another corn shock, "Aha, aha!"

So we realize that the death of our friends is the nipping of many expectations, the freezing, the chilling, the frosting of many of our hopes. It is far from being a south wind. It comes from the frigid north, and when they go away from us we stand benumbed in body and benumbed in mind and benumbed in soul. We stand among our dead neighbors, our dead families, and we say, "Will we ever get over it?" Yes, we will get over it amid the shoutings of heavenly reunion, and we will look back to all these distresses of bereavement only as the temporary distresses of husking time. "Weeping may endure for a night, but joy cometh in the morning." "Light, and but for a moment," said the apostle as he clapped his hands, "light, and but for a moment." The chill of the frosts followed by the gladness that cometh in "like as a shock of corn cometh in in his season." * * *

Perhaps now this may be an answer to a question which I asked one Sabbath morning, but did not answer: Why is it that so many really good people have so dreadfully to suffer? You often find a good man with enough pains and aches and distresses, you would think, to discipline a whole colony, while you find a man who is perfectly useless going about with easy digestion and steady nerves and shining health, and his exit from the world is comparatively painless. How do you explain that? Well, I noticed in the husking time that the husking peg was thrust into the corn and then there must be a stout pull before the swathing was taken off of the ear, and the full, round, healthy, luxuriant corn was developed; while on the other hand there was corn that hardly seemed worth husking. We threw that into a place all by itself and we called it "nubbins."

Some of it was mildewed, and some of it was mice nibbled, and some of it was great promise and no fulfilment. All cobs and no corn. Nubbins! After the good corn had been driven up to the barn we came around with the corn basket and we picked up these nubbins. They were worth saving, but not worth much. So all around us there are people who amount to nothing. They develop into no kind of usefulness. They are nibbled on one side by the world, and nibbled on the other side by the devil, and mildewed all over. Great promise and no fulfilment. All cobs and no corn. Nubbins.

They are worth saving. I suppose many of them will get to heaven, but they are not worthy to be mentioned in the same day with those who went through great tribulation into the kingdom of our God. Who would not rather have the pains of this life, the misfortunes of this life—who would not rather be torn, and wounded, and lacerated, and wrenched, and husked and at last go in amid the very best grain of the granary, than to be pronounced not worth husking at all? Nubbins! In other words, I want to say to you people who have distress of body, and distress in business and distress of all sorts, the Lord has not any grudge against you. It is not derogatory, it is complimentary. "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth," and it is proof positive that there is something valuable in you, or the Lord would not have husked you.

Now, in heaven all their offensiveness has been husked off. Each one is as happy as he can be. Every one he meets as happy as he can be. Heaven one great neighborhood reunion. All kings and queens, all songsters, all millionaires, all banqueters. God, the Father, with his children all around him. No "good by" in all the air. No grave cut in all the hills. River of crystal rolling over bed of pearl, under arch of chrysoprasus, into the sea of glass mingled with fire. Stand at the gate of the granary and see the grain come in; out of the frosts into the sunshine, out of the darkness into the light, out of the tearing and the ripping and the twisting and the wrenching and the lacerating and the husking time of earth into the wide open door of the king's granary, "like as a shock of corn cometh in in his season."

Yes, heaven, a great sociable, with joy like the joy of the husking time. No one there feeling so big he declines to speak to some one who is not so large. Archangel willing to listen to smallest cherub. No bolting of the door of caste at one heavenly mansion to keep out the citizen of a smaller mansion. No clique in one corner, whispering about a clique in another corner. David taking none of the airs of a giant killer. Joshua making no one halt until he passes, because he made the sun and moon halt. Paul making no assumptions over the most ordinary preacher of righteousness. Naaman, captain of the Syrian host, no more honored than the captive maid who told him where he should get a good doctor. O! my soul, what a country! The humblest man a king. The poorest woman a queen. The meanest house a palace. The shortest life time eternity. And what is more strange about it all is, we may all get there. "Not I," says some one standing back under the galleries. Yes, you. "Not I," says some one who has not been in church in fifteen years before. Yes, you. "Not I," says some one who has been for fifty years filling up his life with all kinds of wickedness. Yes, you.

There are monopolies on earth, monopolistic railroads and monopolistic telegraph companies, and monopolistic grain dealers, but no monopoly in religion. All who want to be saved may be saved, "without money and without price." Salvation by the Lord Jesus Christ for all the people. Of course, use common sense in this matter. You cannot expect to get to Charleston by taking ship for Portland, and you can not expect to get to heaven by going in an opposite direction. Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved. Through that one gate of pardon and peace all the race may go in.

"But," says some one, "do you really think I would be at home in that supernal society if I should reach it?" I think you would. I know you would. I remember that in the husking time there was a great equality of feeling among the neighbors. There at one corn shock a farmer would be at work who owned two hundred acres of ground. The man whom he was talking with at the next corn shock owned but thirty acres of ground, and perhaps all covered by a mortgage. That evening, at the close of the husking day, one man drove home a roan span, so frisky, so full of life, they got their feet over the traces. The other man walked home. Great difference in education, great difference in worldly means; but I noticed at the husking time they all seemed to enjoy each other's society. They did not ask any man how much property he owned or what his education had been. They all seemed to be happy together in those good times.

And so it will be in heaven. Our Father will gather his children around him, and the neighbors will come in, and the past will be rehearsed. And some one will tell of victory, and we will all celebrate it. And some one will tell of great struggle, and we will all praise the grace that fetched him out of it. And some one will say, "Here is my old father, that I put away with heartbreak. Just look at him, he is as young as any of us." And some one will say, "Here is my darling child, that I buried in Greenwood, and all the after years of my life were shadowed with desolation. Just look at her! She doesn't seem as if she had been sick a minute." Great sociality. Great neighborhood kindness.

What though John Milton sit down on one side, and John Howard sit down on the other side. No embarrassment. What though Charlotte Elizabeth sit down on one side, and Hannah More sit down on the other side? No embarrassment. A monarch yourself, why be embarrassed among monarchs? A songster yourself, why be embarrassed amid glorified songsters? Go in and dine.

Gibbon in Parliament.

Edward Gibbon, the great historian, sat in parliament for many years, but achieved no success in the house. One morning, he tells us, "as he was destroying an army of barbarians," a knock came to the door, and the tempter appeared in the shape of a friend offering to secure him a seat in parliament for the borough of Liskeard. Gibbon represented the borough for ten years (1774-1783) without ever opening his mouth; and once when moved to do so he lacked the confidence to carry him through. The great speakers filled him with despair, and the bad ones with terror. He grew heart tired of "this parliamentary prattle" and of "the noise and nonsense of the Pandemonium," as he terms parliament in his letters.

How Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm—A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

Beating a Good Cow.

OHNSON and Ross were two general farmers that lived side by side. Each of them kept a cow, and each endeavored, beside supplying the family with milk, to make some butter for sale. Johnson was one of the farmers that his neighbors declared had been spoiled by reading books on agriculture and agricultural papers. He had got, as Ross expressed it, "high-ker-flutin ideas" on farming in general and the cow in particular. One proof of this was in the action of Johnson when he sold off all the cows he had and took the price and put it into a single cow of great milk and butter-producing capacity. Ross said that this was a piece of foolishness that could have come only from Johnson's continual reading of agricultural papers. Anyway, every farmer knew that a cow was a cow and that was all there was to it, and the man that would go into fancy stock of that kind was simply wasting his money. Why, if he had only put his money into a high-bred hunting dog, there might have been some reason to it.

However, Johnson continued to milk his cow and Ross did the same. Both sent their butter to the same market and got about the same price per pound, as the butter Johnson made was from only one cow and therefore could not well be sent to a distant market or to fancy customers. Johnson's wife kept account of the receipts and expenditures in a systematic manner, and Mrs. Ross, wishing to show that a common cow would do as much as a high-bred one, also kept account on her side, though Mr. Ross said that that, too, was a piece of foolishness. At the end of three months Mrs. Ross confided to her husband that the cost of keeping their cow had just equalled the recepits, while the Johnson cow had $17 or thereabouts standing to her credit. Ross went out into the country and paid $15 for another cow, and Mrs. Ross' hopes were accordingly raised. But the two cows cost about double the cost of one, and in two months more he found from his wife's accounts that the two cows had made a profit of only $1.85, while the credit to the Johnson cow was $29. Ross this time bought a $20-cow, but at the end of another month the profit for the three was but $2.65, while the Johnson cow had raised the limit to $33. Ross determined to beat that cow if he had to buy a whole herd, so about once a month he would bring home a new cow, generally bought cheap at some auction.

At the end of eighteen months Ross had a herd of ten cows, all working as faithfully as they could to beat the Johnson cow. The product was greatly increased in volume, even though one or two of the animals had run dry. But the expense of keeping them was considerable, and it seemed to Ross that all the money he took from the grocer he paid out again to the feedman for feed, but this was not quite so. Moreover it had become a great burden with the Ross family to milk ten cows twice a day and otherwise care for them. Mrs. Ross suggested that they had better hire a man to help, but Ross winced at the proposition and said that the profits would not warrant it. At the end of the time specified the Rosses took an account of stock, and found that the last two cows had proved a losing investment and that now the balance was just a trifle on the wrong side of the books. It had actually cost more to keep the ten cows than they had brought in, after figuring the money value of the feed that had been raised on the farm. They learned that the Johnson cow had increased her net balance to $79.37 during the eighteen months. This was the last straw with Ross. He sent nine of his cows to the butcher and gave up dairying except for home use. He says there is no profit in dairying, and he knows it by actual experience. Being asked how it was that Johnson made so much from one cow he replied: "Oh, that was bull-headed luck."

Diarrhoea and Its Causes.

Having seen, under the above heading, a letter, signed J. A. L., in your paper of May 12, I may inform him there are several causes of diarrhoea, writes A. Hemsley in Fanciers' Gazette, London. The cause, whatever it may be, only requires to be removed, and diligent search should be made for it, before any good can be accomplished. In the first place, if your runs are kept perfectly clean, and your water tins are filled once daily, and kept located in a shady place, I advise a complete change of diet, and give wheaten bread flour and prepared chalk—a tablespoonful of chalk to a pound of oatmeal, with two or three tablespoonsful of flour. The chalk neutralizes all acidity, which, in most cases, is the cause of diarrhoea, especially in warm weather. The fermentation of the contents of the crop and gizzard is too rapid; thus it is acetuous fermentation sets in, which causes irritation of the internal mucous membrane. Dry corn is very poor food for baby chickens. If they eat sufficient it causes too heavy thirst and indigestion, sure precursors of this complaint. We have far too many fancy meals and foods in the market. And sharps should be used with great care for the first month. During the last week the excessive heat will have had a damaging effect upon many thing I have known chickens, ducks, geese, pigs, and even calves killed by too much heat. The system becomes so relaxed, causing much fatty matter to be liberated, which passes through the bowels, causing one of the worst dysenteries. My feeding mixture to about two months of age consists of oatmeal and flour (more of the former), a trace of chalk, or whiting, sulphur, and a little ground linseed. Boiled rice is very good for a change. Although a chemist, I advise all to keep off medicines entirely as long as they can, and employ simple remedies only, for with chickens you only do more harm than good. Avoid leaving milk in the sun by all means, and you boil your wheat, feed off grass, in clean vessels, and upon no occasion feed two or three days off the same boiling; it quickly turns sour; but this can be avoided by plunging it into cold water. It will thus keep sweet much longer. I never feed upon dusty ground, whether sweet or tainted. The former will scour, the latter simply courts disease in her numerous sluggish forms.

Eggs Preserved in Clay.

Li Hung Chang's commissariat carried with it around the world a supply of Chinese preserved eggs for the Ambassador's special use, writes A. V. Mersch in Farm Poultry. "Those wonderful eggs," said my friend, Mr. Doyle, the steward of the Waldorf, at which Li stopped during his sojourn in New York, "are not so bad after all. Here is one of them," he said to me, knowing that I would be interested in it, showing me what looked like a piece of pummice stone, but was an egg encased in clay, which was given me by one of the cooks, and may be a century old for aught I know. This is a preserved hen's egg. The process of keeping them is very primitive and simple, yet very effective. This is the way it is done: First the eggs are boiled hard; then while they are hot they are wrapped in soft clay and packed away. They will keep forever. They were brought here in bags packed in rice husk, some of which you see still clings to the clay. These eggs are almost black, and the yolks are green. They chop them very fine and decorate most of their viands with them, and they enter largely into all their sauces. The duck eggs are from the Pekin and Muscovy breeds. They are first boiled, then preserved in a paste of charcoal which hardens about them. These duck eggs are opened, split in halves and served in the shell, and as old as the eggs are, I assure you that they are delicious." I don't perfectly understand the difference in preserving hens' eggs and ducks' eggs; but I mean to try an experiment on them this season, and will report my experience.

Hardiness and Climate.

In the northern section of the United States careful attention should be given the selection of breeds, says Poultry Keeper. It should not matter to the farmer whether some particular breed may lay a few more eggs during the year than another, as his object should be to keep only those that are hardy and able to stand the cold winters. In making a selection; the proper course to pursue is to visit the yards of those who have fowls that have given good results in his section, and in purchasing stock aim to select the most vigorous. Breeds that have small combs and which are heavily feathered should thrive better in winter than will others, but such breeds should have also been bred for vigor. It is of no advantage to buy special prize-winners when the awards have been for special points in the show-room, but the birds should be pure bred, however, having stout limbs, deep breasts and eyes indicating health. It is the hen that lays every week in the year, except when hatching chicks or undergoing the process of moulting, that pays the most, but such hens can only be had by careful selection and due consideration given climatic conditions and proper management.

Many American weeds which are now neglected, according to a botanist, are good to eat. The tender shoots of milk-weed are said to resemble in taste asparagus. Pigweed is related to beets and spinach. The nettle, too, is declared to be well flavored, although it is somewhat coarse and stringy.

JAPAN'S GREAT ENTERPRISE IN AMERICA.

LARGE APPROPRIATION BY IMPERIAL DIET.

TO INFORM AMERICANS HOW TO MAKE TEA.

Several months ago, the Japanese Tea Guild sent to this country a special commission, composed of Mr. S. Mitsuhashi, president of Shizuoka Prefectural Assembly, and Mr. J. Ohara, member of Japanese parliament, to investigate the condition of the Japanese tea trade in the United States and Canada, and to co-operate with Mr. T. Furuya and Mr. T. Mizutany, the American representatives of the Japanese Tea Guild, in giving publicity to the merits of Japanese teas and the method of preparing them for drinking which would insure the best results.

Mr. Furuya and Mr. Mizutany are planning to open tea bazars in many of the principal cities in the United States and Canada, where ladies can enjoy a cup of fine Japanese tea made by experts, and at the same time receive instructions which will enable them to make it equally well at home. More than half the tea consumed in the United States and Canada is of Japanese growth, yet, the majority of Americans apparently do not understand how to prepare it so as to develop the delicious qualities which it contains. It is believed by these gentlemen that when Americans are in possession of the secret of making good tea, the consumption in this country will fully equal that of Europe in proportion. The Japanese government has appropriated a large fund to aid the Japanese tea growers and tea merchants in prosecuting this educational work, and it is hoped that American ladies will be apt students. The main bureau of the Japanese Tea Guild has issued an official recipe for making Japanese tea, the translation of which is as follows:

First—Use a small, dry and thoroughly clean porcelain teapot.

Second—Put in one teaspoonful of tea leaves for each cup of tea desired.

Third—When using Japanese teas, pour on the required quantity of fresh boiled water, and let stand with closed lid from 2 to 3 minutes. Never boil the leaves. In order to retain the natural flavor, Japanese tea leaves should be kept in tight can or jar, free from moisture.

Note.—To thoroughly enjoy the natural, delicate, and sweet flavor of Japanese teas, neither sugar nor cream should be used.

It is surprising how many people are trying to sell what they declare is a good thing.

SUFFERING WOMEN.

How Many of Them Have Quietly Obtained Advice That Made Them Well.

My sister, if you find that in spite of following faithfully your family doctor's advice, you are not getting well, why do you not try another course? Many and many a woman has quietly written to Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., stating her symptoms plainly and clearly, and taken her advice, which was promptly received. The following letter is a pretty strong confirmation of our claims:

"I had been sick for six months; one doctor told me I would have to go to a hospital before I would get well. I had female troubles in their worst form, suffered untold agonies every month; my womb tipped back to my backbone, had headache, hysteria, fainting spells, itching, leucorrhœa.

"My feet and hands were cold all the time, my limbs were so weak that I could hardly walk around the house; was troubled with numb spells. I have taken four bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, one bottle of her Blood Purifier, one package of her Sanative Wash, and am entirely cured. I have not had one of those numb spells since. Can you wonder that I sing the praises of a medicine that has cured me of all these ills?"—MRS. LOUISA PLACE, 650 Belmont St., Brockton, Mass.

Monday evening about 40 relatives, friends and neighbors gathered at the German M. E. parsonage and surprised Mrs. Haefner. It was a genuine surprise for she knew nothing of it. Mrs. Haefner has served the Womans Home and Foregn Missionary Society as president for some time with perfect satisfaction, and it was on this account the society took this way of showing their appreciation of her services. The compnay presented her with a fine silver tea set and some table linen. Al though the house was considerably torn up, by packing up, supper was served by the visitors, and all enjoyed themselves, and dispersed with many good wishes for their future happiness in their new home.

Friday morning the Goodell Journal editor came puffing into our office, the prespiration standing in great drops on his face and droping from his left ear, (the wind was in the southeast,) his face looking like a chunk of boiled lobster, and proclaimed that he had made it in 24 minutes. He said an expert could make in 23¼, but with the speed he came the ball bearings had heat and expanded so he could ha rdly pump the machine. After adjusting the machine he left for Garner, expecting us to believe his story.

Electric Bitters,

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed when the languid, exhausted feeling prevails. when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the need of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. 50c and $1.00 per bottle at Harr's Drug Store.

KLEMME - - IOWA.

Woman's sphere nowadays seems to be the big round earth.

When a woman marries a man to reform him she has a lifetime job of 24 hours a day.

Just to show that he had not changed during his absence from America, Gov. Pingree talked one solid column into the ear of a receptive reporter.

The experiment of female deputy sheriffs in Colorado works curiously. One deputy went into a high mountain after outlaws, and captured their chief; but she couldn't bring him in and therefore finally married him.

A writer in the London Mail thinks there is going to be war between England and the United States and that as a result the English had better rectify the Canadian frontier by annexing Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, and a part of New York; and after that Alaska and the Sandwich Islands. There are some kinds of impudence that cannot be done justice to in any language. The only thing to do with this writer is to catch him and box his ears.

The success of the strike against colored labor in an Atlanta, Ga., mill this week may precipitate an unwelcome controversy in the southern field of labor. The white girls employed in the mill refused to work by the side of colored girls and struck. The managers of the mill held out for a few days, but as a general strike was threatened they gave in and the colored women were discharged. The matter is attracting wide attention in the south and may result in other labor disturbances.

At a recent base ball game in Pittsburg an onlooker threw a beer bottle at the umpire, who hurled it back from the grand stand, severely injuring an innocent spectator. The list for the summer includes many similar disgraceful scenes, several of them occurring on Sunday. The president of the National Base Ball League is urging reform, declaring that the national game is in danger of sinking to the level of the prize fight and the cockpit. In this work of reform every player and spectator can assist.

A slander once uttered can never be fully atoned for. Yet the tongue of slander is never at rest. The world is becoming polluted with the disease that it is spreading. Even our alleged great newspapers are affected. This is painfully true in our large cities, where papers are run by big corporations. It is certain ruin for any respectable citizen to oppose any of the schemes of this class of journals. What every state in this union needs is a law prohibiting corporations from owning or holding stock in any company engaged in the publication of any regular newspaper, magazine or other periodical circulated among the people.

It would be hard to formulate a more baleful aphorism than that imputed—incorrectly,it is to be hoped—to a United States senator. "No man in public office," he is reported to have said, "owes the public anything." On the contrary, every man in public office owes the public everything. No matter how great his wealth or his importance before taking office, he is under imperative obligation to the public, first, to get rid of his partisanship if he have any; secondly,to divest himself of considerations of self-interest and keep in view only the interests of the public; and finally, to give to the public faithful and laborious service, or, in case of inability, to yield his place instantly to some one else, who can and will fulfil all of these requirements.

Mr. Dun, ex-minister of the United States to Japan, was interviewed lately in regard to the relations between the two countries apropos of the proposed annexation of Hawaii. He said that he had never regarded a serious difficulty between the two countries as likely, for the reason that the commercial interests of the two countries in the Pacific are identical. It is of interest to notice in this connection that there has been a great increase in the exports of the United States to Japan in recent years. Statistics recently given out by the treasury department and referred to in detail elsewhere show that the exports to the Mikado's empire increased from $3,288,282 in 1892 to $13.233.970 for the last fiscal year. The latter figures represent a gain of about $5,500,000 over those for the fiscal year 1896. It should not escape attention that the imports from Japan to the United States exceed our exports to that country. Japanese imports last year were valued at $24,009,756. This was a decrease as compared with the fiscal year preceding, but a very considerable increase as compared with a decade ago. The trade between the two countries is nearly growing on both sides

THE CURE FAILS.

Tests of the Cholera Cure of "Hog" Dodge Proves a Failure.

DES MOINES, Oct. 14.—In making a report on the work of "Hog" Dodge in his efforts to cure the cholera in several herds in Polk county, Mr. Cownie intimates very broadly that he is of the opinion that the Dodge cure is not what it is represented and has no particular effect upon the hog treated. In fact he pronounces the cure a flat failure. He concludes his report as follows: "Had the results of these test cases been different I would cheerfully have devoted my time to further experiments, but under the circumstances it is not necessary to pursue this line of investigation any further. So far the disease which is now destroying the swine herds of our state has baffled all efforts to cure or control it, and each and every one of the so-called 'hog cholera cures' now upon the market have proved, when put to a fair and honest test, in a herd really affected by the disease, to be without merit and absolutely worthless as a cure for the dread complaint."

A MYSTERIOUS SUICIDE.

Prominent Lee County Farmer Takes His Own Life.

KEOKUK, Oct. 16.—Sylvester S. Metz, a prominent farmer living near Argyle, was found in bed with a 32-caliber revolver in his right hand and blood streaming from his open mouth. His two sons, who live on neighboring farms, made the discovery when they came to see him in accordance with a previous appointment with him. On his breast was a note which said that his troubles had begun in 1890 and had overtaken him. He is not known to have owed a cent. His wife separated from him two years ago and lives in Keokuk. He was 66 years old and leaves two grown sons and five daughters.

A BATTLE WITH TRAMPS.

Fifteen Hoboes Try to Capture the Marion Railroad Yard.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Oct. 17.—A gang of fifteen tramps undertook to take possession of the Chicago, Minneapolis & St. Paul yards at Marion. Constable Seaton gave battle and shot one of the fellows through the leg, breaking a bone. The others showed fight and the constable retreated far enough to summon Sheriff Cone and his deputies, who gave chase and finally captured eight of the outfit. The injured man was removed to St. Luke's hospital in Cedar Rapids, where he gave his name as George Bennett and his home as Milwaukee.

The Ballot Controversy.

DES MOINES, Oct. 16.—Judges Conrad, Stevenson, Holmes and Spurrier all decided that the state board had acted illegally in the matter, and had exceeded its authority when it put the Weeks party nominees on the ballot. The whole court of the county assembled together sustained Judge Spurrier's decision, yet said the submission of the case already ought to stand, and the case on the writ of certiorari ought to remain for this term of court. They agreed that the matter before Judge Spurrier had been handled properly. Later Judge Spurrier issued an order, which was served on G. L. Dobson, secretary of state, in which he directed the secretary of state to "wholly disregard" the nomination papers filed by the Weeks faction. The court says their nomination papers must not even be filed. But they have been filed and they have been sent out to the county auditors in the third place on the official ballot. Whether they are now beyond reach of the court is a question.

Railroads' Annual Report.

DES MOINES, Oct. 15.—The annual reports of the railways that do business in Iowa have been made to the railway commissioners. The reports of the thirty-three roads are interesting and complete and show that the roads, having decreased their expenses in the last year, have also been enabled, in most instances, to pay the first dividends they have paid in several years. All seem to be prospering. The aggregate mileage of the state is 8,500.

Altenberger Pleads Guilty.

DES MOINES, Oct. 15.—William Altenberger entered a plea of guilty in the district court to the charge of assaulting his wife with intent to commit murder. Altenberger attacked his wife with an axe. He cut her on the head, striking her twice, and then disappeared. The police followed him and he was captured. The grand jury returned the indictment, and he pleaded guilty to the charge.

Only Assault and Battery.

WEBSTER CITY, Oct. 15.—The jury in the case of Theodore Ricke, of Alden, who had been indicted for assault with intent to commit murder, brought in a verdict of assault and battery only.

WEEKS WINS.

Judge Spurrier Decides in Favor of the Middle-of-the-Road Populists.

DES MOINES, Oct. 14.—Judge W. A. Spurrier has rendered a decision in the case of the fusion against the middle-of-the-road populists. He decided in favor of the middle-of-the-roaders. There will be a populist ticket on the ballot. The court said the proceedings before him on the writ of certiorari ought to be assigned to a regular place on the calendar, instead of being heard as summary proceedings. The conclusion of the opinion was as follows: "It will be ordered by the court that the submission of this case be set aside and the case be placed on the calendar, where it would ordinarily go; that the parties may proceed with the matter as they may be advised; the petitioners are given an exception."

Kreiger Goes on the Ballot.

DES MOINES, Oct. 17.—Secretary of State Dobson has decided that William Kreiger, democratic nominee for representative of Chickasaw county, is entitled to have his name on the ballot as the regular nominee of his party. His papers were not filed in time, because of a delay of the mails in getting them to Des Moines. The equities of the matter were so plainly on his side that after deciding against him once the secretary reversed himself and determined that the name should go on the ballot.

Dubuque's Salary Grab Council.

DUBUQUE, Oct. 15.—Mayor Olinger and the Dubuque council of '95 were indicted for raising their salaries and were discharged on a demurrer to the indictment by Judge Waterman. Recently the supreme court reversed Judge Waterman. The grand jury now in session is hearing evidence for a reindictment. This would indicate the authorities intend to push the cases. The grand jury is also investigating the scandal in last spring's street pay rolls.

Small Wreck at Logan.

LOGAN, Oct. 18.—The "stub" ran into the rear end of a fast freight at siding No. 5. Fireman Condon, in jumping from the train, was badly injured. Engineer Chesebrough was badly cut on the head. The way car of the freight was smashed and some horses killed. None of the passengers were injured beyond a few bruises.

IOWA CONDENSED.

An excellent opening for general mercantile business. A partner with some capital wanted. Enquire RX, Lock Box 54, Des Moines, Ia.

The successor to J. R. Ratekin as commandant of the Iowa Soldiers' Home was selected a few days ago in the person of Col. C. C. Horton, of Muscatine. The board consumed nearly all day in deciding, and thirty ballots were necessary to a choice

Dispatches say J. H. Davis, the county auditor of Adair county, is still missing. His bondholders have offered a reward of $500 for his arrest. Experts in charge of his books find matters growing much worse as the investigation proceeds. The board of supervisors has declared the office vacant and made a temporary appointment. It is thought now that the total shortage will reach $4,000 or $5,000.

Frank Haupt and R. A. Anselment, two young men taking a pleasure trip from St. Paul, their home, to St. Louis, stopped at Burlington a few days ago. As their craft left the levee, Haupt had the top of his head blown off and was instantly killed by the discharge of a musket. Anselment claims Haupt discharged the weapon himself accidentally, but that he did not see it. He turned around at the shot and saw his companion fall.

At Des Moines recently the shaft house, boiler room and other top buildings at the Eureka coal mine, north of Grand View park, burned to the ground at an early morning hour. The fire was discovered by the watchman and an alarm was immediately sent to the central fire station. For a time it looked as though the mine proper would catch on fire, but the firemen went down through an air shaft and working their way through the tunnel with the chemical hose, succeeded in driving the fire back and keeping it out of the mine. The loss will amount to about $3,500, as most of the machinery was destroyed. The management claims that the fire was set.

An accident occurred a few days ago on the Waterloo & Cedar Falls Transit interurban line by which sixteen persons were injured, one probably fatally. The car left Waterloo well filled with passengers. On reaching a point on the curve in Cedar River Park, about 60 feet from the end of the new bridge, the car jumped the track, ran along the ties a short distance and fell off the approach, landing on its side on the ground, eight feet below. W. H. Martin, a traveling man, was so seriously injured that he may die. The injuries of others consist of broken bones, and while all are serious, none are dangerous.

ALL OVER THE WORLD

YELLOW FEVER SCARE.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—From the returns there is little hope in the yellow fever situation. The board of health is daily demonstratin that with a fair show it is possible for modern science to restrict and stamp out the disease. But the people who must suffer from strict application of scientific methods rebel, the result being that the pathway of the board of health is beset with difficulties. If there were strict compliance with the health laws; if prompt report was made of cases, the fever germs would be quickly wiped out. But it begins to look now as if from thirty to forty cases and from four to six deaths will be daily recorded until Jack Frost puts in an appearance.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 15.—The yellow fever situation shows no decline in the number of cases reported. The death column is about normal. There has been no increase in the malignancy, but existing conditions are not favorable for the eradication of the disease. The weather is warm and sultry and unusual for the season, and if it keeps on there will be little improvement for the time being.

AN IMMENSE SLAUGHTER.

Three Thousand Abyssinians Massacred by Somalis.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—Bennett Stanford, who has just returned from taking part in an expedition to Somaliland, brings news of the annihilation at the end of June of an Abyssinian army of 3,000 men under the control of the famous general, Ras Mackennen, of which only 69 men escaped. Mr. Stanford said: "While in the interior we came across a powerful Somali chief who had just returned from the fight. He told me that the Abyssinian force had been riding down the Webbe Shebeyli river, nearly as far as the forty-fifth parallel. The Somalis then overwhelmed them with large numbers, allowing 69 men to go back with the news of the defeat. Ras Mackennen was killed during the battle. The affair occurred about 100 miles from where we were. The whole neighborhood is still greatly excited and the possession of so many Italian rifles by the Somalis is evidence that the story told of the Abyssinian defeat is true. The latest news from Harrar was that an Abyssinian army was being despatched against the Somalis, who are eagerly anticipating another fight." In regard to the reported massacre of the Cavendish expedition Mr. Stanford said: "There are no expeditions in Somaliland to massacre. Peel, who was with me, is away to the south; Lord Delamere is near Lake Rudolph; Major MacDonald is on the Trade route toward Uganda, and Cavendish, when I last heard of him, was on the Kikuyu road."

The Lattimer Tragedy.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 15.—Governor Hastings has received a telegram from Secretary Sherman, stating that the Austrian minister of war at Washington had filed a communication with the department of state, claiming that there was a violation of the rights of Austrian subjects, in the firing on the mob at Lattimer, Pa., when a score of miners were killed. Secretary Sherman requests the facts and status of affairs in relation to three cases. Governor Hastings has referred the communication to Sheriff Martin and Gen. Gobin, with the request that they enlighten Secretary Sherman as early as possible.

Death of Edward Langtry.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Edward Langtry, husband of Lily Langtry, the actress, died in the asylum for the insane at Chester, to which he was committed recently, having been found wandering helpless in the vicinity. It is supposed Langtry was suffering from a concussion of the brain, due to falling down a gangway in a steamer.

A Mile in 42 Seconds.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Oct. 16.—The Folman friction geared locomotive in a trial on the South Jersey railroad, made a mile in 44 3-5 seconds on the first trial and a mile in 42 seconds in a second spurt. The train consisted of two passenger coaches.

John A. Kasson Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—John A. Kasson, ex-member of congress from Iowa and ex-minister to Austria, has been appointed special agent of the department of state to negotiate reciprocity arrangements under the Dingley tariff law.

Indianapolis City Election.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 13.—In the city election Thomas Taggart, democrat, defeated W. N. Harding, republican, for mayor by a plurality of 5,000.

Weyler Gets Kind-Hearted.

HAVANA, Oct. 15.—General Weyler has granted amnesty to forty-six political prisoners, including several women.

OPERA HOUSE DOME FALLS.

Three Killed, Five Dangerously Injured and a Score Hurt.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 16.—During a performance in Robinson's opera house the dome fell. At first small chunks of plastering began falling and the more cautious persons retired, but there was still a large number in the house when the dome, 80 feet long and 30 feet wide, fell. Three persons were instantly killed, five dangerously injured and a score of others seriously hurt. The building was an old one and one of the roof trusses had rotted away and weakened the support of the dome.

Leprosy Congress.

BERLIN, Oct. 18.—The session of the international leprosy conference closed with the recording of the conclusions unaminously reached. They are as follows: The leprosy bacillus is the true cause of the disease; man is the only animal in which the bacillus exists; leprosy is contagious but not hereditary; the isolation of patients is desirable and under circumstances as they exist in Norway, should be compulsory.

Philippine Island War.

MADRID, Oct. 18.—The government has received information from Manilla that the insurgents of the Philippine islands have replied to the overtures of Captain General Rivera, who has been trying to induce them to submit, demanding extensive amnesty to begin with and full pardon eventually.

Across Channel In a Balloon.

EASTBOURNE, Oct. 13.—Charles Pollock, a nephew of Baron Pollock, crossed the English channel in a balloon. The balloon descended safely near Domart in Somme, fourteen miles northwest of Amiens. Mr. Pollock pronounced the trip a great success,

BREVITIES.

Capt.-Gen. Blanco has sailed for Cuba and Captain General Weyler will return to Spain immediately. General Castellanos assumes the direction of affairs in the island until Blanco arrives. The Marquis de Ahumda, who was Captain General Weyler's second in command, has resigned.

The London Daily Times expresses the belief that so far as the Bank of England is concerned, nothing more will be heard of the offer to hold silver as a portion of the reserve. It says it deplores the "mischievous effect the governor's action has had abroad" and quotes from a letter written by a big American manufacturer, dilating upon and regretting the fact that the bank's offer was to some extent a confession of the seeming advisability of what Mr. Bryan had claimed.

Queen Liliuokalani, of Hawaii, is reported very ill at her apartments in the city of Washington. She returned from a trip to San Francisco ten days ago in bad health. She had contracted a heavy cold on the journey eastward and a physician was at once summoned. She has since been steadily growing worse, and while the greatest secrecy has been maintained by her secretary and servants regarding her illness, it is reported that symptoms of pneumonia have developed and that her condition is regarded as serious. Two physicians are in almost constant attendance upon her.

Washington dispatch: Instructions to Minister Woodford are being prepared at the state department for the presentation to Spain of another demand for immediate payment of a claim for $50,000 indemnity made by Samuel T. Tolon for imprisonment in Cuba. The original demand was presented by Mr. Taylor, who has just retired from the office of minister. Spain's reply was that it was under no obligations to pay Tolon. The state department officials insist that the claim is a just one and will continue to press it. Mr. Tolon has also pending a claim for $100,000 arising out of the damage done to his property in Cuba by Spanish soldiers. Tolon is a naturalized American.

Considerable sentiment is being worked up over the refusal of the treasury officials to grant to banks the benefit of government contract rates for expressage in the shipment of money. While the plan of shipping money by the well known express companies is much safer and a great deal more satisfactory than by transmitting it by registered letter, the rates now to be secured from the express companies are so much higher than the charges made by the post-office department that there is a noticeable decrease in the amount of money handled by the express companies. The question is being agitated with a hope of securing the annulment of the clause of the contract between the government and the express companies by which it was agreed that privilege of shipping at the rates given the government should only be accorded to the banks when the treasury needed gold.

CHAPTER XIII.—(CONTINUED.)

Earnestly pleading with her friend, Clara advances toward the window. She, too, has suffered under the wasting influences of suspense. Her face has lost its youthful freshness; no delicate flush of color rises on it when she speaks. The soft gray eyes which won Frank's heart in the by-gone time are sadly altered now. In repose they have a dim and wearied look. In action they are wild and restless, like eyes suddenly awakened from startling dreams. Robed in white, her soft, brown hair hanging loosely over her shoulders, there is something weird and ghostlike in the girl, as she moves nearer and nearer to the window in the full light of the moon, pleading for music that shall be worthy of the mystery and the beauty of the night.

"Will you come in here if I play to you?" Mrs. Crayford asks. "It is a risk, my love, to be out in the night air."

"No! no! I like it. Play—while I am out here, looking at the sea. It quiets me; it comforts me; it does me good."

She glides back, ghostlike, over the lawn. Mrs. Crayford rises and puts down the volume that she has been reading. It is a record of explorations in the Arctic seas. The time has gone by when the two lonely women could take an interest in subjects not connected with their own anxieties. Now, when hope is fast failing them—now, when their last news of the Wanderer and the Sea-Mew is news that is more than two years old—they can read of nothing, but dangers and discoveries, losses and rescues, in the terrible Polar seas.

Unwillingly, Mrs. Crayford puts her book aside and goes to the piano—Mozart's "Air in A, with Variations," lies open on the instrument. One after another she plays the lovely melodies, so simply, so purely beautiful, of that unpretending and unrivalled work. At the close of the ninth variation (Clara's favorite) she pauses, and turns toward the garden.

"Shall I stop there?" she asks.

There is no answer. Has Clara wandered away out of hearing of the music that she loves—the music that harmonizes so subtly with the tender beauty of the night? Mrs. Crayford rises and advances to the window.

No! there is the white figure standing alone on the slope of the lawn—the head turned away from the house; the face looking out over the calm sea, whose gently rippling waters end in the dim line on the horizon, which is the line of the Hampshire coast.

Mrs. Crayford advances as far as the path before the window and calls to her. "Clara!"

Again there is no answer. The white figure still stands immovably in its place. With signs of distress in her face, but with no appearance of alarm, Mrs. Crayford returns to the room. Her own sad experience tells her what has happened. She summons the servants, and directs them to wait in the drawing room until she calls to them. This done, she returns to the garden, and approaches the mysterious figure on the lawn.

Dead to the outer world, as if she lay already in her grave—insensible to touch, insensible to sound, motionless as stone, cold as stone—Clara stands on the moonlit lawn, facing the seaward view. Mrs. Crayford waits at her side, patiently watching for the change which she knows is to come. "Catalepsy," as some call it—"hysteria," as others say—this alone is certain, the same interval always passes; the same change always appears.

It comes now. Not a change in her eyes; they still remain wide open, fixed and glassy. The first movement is a movement of her hands. They rise slowly from her side, and waver in the air like the hands of a person groping in the dark. Another interval—and the movement spreads to her lips; they part and tremble. A few minutes more, and words begin to drop, one by one, from those parted lips—words spoken in a lost, vacant tone, as if she is talking in her sleep.

Mrs. Crayford looks back at the house. Sad experience makes her suspicious of the servants' curiosity. Sad experience has long since warned her that the servants are not to be trusted within hearing of the wild words which Clara speaks in the trance. Has any one of them ventured into the garden? No. They are out of hearing at the window, waiting for the signal which tells them that their help is needed.

Turning toward Clara once more, Mrs. Crayford hears the vacantly-uttered words falling faster and faster from her lips.

"Frank! Frank! Frank! Don't drop behind—don't trust Richard Wardour. While you can stand, keep with the other men, Frank!"

(The farewell warning of Crayford in the solitudes of the Frozen Deep, repeated by Clara in the garden of her English home.)

A moment of silence follows, and in that moment the vision has changed. She sees him on the iceberg now, at the mercy of the bitterest enemy he has on earth. She sees him drifting; over the black water, through the ashy light.

"Wake, Frank; wake and defend yourself! Richard Wardour knows that I love you. Richard Wardour's vengeance will take your life! Wake, Frank—wake! You are drifting to your death!" A low groan of horror burst from her, sinister and terrible to hear. "Drifting! drifting!" she whispers to herself; "drifting to his death!"

Her glassy eyes suddenly soften, then close. A long shudder runs through her. A faint flush shows itself on the deadly pallor of her face, and fades again. Her limbs fail her. She sinks into Mrs. Crayford's arms.

The servants, answering the call for help, carry her into the house. They lay her insensible on her bed. After an hour or more, her eyes open again—this time with the light of life in them—open, and rest languidly on her friend sitting by the bedside.

"I have had a dreadful dream," she murmurs faintly. "Am I ill, Lucy? I feel so weak."

Even as she says the words, sleep, gentle, natural sleep, takes her suddenly, as it takes young children weary with their play. Though it is all over now, though no further watching is required, Mrs. Crayford still keeps her place by the bedside, too anxious and too wakeful to retire to her own room.

On other occasions, she is accustomed to dismiss from her mind the words which drop from Clara in the trance. This time the effort to dismiss them is beyond her power. The words haunt her. Vainly she recalls to memory all that the doctors have said to her in speaking of Clara in the state of trance. "What she vaguely dreads for the lost man whom she loves, is mingled in her mind with what she is constantly reading of trials, dangers and escapes in the Arctic seas. The most startling things that she may say or do are all attributable to this cause, and may be explained in this way." So the doctors have spoken, and thus, far, Mrs. Crayford has shared their view. It is only to-night that the girl's words ring in her ear with a strange prophetic sound in them. It is only to-night that she asks herself: "Is Clara present, in the spirit, with our loved and lost ones in the lonely North? Can mortal vision see the dead and living in the solitudes of the Frozen Deep?"

CHAPTER XIV.

THE night has passed.

Far and near the garden-view looked its gayest and brightest in the light of the noonday sun. The cheering sounds which tell of life and action were audible all round the villa. From the garden of the nearest house rose the voices of children at play. Along the road at the back sounded the roll of wheels, as carts and carriages passed at intervals. Out on the blue sea the distant splash of the paddles, the distant thump of the engines, told from time to time of the passage of steamers, entering or leaving the strait between the island and the mainland. In the trees the birds sang gayly among the rustling leaves. In the house the women servants were laughing over some jest or story that cheered them at their work. It was a lively and pleasant time—a bright enjoyable day.

The two ladies were out together, resting on a garden seat, after a walk round the grounds.

They exchanged a few trivial words relating to the beauty of the day, and then said no more. Possessing the same consciousness of what she had seen in the trance which persons in general possess of what they have seen in a dream—believing in the vision as a supernatural revelation—Clara's forebodings were now, to her mind, realized as truths. Her last faint hope of ever seeing Frank again was now at an end. Intimate experience of her told Mrs. Crayford what was passing in Clara's mind, and warned her that the attempt to reason and remonstrate would be little better than a voluntary waste of words and time. The disposition which she had herself felt, on the previous night, to attach a superstitious importance to the words that Clara had spoken in the trance had vanished with the return of the morning. Rest and reflection had quieted her mind and had restored the composing influence of her sober sense. Sympathizing with Clara in all besides, she had no sympathy, as they sat together in the pleasant sunshine, with Clara's gloomy despair of the future. She who could still hope had nothing to say to the sad companion who had done with hope. So the quiet minutes succeeded each other, and the two friends sat side by side in silence.

An hour passed—and the gate-bell of the villa rang. They both started—they both knew the ring. It was the hour when the postman brought their newspapers from London. In past days, what hundreds on hundreds of times they had torn off the cover which enclosed the newspaper and looked at the same column with the same weary mingling of hope and despair! There to-day—as it was yesterday; as it would be, if they lived, to-morrow—there was the servant with Lucy's newspaper and Clara's newspaper in his hand! Would both of them do again to-day what both of them had done so often in the days that were gone?

No! Mrs. Crayford removed the cover from her newspaper as usual. Clara laid her newspaper aside unopened, on the garden seat.

In silence Mrs. Crayford looked where she always looked, at the column devoted to the latest intelligence from foreign parts. The instant her eye fell on the page she started with a loud cry of joy. The newspaper fell from her trembling hand. She caught Clara in her arms. "Oh, my darling! my darling! news of them at last."

Without answering, without the slightest change in look or manner, Clara took the newspaper from the ground and read the top line in the column, printed in capital letters.

THE ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

She waited and looked at Mrs. Crayford. "Can you bear it, Lucy?" she asked, "if I read it aloud?"

Mrs. Crayford was too agitated to answer in words. She signed impatiently to Clara to go on. Clara read the news which followed the heading in capital letters. Thus it ran:

"The following intelligence from St. John's, Newfoundland, has reached us for publication: The whaling vessel Blythewood is reported to have met with the surviving officers and men of the Expedition in Davis Strait. Many are stated to be dead, and some are supposed to be missing. The list of the saved, as collected by the people of the whaler, is not vouched for as being absolutely correct, the circumstances having been adverse to investigation. The vessel was pressed for time, and the members of the Expedition, all more or less suffering from exhaustion, were not in a position to give the necessary assistance to inquiry. Further particulars may be looked for in the next mail."

The list of the survivors followed, beginning with the officers in the order of their rank. They both read the list together. The first name was Captain Helding. The second was Lieutenant Crayford.

There the wife's joy overpowered her. After a pause, she put her arm round Clara's waist, and spoke to her.

"Oh, my love," she murmured, "are you as happy as I am? Is Frank's name there, too? The tears are in my eyes. Read for me—I can't read for myself."

The answer came, in still, sad tones: "I have read as far as your husband's name. I have no need to read further."

Mrs. Crayford dashed the tears from her eyes, steadied herself and looked at the newspaper.

On the list of survivors the search was in vain. Frank's name was not among them. On a second list, headed "Dead or Missing," the two first names that appeared were: Francis Aldersley. Richard Wardour.

In speechless distress and dismay Mrs. Crayford looked at Clara. Had she strength enough, in her feeble health, to sustain the shock that had fallen on her? Yes! She bore it with a strange unnatural resignation; she looked, she spoke, with the sad self-possession of despair.

"I was prepared for it," she said. "I saw them in the spirit last night. Richard Wardour has discovered the truth, and Frank has paid the penalty with his life—and I, I alone am to blame." She shuddered, and put her hand on her heart. "We shall not long be parted, Lucy; I shall go to him. He will not return to me."

Those words were spoken with a calm certainty of conviction that was terrible to see. "I have no more to say," she added, after a moment, and rose to return to the house. Mrs. Crayford caught her by the hand, and forced her to take her seat again.

DELIBERATELY DISOBEYS.

Insurance Superintendent McNall In Contempt of Court.

TOPEKA, Oct. 16.—In order to test in the court of last resort the right of federal judges to interfere with the execution of the laws of a sovereign state, Webb McNall, superintendent of insurance, exposed himself to the wrath of Federal Judge Williams and takes chances of imprisonment for contempt by a deliberate violation of the court's order. Judge Williams, recently issued an order to force Commissioner McNall to issue to the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, a license to operate in Kansas, upon the payment of the usual fee. John E. Lord, general agent of the company, tendered the fee and demanded the license. Mr. McNall announced his purpose to disregard Judge Williams' order and rely upon the supreme court of the United States sor a writ of habeous corpus in case of imprisonment for contempt.

Important German Conference.

BERLIN, Oct. 16.—Emperor William presided over a council of imperial and Prussian ministers at the new palace, Potsdam. This being his first council in many months, and following upon his audience with Prince Hohenlohe, Dr. Miquel and Herr Von Bulow, all kinds of sensational rumors are current. There is no doubt that the naval and judicial reform questions were discussed, and it is reported that the ministers decided against gazetting the naval plans before parliament meets. The fact that no official statement has been presented is held to indicate that a disagreement continues among the ministers on these matters.

Flour Mills May Close Down.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Oct. 17.—C. A. Pillsbury, when asked about the prospects of a wheat shortage in Minneapolis, said: "I think you may safely say there will be a shortage. To just what an extent it will affect the flour mills I cannot say, but, with shipments being made as they have been for some time past, the closing down of the mills seems inevitable. They will not be able to run regularly unless the scientist discovers some chemical process of making the cereal, though they may not be shut down long at any one time.

Aimed at Secretary Sherman.

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The St. James Gazette, commenting on Secretary Sherman's latest dispatch to Salisbury on the sealing conference, says: "It would be a relief if the Trans-Atlantic Polonius is restricted in future to playing the fool in his own home and the foreign affairs of his country transferred to more capable hands. But we need count upon this too confidently. We, ourselves, allowed an elderly statesman to play tricks in the national name with national interests for many long years."

Turkey and Bulgaria Combine.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The correspondent of the Standard at Constantinople says that all the preliminaries have been agreed upon for an alliance, offensive and defensive, between Bulgaria and Turkey, under which the governor-generalship of Roumelia becomes hereditary in the family of Prince Ferdinand.

Amnesty for the Cubans.

MADRID, Oct. 16.—At a cabinet council it was decided to pardon all Cuban exiles not included in previous amnesties and to suspend the decree of September 22, relative to legislative reforms in the Phillipine islands. The decree ordered the vigorous suppression of political associations and the secret pact of blood societies.

Will Stand by Gold.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The Globe, which has close relations with the cabinet ministers, reiterates that the government may be depended upon to maintain the gold standard inviolate, and adds: "The views of individuals, whether in the ministry or in a bank parlor, count for next to nothing."

IOWA PATENT OFFICE REPORT.

DES MOINES, Oct. 12.—Through the agency of the Iowa Patent Office, United States patents have been allowed (but not yet issued) as follows: To T. A. Reynolds, of Bunch, for a "Support for sheep while being sheared." It is a nondescript device adapted to be detachably clamped fast to a table to aid in holding a sheep in favorable position while using shears to clip off the wool from different parts of the animal. To R. W. Liddle, of Gilbert, for an attachment for raising and lowering buggy tops. When applied, a person on the seat can lower the folding top by simply raising a lever at his side and extended forward over the end of the seat. Three hundred and ninety-three patents were issued for the week ending October 5th. Among them 8 to Iowa inventors. Nebraska 3, Kansas 6, Minnesota 5, Missouri 13, Illinois 35. New York is numerically ahead of all the states with 54. A copyright has been granted to J. S. Lord, of Des Moines for a pictorial work of art entitled "Dog-on-it." Valuable information about securing, valuing and selling patents sent free.

CORN CROP BELOW AVERAGE.

The Month of September Showed an Improvement in the Condition.

Washington dispatch: The October report of the statistician of the department of agriculture shows the average condition of corn on October 1 to have been 77.1, as compared with 79.3 on September 1, with 90.5 on October 1, 1896, and 82.5 the average for the last ten years. There has been an improvement during the month of six points in Maryland and four in Iowa. On the other hand, there has been a decline of three points in Kansas, six in Nebraska, three in Ohio, three in Illinois, three in Missouri, and a general decline in the southern states. The preliminary estimate of the yield per acre of oats is 28.1 bushels, an increase of 3.8 bushels per acre over the October estimate of last year. The principal increase is west of the Mississippi river, Missouri, Nebraska and Kansas showing an increase of six, twelve and fifteen bushels per acre over last year. The average for quality is 87.6. The preliminary estimate of the yield per acre of rye is 15.1 bushels, or 2.8 bushels per acre greater than the October estimate of the crop of 1896. The principal rye producing states all show increases.

Great Britain Wants More Soldiers.

LONDON, Oct. 17.—The Daily Chronicle says it understands that the budget of 1898 will propose an extra grant of £1,500,000 to provide 11,000 additional men for the army and "some amelioration for the soldiers' lot, with a view of attracting recruits."

LITERARY NOTES.

The Frederick A. Stokes Co., New York, has recently published a neat volume entitled "Wolfville," by Alfred Henry Lewis, ("Dan Quin.") It is a story of the far west, of greater force and truth than anything that has appeared since the early work of Bret Harte. Wolfville is an Arizona camp, of which "cows is what you might call the leading industry." Alfred Henry Lewis is the historian, he deriving his facts from the reminiscent prattle of the "Old Cattleman," who is at once a Wolfvillian, an observer, a philosopher and a systematic raconteur of high gifts. "I believe that this will be the book of the year.....The 'Old Cattleman' has some of the best philosophy that ever crept into a book."—St. Louis Republic.

Mrs. Burton Harrison has written a new novel of New York life, entitled "Good Americans," and it will appear in The Century during the coming year. Mrs. Harrison is thoroughly familiar with metropolitan society, and contemporaneous social types and tendencies are mirrowed and described in the story.

"The Young Mountaineers" is the title of a neat volume of short stories by Charles Egbert Craddock (Mary N. Murfree), author of "In the Tennessee Mountains," "Down the Ravine," "The Prophet of the Great Smoky Mountains," and a host of other equally good books. The volume contains ten excellent short stories of rare merit, and all who have read the works of this charming writer will readily believe us when we say that no stories are more entertaining than this excellent collection. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston and New York.

"Three Partners; or the Big Strike on Heavy-Tree Hill," the latest of Bret Harte's productions, comes from the press of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston. This is another story of the same general style with many others which Mr. Harte has written, to the great delectation of a host of novel readers. Jack Hamlin, Barker, Demorest, Kitty, and other characters, well if not favorably known to those who follow the brilliant trail of Mr. Harte, figure in new combinations in this story of early California; and as they retain their various picturesque and dramatic qualities, the book is very readable.

"The Story of a Cowboy," by E. Hough, the author of "The Singing Mouse Stories," etc., is just from the press of D. Appleton & Co., New York. The very picturesqueness of the cowboy has subjected him to misinterpretation, and his actual story and a picture of the great industry he has conducted may be said to be presented adequately for the first time in Mr. Hough's spirited and fascinating pages. The story he tells is a strange and romantic one, impressive on the practical side by reason of the magnitude of the business described, and a very valuable one from the historical point of view, because this book preserves in typical form a typical figure of western life, and also the development and the passing, or rather transformation, of a vast industry almost within a generation. The author is an Iowan who is fast winning fame in the literary world.

"The Federal Judge" is the title of an interesting volume by Charles K. Lusk, just issued from the press of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., of Boston. The Judge is an upright man who has gained a reputation as a friend of the people and a rigid opposer of great corporations. A railway magnate, whose road is exposed to attack, secures the appointment of this excellent man as a federal judge, and the story consists largely in the dramatic portrayal of the relations which these two men bear to each other, the honest judge under the influence of a great business manager, and the manager seeking to shield and strengthen his vast corporation with the judge's authority and good reputation.

Comptroller Eckels of the Treasury Department says that the conditions throughout the country are most satisfactory. The improvement has come rapidly and permeates all lines of industry. It begins with the agricultural classes. The farmers have good crops and are getting high prices for them. The cattle-raisers are benefited by a substantial rise in the price of cattle. The same is true with the sheep raiser, This improvement in agricultural earnings has had its effect on the railroads by increasing their earnings. It has put money into circulation and has enabled people to discharge their debts and thereby benefited the merchants.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlian's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therin, we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results, is puting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty. Libertytown, Maryland. TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"THE THREE TAVERNS" LAST SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

From the Text; Acts, Chapter XXVIII., Verse 15, as Follows: "They Came to Meet Us as Far as Appii" Forum and the Three Taverns.

SEVENTEEN miles south of Rome, Italy, there was a village of unfortunate name. A tavern is a place of entertainment. In our time part of the entertainment is a provision of intoxicants. One such place you would think would have been enough for that Italian village. No, there were three of them, with doors open for entertainment and obfuscation. The world has never lacked stimulating drinks. You remember the condition of Noah on one occasion, and of Abigail's husband, Nabal, and the story of Belshazzar's feast, and Benhadad, and the new wine in old bottles, and whole paragraphs on prohibition enactment thousands of years before Neal Dow was born; and no doubt there were whole shelves of inflammatory liquid in those hotels which gave the name to the village where Paul's friends came to meet him, namely, the Three Taverns. In vain I search ancient geography for some satisfying account of that village. Two roads came from the sea coast to that place; the one from Actium, and the other from Puteoli, the last road being the one which Paul traveled. There were, no doubt, in that village houses of merchandise and mechanics' shops, and professional offices, but nothing is known of them. All that we know of that village is that it had a profusion of inns—the Three Taverns. Paul did not choose any one of these taverns as the place to meet his friends. He certainly was very abstemious, but they made the selection. He had enlarged about keeping the body under, though once he prescribed for a young theological student a stimulating cordial for a stomachic disorder; but he told him to take only a small dose—"a little wine for thy stomach's sake."

One of the worst things about these Three Taverns was that they had especial temptation for those who had just come ashore. People who had just landed at Actium or Puteoli were soon tempted by these three hotels which were only a little way up from the beach. Those who are disordered of the sea (for it is a physical disorganizer), instead of waiting for the gradual return of physical equipose, are apt to take artificial means to brace up. Of the one million sailors now on the sea, how few of them coming ashore will escape the Three Taverns! After surviving hurricanes, cyclones, icebergs, collisions, many of them are wrecked in harbor. I warrant that if a calculation were made of the comparative number of sailors lost at sea, and lost ashore, those drowned by the crimson wave of dissipation would far outnumber those drowned by the salt water.

Alas! that the large majority of those who go down to the sea in ships should have twice to pass the Three Taverns, namely, before they go out, and after they come in. That fact was what aroused Father Taylor, the great sailor's preacher, at the Sailors' Bethel, Boston, and at a public meeting at Charlestown, he said, "All the machinery of the drunkard making, soul destroying business is in perfect running order, from the low grog holes on the docks kept open to ruin my poor sailor boys, to the great establishments in Still House square, and when we ask men what is to be done about it, they say, 'you can't help it,' and yet there is Bunker Hill and you say you can't stop it, and up there are Lexington and Concord." We might answer Father Taylor's remark by saying, "the trouble is not that we can't stop it, but that we won't stop it." We must have more generations slain before the world will fully wake up to the evil. That which tempted the travelers of old who came up from the seaports of Actium and Puteoli, is now the ruin of seafaring men as they come up from the coasts of all the continents, namely, the Three Taverns. In the autumn, about this time, in the year 1837, the steamship Home went out from New York for Charleston. There were about one hundred passengers, some of them widely known. Some of them had been summering at the northern watering places and they were on their way south, all expectant of hearty greeting by their friends on the wharves of Charleston. But a little more than two days out the ship struck the rocks. A life boat was launched, but sank with all its passengers. A mother was seen standing on the deck of the steamer with her child in her arms. A wave wrenched the child from the mother's arms and rolled it into the sea, and the mother leaped after it. The sailors rushed to the bar of the boat and drank themselves drunk. Ninety-five human beings went down never to rise, or to be floated upon the beach amid the fragments of the wreck. What was the cause of the disaster? A drunken sea captain. But not until the judgment day, when the sea shall give up its dead and the story of earthly disasters shall be fully told, will it be known how many yachts, steamers, brigatines, men-of-war and ocean greyhounds have been lost through captain and crew made incompetent by alcoholic dethronement. Admiral Farragut had proper appreciation of what the fiery stimulus was to a man in the navy. An officer of the warship said to him, "Admiral, won't you consent to give Jack a glass of grog in the morning? Not enough to make him drunk, but enough to make him fight cheerfully." The admiral answered, "I have been to sea considerably, and have seen a battle or two, but I never found that I needed rum to enable me to do my duty. I will order two cups of coffee to each man at two o'clock in the morning, and at eight o'clock I will pipe all hands to breakfast in Mobile Bay." The Three Taverns of my text were too near the Mediterranean shipping.

But notice the multiplicity. What could that Italian village, so small that history makes but one mention of it, want with more than one tavern? There were not enough travelers coming through that insignificant town to support more than one house of lodgment. That would have furnished enough pillows and enough breakfasts. No, the world's appetite is diseased, and the subsequent draughts must be taken to slack the thirst created by the preceding draughts. Strong drink kindles the fires of thirst faster than it puts them out. There were three taverns. That which cursed that Italian village curses all Christendom today—too many taverns. There are streets in some of our cities where there are three or four taverns in every block; aye, where every other house is a tavern. You can take the Arabic numeral of my text, the three, and put on the right hand side of it one cipher, and two ciphers, and four ciphers, and that re-enforcement of numerals will not express the statistics of American rummeries. Even if it were a good, healthy business, supplying necessity, an article superbly nutritious, it is a business mightily overdone, and there are Three Taverns where there ought to be only one.

The fact is, there are in another sense Three Taverns now; the gorgeous Tavern for the affluent, the medium Tavern for the working classes, and the Tavern of the slums, and they stand in line, and many people beginning with the first come down through the second and come out at the third. At the first of the Three Taverns, the wines are of celebrated vintage, and the whiskies are said to be pure, and they are quaffed from cut glass, at marble side tables, under pictures approaching masterpieces. The patrons pull off their kind gloves, and hand their silk hats to the waiter, and push back their hair with a hand on one finger of which is a cameo. But those patrons are apt to stop visiting that place. It is not the money that a man pays for drinks, for what are a few hundred or a few thousand dollars to a man of large income—but their brain gets touched, and that unbalances their judgment, and they can see fortunes in enterprises surcharged with disaster. In longer or shorter time they change Taverns, and they come down to Tavern the second, where the pictures are not quite so scrupulous of suggestion, and the small table is rougher, and the castor standing on it is of German silver, and the air has been kept over from the night before, and that which they sip from the pewter mug, has a larger percentage of benzine, ambergris, creosote, henbane, strychnine, prussic acid, coculus indicus, plaster of paris, copperas, and nightshade. The patron may be seen almost every day, and perhaps many times the same day at this Tavern the second, but he is preparing to graduate. Brain, liver, heart, nerves, are rapidly giving way. That Tavern the second has its dismal echo in his business destroyed and family scattered, and woes that choke one's vocabulary. Time passes on, and he enters Tavern the third; a red light outside; a hiccoughing and besotted group inside. He will be dragged out of doors about two o'clock in the morning and left on the sidewalk, because the bartender wants to shut up. The poor victim has taken the regular course in the college of degradation. He has his diploma written on his swollen, bruised and blotched physiognomy. He is a regular graduate of the Three Taverns. As the police take him in and put him in the ambulance, the wheels seem to rumble with two rolls of thunder, one of which says, "Look not upon the wine when it is red, when it moveth itself aright in the cup, for at last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder." The other thunder roll says, "All drunkards shall have their place in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone. * * *

With these thoughts I cheer Christian reformers in their work, and what rejoicing on earth and heaven there will be over the consummation. Within a few days one of the greatest of the leaders in this cause went up to enthronement. The world never had but one Neal Dow, and may never have another. He has been an illumination to the century. The stand he took has directly and indirectly saved hundreds of thousands from drunkards' graves. Seeing the wharves of Portland, Maine, covered with casks of West Indian rum (nearly an acre of it at one time), and the city smoking with seven distilleries, he began the warfare against drunkenness more than half a century ago. The good he has done, the homes he has kept inviolate, the high moral sense with which he has infused ten generations, is a story that neither earth nor heaven can afford to let die. Derided, belittled, caricatured, maligned, for a quarter of a century as few men have been he has lived on until at his decease universal newspaperdom speaks his praise and the eulogiums of his career on this side of the sea have been caught up by the cathedral organ sounding his requiem on the other. His whole life having been for God and the world's betterment, when at half-past three o'clock in the afternoon of October second he left his home on earth surrounded by loving ministers, and entered the gates of his eternal residence, I think there was a most unusual welcome and salutation given him. Multitudes enter heaven only because of what Christ has done for them, the welcome not at all intensified because of anything they had done for him. But all heaven knew the story of that good man's life, and the beauty of his death-bed, where he said, "I long to be free." I think all the reformers of heaven came out to hail him in, the departed legislators who made laws to restrain intemperance, the consecreated platform orators who thrilled the generations that are gone, with "righteousness, temperance, and judgment to come"—Albert Barnes and John B. Gough were there to greet him, and golden-tongued patriarch Stephen H. Tyng was there, and John W. Hawkins, the founder of the much derided and gloriously useful "Washingtonian Movement" was there, and John Sterns and Commodore Foote, and Dr. Marsh and Governor Briggs and Eliphalet Nott, and my lovely friend Alfred Colquitt, the Christian Senator, and hundreds of those who labored for the overthrow of the drunkenness that yet curses the earth, were there to meet him and escort him to his throne and shout at his coronation.

God let him live on for near a century, to show what good habits and cheerfulness and faith in the final triumph of all that is good, can do for a man in this world, and to add to the number of those who would be on the other side to attend his entrance. But he will come back again! "Yes," say some of you, with Martha, about Lazarus to Jesus, "I know he will rise at the Resurrection of the last day." Ah! I do not mean that. Ministering spirits are all the time coming and going between earth and heaven—the Bible teaches it—and do you suppose the old hero just ascended will not come down and help us in the battle that still goes on? He will. Into the hearts of discouraged reformers he will come to speak good cheer. When legislators are deciding how they can best stop the rum traffic of America by legal enactment, he will help them vote for the right and rise up undismayed from temporary defeat. In this battle will Neal Dow be until the last victory is gained and the smoke of the last distillery has curled on the air, and the last tear of despoiled homesteads shall be wiped away. O departed nonagenarian! After you have taken a good rest from your struggle of seventy active years, come down again into the fight, and bring with you a host of the old Christian warriors who once mingled in the fray.

In this battle the visible troops are not so mighty as the invisible. The gospel campaign began with the supernatural—the midnight chant that woke the shepherds, the hushed sea, the eyesight given where the patient had been without the optic nerve, the sun obliterated from the noonday heavens, the law of gravitation loosing its grip as Christ ascended; and as the gospel campaign began with the supernatural, it will close with the supernatural; and the winds and the waves and the lightnings and the earthquakes will come in on the right side and against the wrong side; and our ascended champions will return, whether the world sees them or does not see them. I do not think that those great souls departed are going to do nothing hereafter but sing psalms and play harps, and breathe frankincense, and walk seas of glass mingled with fire. The mission they fulfilled while in the body will be eclipsed by their post-mortem mission, with faculties quickened and velocities multiplied; and it may have been to that our dying reformer referred when he said, "I long to be free!" There may be bigger words than this to be redeemed, and more gigantic abominations to be overthrown than this world ever saw; and the discipline gotten here may only be preliminary drill for a campaign in some other world, and perhaps some other constellation. But the crowned heroes and heroines, because of their grander achievements in greater spheres, will not forget this old world where they prayed and suffered and triumphed. Church militant and Church triumphant but two divisions of the same army—right wing and left wing.

ANIMALS WITHOUT FEAR.

Some That Seem Not to Know What It Is to Be Afraid.

Here is something from our animal friends that you may read in connection with Mr. Aaron's article on the same subject: In contrast with the animals that show great fear of man and that distrust all unfamiliar sights and sounds we find others that seem not to know what it is to be afraid. You have probably noticed that some animals will make friends fearlessly the moment they meet you, just as some children are never shy, because they take it for granted that everyone is their friend. There is a difference, however, between fearlessness and courage. Let us give you an example of what we mean. If in walking across a field you flush a partridge and she pretends to be lame, fluttering at your feet, doing all she can to attract your attention, it is not because she feels no fear. On the contrary, she is in an agony of terror. Her nest is close by, her children cannot save themselves, and she is offering you her life for theirs. This is not fearlessness; it is courage, and courage of the highest kind. The brave mother bird that is ready to die for her little ones fears more for them than you can understand. True fearlessness, on the other hand, is perfectly ignorant, and touches our hearts in a different way. A naturalist whom we know tells a pretty story of meeting a little mouse one day in the middle of a mountain lake. The tiny creature was swimming vigorously for the shore, but when the man in the boat stretched out a friendly oar to meet him the little mouse ran up it at once and into the palm of the strangers' hand, where "he sat for some time and arranged his fur and warmed himself. He did not," the naturalist tells us, "show the slightest fear." It was probably the first time he had shaken hands with a human being and he liked it. "He was what we call a meadow mouse, but he had doubtless lived all his life in the woods, and was strangely unsophisticated. How his little round eyes did shine, and how he sniffed me to find out if I were more dangerous than I appeared to his sight."

A SNAKE BITE.

Remarkable Recovery After Being Bitten.

Mr. F. T. Summers, who arrived in Liverpool on September 3 from the west coast of Africa, tells an extraordinary tale of his recovery from snake bite: Mr. Summers, who was chief engineer of the steamer Ebani, had an encounter with a double-horned viper. The snake was about 7 feet long, and Summers is said to be the only man in Africa who has ever survived a bite from a snake of this species. It seems that the natives of Opobo reported a wild elephant in the bush, and District Commissioner Stein of the Niger Coast Protectorate and Mr. Summers went in pursuit. The snake, which made a dash at Summers unobserved, fixed its fangs in the ankle of the right boot. After getting free Summers, who showed great pluck, managed with the aid of his companion, to dispatch the viper by blowing its head off. Immediately after being bitten Summers' leg commenced to swell, and he was carried with all speed to the consulate. In less than an hour the leg was three times its natural size, and the clothing had to be cut from Summers' body. Dr. Thompson, of the Protectorate, who treated the injury, twice injected into the wound either iodine or bromide of potassium. The poison of the viper had entered Summers' body, and even the doctor thought death would take place within nine hours. The chiefs and natives who had been consulted by the doctor to see if they knew of any native antidote, said all persons previously bitten had died in about an hour. Summers was eleven days in the consulate receiving the unremitting attention of Dr. Thompson, and although he was at times delirious, he pulled through. His recovery created great astonishment. Dr. Thompson has written to a medical journal an account of his treatment of the bite.—London Daily Mail.

Value and Uses of Cotton-Seed Waste.

"Cotton-seed waste, which a generation ago accumulated at the ginhouses, filled up the streams, rotted in the fields, and became an irritating nuisance, is now worth about thirty million dollars a year," writes William George Jordan on "Wonders of the World's Waste," in the Ladies' Home Journal. "Every bale of cotton leaves a legacy of half a ton of seed, which, it is said, brings the planter nearly as much as his cotton. The oil is used for finer grades of soap, as a substitute for lard, and is so near olive oil that an expert can hardly detect the difference. The hulls are fed to cattle, make an excellent fuel, are valuable as paper stock, and when burned the ashes make a fertilizer which is most efficacious. It has recently been discovered that cotton-seed oil, with the addition of eighteen per cent of crude India rubber, makes an imitation which cannot be distinguished from genuine rubber."

NEW ROUTE TO HEALTH.

Little, fragrant, palatable tablets, in a dainty enameled metal box, just right for the vest pocket or the lady's purse. On the tablets are stamped the letters, "C. C. C." Cascarets, Candy Cathartic. Eat one like candy and the little tablet at once purifies and regulates the whole digestive canal. It destroys disease germs in the mouth and throat, stops souring of undigested food in the stomach, stirs up the liver, and tones and strengthens the bowels, making them act healthily and naturally. They are well and widely advertised in the press, but the best advertisement for Cascarets is the wonderfully mild yet positive action, which makes a Cascaret convert of everyone that tries them. We recommend them to all our readers.

POWERS OF MUSIC.

ANCIENT PHYSICIANS BELIEVED SOUNDS WOULD CURE.

Effect on Philip of Spain—In Egypt Certain Songs Were Used to Promote Virtue in the Young—Stories About Famous Musicians.

THE powerful influence of music on our intellectual faculties and consequently on our health has long been ascertained, either in raising the energies of the mind or producing despondency and melancholy associations of ideas, says the Fireside. Impressed with its sublime nature the ancients gave it a divine origin. Diodorus tells us that it was a boon bestowed on mankind after the deluge and owed its discovery to the sound produced by the wind when whistling through the reeds that grew on the banks of the Nile. This science became the early study of philosophers and physicians. Herophilus explained the alterations of the pulse by the various modes, and rhythms of music. In the sacred writings we have many instances of its influence. The derangement of Saul yielded to the harp of David and the hand of the Lord came upon Elisha as the minstrel played. In Egypt certain songs were legally ordained in the education of youth to promote virtue and morality.

Polybius assures us that music was required to soften the manners of the Arcadians, whose climate was heavy and impure; while the inhabitants of Cynaethe, who neglected this science, were the most barbarous in Greece. The medical power of harmonious sounds was also fully admitted. We find Pythagoras directing certain mental disorders to be treated by music. Thales was said to have even cured a disastrous pestilence by its means. Martinus Capella affirms that fevers were thus removed. Xenocrates was credited with curing maniacs by melodious sounds, and Asclepiades deafness with a trumpet. In modern times it has been related of a deaf lady that she could only hear while a drum was beating, and a drummer was kept in her house for the purpose of enabling her to converse. Aulus Gellius tells us that a case of sciatica was cured by gentle modulations, and Theophrastus maintains that the bites of serpents and other venomous reptiles can be relieved by similar means. Ancient physicians, who attributed many diseases to the influence of evil spirits, fancied that harmonious sounds drove them away, more especially when accompanied by incantations; and we find in Luther "that music is one of the most beautiful and glorious gifts of God, to which Satan is a bitter enemy." In more modern times we have several instances of the medical powers of music. The effect produced by Farinelli on Philip of Spain is well known. This monarch was in such a deplorable state of despondency from ill-health that he refused to be shaved or to appear in public. On the arrival of Farinelli the queen was resolved to try the power of music, and a concert was ordered in a room adjoining the king's chamber. Farinelli sung two of his best airs, which so overcame Philip that he desired he might be brought into his presence, when he promised to grant him any reasonable request he might make. The performer, in the most respectful manner, then begged the king to allow himself to be shaved and attended by his domestics, to which Philip consented. Farinelli continued to sing to him daily until a perfect cure was effected. The story of Tartini is rather curious; In a moment of musical enthusiasm he fell asleep, when the devil was said to have appeared to him playing on the violin, bidding him with a horrible grin to play as well as he did. Struck with the vision, the musician awoke, ran to his harpsichord and produced a splendid sonata. Bruckman and Hufeland relate cases of St. Vitus' dance cured by music, which, according to Desessarts, also was reported to have relieved catalepsy. Schneider and Becker have ascertained its influence in hysteria and hypochrondriac affections. A singular effect of music is related by Roger in the case of a poor wretch broken upon the wheel. In his agonies he screamed in the most fearful manner. Some itinerant musicians chanced to pass by; they were stopped and requested to play to the sufferer, when, to the surprise of all around, he seemed relieved, and became so tranquil that he confessed his manifold offenses and died, according to the tale, with "calm resignation." It seems more likely that the man lost consciousness owing to the horrible torture inflicted.

KLEMME - - IOWA.

A great many orators mix the oil of eloquence with the water of weak arguments.

Wet weather or dry, it is all one to oil, which, having served a proud apprenticeship at soothing troubled waters, is now equally efficacious in laying dust along railway tracks. Unctuous and ambidextrous, oil is king.

Rev. Dr. Rylance, rector of St. Mark's church, New York, who has just returned from abroad, declares that he is an enemy of "blue laws." He says England and France would not stand for such a measure as the Raines law, and that the Sunday of European countries is more conducive to the happiness of the people than our so-called dry Sunday.

The length of the Indian frontier which is threatened by the attacks of the tribesmen, from the Chitral district to Baluchistan, is about five hundred miles. The Swati, Momand, Ozarkzai, Afridi and other tribes which are fighting against the English are hardy mountaineers, living on the slopes of the Hindu Kush range. Most of them occupy debatable ground between Afghan and British territory, and they acknowledge no allegiance to either authority. Some of them have been subsidized by the Indian government, and the Afridis, the most warlike of them, have furnished recruits for the Indian army.

The labor leader who says that low wages comes from the competition of women, and that this is why male workmen cannot afford to marry, is more or less right; but unfortunately women have to live somehow, and they must have money to do it. The difficulty with labor leaders is that they look at things as they ought to be and not as they are; but capital as well as labor is subjected to conditions most of which are inevitable. For, of course, the women can't be assassinated; and, after all, affection rules to some extent, and there are proportionately more marriages among the very poor than the very rich.

The turn of life is a turning either into a prolonged walk or into the grave. Between the ages of forty and sixty a man who has lived a proper life ought to be considered in his prime. His matured strength of constitution renders him almost impervious to the attacks of disease, and experience has given him soundness and ripeness of judgment. His mind is resolute, firm, and equal; all his functions are in the most perfect order. He assumes a mastery over his business, builds up a competence on the foundation he has formed in early manhood, and passes through a period of life attended by many gratifications. Having gone a year or two past sixty, he arrives at a standstill. But here comes what we have termed the turn of life, which, if successfully negotiated, leads to old age. At this period gout and apoplexy lie in wait for the traveler. The system and powers having reached their utmost expansion, now begin either to close in like flowers at sunset, or to break down at once. One injudicious stimulant, a single excitement, may force it beyond its strength, whilst a careful supply of props and the necessary care and attention should sustain the system in health and vigor.

It really seems to be the exception nowadays to take up a daily paper without finding the account of a suicide of a man or woman by means of carbolic acid. The latest case is that of a man who poisoned himself at his wife's grave, and it appears in evidence that he had pawned his coat to buy the carbolic acid with which he effected his purpose. Now, carbolic acid is a virulent poison; a few drops will kill a dog, and plants expire in a dilute aqueous solution of it, and yet it can be obtained easily and without restriction by any one who desires to obtain it for legitimate or illegitimate purposes. Even a child may purchase at a shop without any difficulty for a few cents as much of this virulent poison as will kill half a dozen persons. Surely the time has arrived when something should be done to restrict the sale of this acid, the more particularly when it is considered that by far the largest number of deaths by poisoning is caused by its agency, and it seems to be the favorite means of self-destruction by women. It is nothing less than a scandal that this article should not be included among the scheduled poisons. If the legislature has decreed the prussic acid, by which painless death is produced, shall not be available to the public except under medical supervision, then why in the name of reason should carbolic acid, which causes the most frightful suffering, be within the reach of all? An alteration in the existing legislation in this matter is urgently called for.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

KILLS HIS SON-IN-LAW.

Family Tragedy at Keokuk—Murder in Self Defense.

KEOKUK, Oct. 19.—John Harris shot and instantly killed George Kebo, the bullet going through the latter's head. Kebo was a son-in-law of Harris. He had but recently served a term in the penitentiary at Ft. Madison. His wife refused to live with him since his release from prison, making her home at her father's house. Kebo, armed with a shotgun and revolver, broke open the door of the Harris house. Harris met him and demanded his business. For an answer Kebo shot at him. Harris then fired point blank at him, killing him instantly. He gave himself up to the authorities, pleading self defense.

KEOKUK, Oct. 20.—The coroner's jury returned a verdict to the effect that the shooting of George Kebo by John Harris, was justifiable homicide. Harris was immediately released from jail. The sentiment of the community was so strongly in favor of Harris that three hours after the killing voluntary bail to the amount of $100,000 had been offered in his behalf.

JENSEN HANSON KILLED.

His Mutilated Body Found Lying Along the Northwestern Track.

ELDORA, Oct. 21.—Dispatches from New Providence state that the body of a man was found lying besides the tracks of the Toledo branch of the Chicago & Northwestern, one and one-half miles east of Lawn Hill. Further particulars say that from a piece of paper found on the man's clothing he has been identified as one Jensen Hanson, a farmer living half way between Union and Gifford. Hanson was a middle-aged man and leaves a wife and twelve children. The body was horribly mutilated, and one leg could not be found.

ELDORA, Oct. 22.—It is now believed that Jens Hanson, whose mutilated remains were found on the Northwestern track near Gifford, was murdered. Circumstances surrounding the case make it look suspicious. He was known to have had $100 on his person the evening of his death, and when the body was discovered the money was missing.

BIG THING FOR SIOUX CITY.

Packing House Which Will Employ 1,000 Men is About Assured.

SIOUX CITY, Oct. 23.—The Cudahys are to locate a big packing plant at Sioux City. They are to spend $200,000 in improvements of the old plant this fall, and the contract is for ten years. They will employ 1,000 men before the end of the year, and it is a big thing for Sioux City. It is said, also, that it will not be long before the Silberhorn packing house will be reopened, as Cudahy wants competition. This practically puts a corner on all the hogs west of the Missouri river.

The Ballot Controversy.

DES MOINES, Oct. 19.—A. W. C. Weeks has filed with the supreme court a petition for a writ of certiorari to correct the alleged illegal action of the Polk county judges. Though state chairman of the middle-of-the-road populists, Mr. Weeks signs the petition merely as "attorney for the plaintiffs." The strongest point in his paper is his assertion that the court granted relief to the fusion populists not asked for in their petition, when it ruled the state election board acted illegally in putting the middle-of-the-road candidates on the ballot that was certified.

Des Moines' Union Depot.

DES MOINES, Oct. 22.—F. M. Hubbell, who is in consultation with General Manager Ramsey, of the Wabash, relative to proposed plans for a union depot, says that, though it is too late for the depot to be started this fall, it will surely be built in the near future. Mr. Hubbell says that the Iowa Central and the Chicago, Fort Madison & Des Moines will enter Des Moines soon, the latter road probably extending its line to Des Moines from Ottumwa next year.

Child Chewed by a Dog.

VAN WERT, Oct. 23.—Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Water's 6-year-old child was badly bitten about the head and face by their dog. The face was badly chewed and the flesh was torn on the forehead, requiring the doctor to take nine stitches to draw the flesh back to place.

MARSHALLTOWN, Oct. 21.—Tom Vaughn, for many years a resident of Marshalltown, met almost instant death by falling from the roof of the old court house, now the property of Kirby & Howe. Vaughn was a carpenter by trade.

Fred Gilbert the Champion.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 23.—Fred Gilbert, of Spirit Lake, Iowa, defeated Elliott of Missouri, and won the Dupont trophy and the live bird championship of the world.

KILLED BY HIS BROTHER.

Calvin Chaddock Dies From Effects of a Blow With a Poker.

DES MOINES, Oct. 25.—Calvin Chaddock, a young man 26 years of age, living with his mother, died at Mercy hospital as the result of a blow with a poker, said to have been inflicted by his brother William. The fatal blow was struck in the course of a quarrel between the brothers. As the outcome of the affair, William has been placed under arrest on a warrant issued by Coroner Ankeny and will be held pending the investigation of the facts by the coroner's jury. The assault was committed, it is claimed, while Calvin was under the influence of liquor. Calvin forced William into a corner and the latter claims he did not intend to injure Calvin, and that he endeavored to strike his arm. Instead of this, the poker fell across Calvin's temple with crushing force. The assault was witnessed by the mother of the boys and by their sister, Miss Ada Chaddock. The young man was removed to the hospital, where he died in great agony.

SIOUX CITY AT A STANDSTILL

Cannot Issue Any More Warrants, Bonds or Bills.

SIOUX CITY, Oct. 23.—On application of the State Bank Building Company, Judge Gaynor has enjoined the city officers from issuing any more bonds warrants or other evidences of indebtedness until the final adjudication of the action. The application practicaliy asks the repudiation of all the city's indebtedness in excess of 5 per cent constitutional limit. It is alleged the city is in debt $1,500,000 on bonds and $300,000 more on a floating indebtedness and that the legal limit is but $300,000. The county officers were also enjoined from levying certain taxes. It has caused quite a sensation in the city.

Sues His Uncle for $10,000.

TRAER, Oct. 23.—The unpleasantness that has arisen among the heirs of the Janet Galt estate does not abate. William Galt has commenced action against Peter McCornack for $10,000 damages of character alleged to have been sustained on account of charges and statements made by his uncle at various times since the trouble began.

IOWA CONDENSED.

An excellent opening for general mercantile business. A partner with some capital wanted. Enquire RX, Lock Box 54, Des Moines, Ia.

Fred K. Bosler, an upholsterer by trade, was found dead under the red bridge north of Burlington. He was lying on his side on the sand below, his coat torn at the right elbow, which probably was caused by the fall. Few bruises were on him and a mystery which will probably never be cleared surrounds his death. He was well known and leaves two daughters and a son.

Foster Bain, of the Iowa geological survey, says the bluffs north of Hawarden contain a chalk and clay which, if mixed in with a percentage of purer chalk, will make a cement equal to the celebrated Portland cement. He says his opinion is confirmed by an eastern geologist who has made an analysis. Mr. Bain is also of the opinion that coal in paying quantities will never be found in northwestern Iowa. The supposed coal found at Hawarden is a low grade of ignite.

Des Moines dispatch: Iowa road peddlers, who were made to pay a license fee of $25 by the last legislature, have appealed to the federal court. They made a test case. One of their number were arrested and brought before Justice Blyler. Now they have appealed to Judge Woolson of the federal court for a writ of habeas corpus in release the man. If the writ is granted, the law will be invalidated. Meanwhile the 200 peddlers that travel out of Des Moines are idle.

ALL OVER THE WORLD

PULLMAN IS DEAD.

Sleeping Car Magnate Stricken With Heart Disease.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—George M. Pullman died suddenly of heart disease at 5 o'clock yesterday morning. His death occurred at his magnificent residence on Prairie avenue and Eighteenth street. He was found dead in bed. Mr. Pullman retired at his usual early hour, apparently in ordinary health, with no indication of his sudden demise, or indeed, any premonition of illness. George M. Pullman was born in Chautauqua county, New York, March 3, 1831. At the age of 14 he became a clerk in a country store; then with his brother he went into the cabinet making business. He came to Chicago in 1859 and engaged in raising buildings, meantime working out the idea of a sleeping car. His first car, "Pioneer," was completed in 1865. From this beginning has grown the great Pullman system.

PRIVATE HAMMOND ABUSED.

Brutally Treated, He Claims, by an American Weyler.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—At Fort Sheridan to-day Private Hammond told the story of his treatment by Capt. Lovering to a military court of inquiry. Hammond said he was in the guardhouse. When he refused to walk to the summary court, Lovering ordered the guards to drag him out. They did so. They tied a rope around his feet and dragged him from one part of the grounds to the other, up stairs and down. Capt. Lovering accompanying them, kicking, cursing, heaping vile epithets on the prisoner, and twice wounding him with his sword. He had to go to the hospital and have the wounds dressed, and has since been in confinement on bread and water. The story of Private Hammond was confirmed by the court of inquiry in session at Fort Sheripan.

HAWAII, AMERICA, GERMANY

Latter Wants Samoa—Hawaii Committee Opposes Annexation.

HONOLULU, Oct. 25.—It has been definitely decided among the Hawaiians opposing annexation that a commission of five men shall be sent to Washington to make a determined fight against the ratification of the annexation treaty. A prominent citizen, who has recently returned from Germany, states that the Hawaiian annexation question is receiving some consideration among the German people. A number of prominent Germans have expressed themselves in favor of the amalgamation of the two republics. In that event they think that Germany should be allowed to take Samoa without interference on the part of the United States. This they deem a simple matter of fairness and justice.

WANTS THE ARMY INCREASED.

General Miles Says It Should Be 35,000 to 70,000 Men.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Gen. Nelson Miles, commanding general of the army, in his annual report to the secretary of war, commends the efficiency of the army, and speaks of the progress on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts in the matter of fortifications. He asks congress to authorize two more regiments of artillery to garrison the new fortifications; also five regiments of infantry. He recommends at least three military posts established in Alaska to support the civil authorities. He makes recommendations for the protection of coast points, and says the maximum peace footing of the army should be one enlisted man for every 1,000 people, and the minimum one to every 2,000.

SALISBURY WOULD RETIRE.

Interesting Contest Likely for Succession to the Premiership.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—In spite of the official denial of the Marquis of Salisbury's approaching resignation of the premiership, belief in its truth is very strong in political circles, where it is considered that his retirement is inevitable within a few months. This view of the undercurrent was expressed by a cabinet minister on Wednesday, who private remarked that the Duke of Devonshire had declared that he means to have the premiership when the Marquis of Salisbury resigns. Balfour is also to be a candidate and the contest will probably prove an interesting one.

Cyclone in Philippines.

MADRID, Oct. 22.—A dispatch from Leyte, the Philippine Islands, says that place has been almost devastated by a cyclone. Many persons were killed and the damage is incalculable. The cyclone also destroyed the towns of Tagloban and Hernaniona, same island, and several villages. It is estimated that about 400 lives were lost. The damage is estimated at 7,500,000 pesetas.

RURAL MAIL DELIVERY

Assistant Heath Recommends Some Postal Changes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—First Assistant Postmaster General Heath has completed his report for the year ending June 30, last. He recommends provision for ten special examiners, experts in real estate values, to inquire into postmasters' requisitions and demands. He asks authority to rent offices for ten years instead of five; desires more latitude in congressional postoffices and adjoining large cities. In the light of the results achieved by the tests in the selected locations in 1892, he states he recommends that rural free delivery be gradually enlarged with a view to the final inclusion of all except sparsely settled parts of the country. The report also contains the usual statistics and estimates.

Currency Reform Plan Made.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 23.—The monetary commission adjourned to November 2 next. It is understood that a practical agreement has been reached as to the general outlines of a plan for a reform in the currency, and that soon after they reassemble they will prepare for the public a statement of their conclusions. What will be the nature of this statement has not been made public.

Rioting Miners.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 55.—A mob of 200 striking miners attacked men at work in the mines at Mount Carbon and forced them to quit work. James and Robert Edies were beaten unmercifully by the strikers. Sheriff McVey was telegraphed for and left for Mt. Carbon. If he cannot succeed in stopping the trouble he will call on the governor for troops.

Record for Joe Patchen.

JOLIET, Ill., Oct. 22.—Joe Patchen broke the world's record for pacing a mile to a wagon on the Ingalls Park track. Marks's great horse was at his best and pulled the wagon around the circle in 2:04¾, cutting the best previous mark, 2:08½, by three and three-quarters seconds.

State Will Push the Case.

CHICAGO, Oct. 25.—The state's attorney has decided to put Luetgert on trial a second time this week.

BREVITIES.

It is stated that an outbreak of disease, supposed to be the bubonic plague, has occurred in the village of Jullundur, in the Punjeis district. Twenty-three deaths from this cause have already been reported.

The town of Windsor, N. S., was fire-swept, a few days ago, and 3,000 people are homeless. Seven-eights of the town was entirely wiped out. Two lives were lost, Michael Whalen and his wife, an aged couple, and two children of Walter Mosher, a boy of 12 and a girl of 9, were badly burned. The property loss is estimated at $300,000.

In India recently two squadrons of the Ninth Bengal lancers fell into ambuscade in the hills between Bara and Mamanni. A native officer and fourteen Sowars were killed. The Salarzais have surrendered 157 guns and the Mahmuds have completed their submission to the British authorities and have promised to be loyal in the future.

A dispatch from Havana says that during a number of recent engagements between the Spanish troops and the insurgents the latter lost 162 men killed and 97 were captured and 247 submitted to the Spanish authorities. The Spanish loss during the same engagements, the official report adds, was six men killed and thirty-eight wounded.

Deeds were signed a few days ago completing the purchase of the last 780 acres of a 17,000 acre tract of land in Iron county, Missouri, that is designed to form one of the greatest game preserves in the United States. The purchaser is the Mountain and Lake Fishing club, including in membership many well known men in St. Louis. The intention of the club is to present the preserve to the state at the expiration of fifty years.

The Neueste Nachrichten, of Leipsic, Germany, publishes a report of a conversation which Prince Bismarck is said to have had with a recent visitor, during which the ex-chancellor is quoted as saying that the Monroe doctrine is "uncommon insolence toward the rest of the world, and does violence to the other American states and European states with American interests." It would be analogous, the prince is said to have added, if Russia and France combined to disallow frontier changes in Europe, or the preponderant powers in Asia. Russia and Great Britain, arrogated the right to forbid changes of the political status. Continuing, Prince Bismarck is reported to have remarked: "Their great wealth, due to the soil of America, has led the American legislators to overestimate their own rights and underestimate the rights of the other American and the European states."

THE FROZEN DEEP.

A NOVEL BY WILKIE COLLINS.

INTERNATIONAL PRESS ASSOCIATION.

CHAPTER XIV.—(CONTINUED.)

"Don't look at me, don't speak to me, in that horrible manner!" she exclaimed. "Clara, it is unworthy of a reasonable being, it is doubting the mercy of God, to say what you have just said. Look at the newspaper again. See! They tell you plainly that their information is not to be depended upon—they warn you to wait for further particulars. The very words at the top of the list prove how little they know of the truth. 'Dead or missing!' On their own showing it is quite as likely that Frank is missing as that Frank is dead. For all you know, the next mail may bring a letter from him. Are you listening to me?"

"Yes."

"Can you deny what I say?"

"No."

"'Yes!' 'No!' Is that the way to answer me when I am so distressed and so anxious about you?"

"I am sorry I spoke as I did, Lucy. We both look at some subjects in very different ways. I don't dispute, dear, that yours is the reasonable view."

"You don't dispute?" retorted Mrs. Crayford, warmly. "No! you do what is worse—you believe in your own opinion—you persist in your own conclusion—with the newspaper before you! Do you, or do you not, believe the newspaper?"

"I believe in what I saw last night."

"In what you saw last night! You, an educated woman, a clever woman, believing in a vision of your own fancy—a mere dream! I wonder you are not ashamed to acknowledge it!"

"Call it a dream if you like, Lucy. I have had other dreams, at other times, and I have known them to be fulfilled."

"Yes!" said Mrs. Crayford. "For once in a way they may have been fulfilled, by chance—and you notice it, and remember it, and pin your faith on it. Come, Clara, be honest! What about the occasions when the chance has been against you, and your dreams have not been fulfilled? You superstitious people are all alike. You conveniently forget when your dreams and your presentiments prove false. For my sake, dear, if not your own," she continued, in gentler and tenderer tones, "try to be more reasonable and more hopeful. Don't lose your trust in the future and your trust in God. God, who has saved my husband, can save Frank. While there is doubt there is hope. Don't embitter my happiness, Clara? Try to think as I think—if it's only to show that you love me."

She put her arm around the girl's neck and kissed her. Clara returned the kiss! Clara answered sadly and submissively: "I do love you, Lucy. I will try."

Having answered in thoes terms, she sighed to herself, and said no more. It would have been plain, only too plain, to far less observant eyes than Mrs. Crayford's that no salutary impression had been produced on her. She had ceased to defend her own way of thinking, she spoke of it no more; but there was the terrible conviction of Frank's death at Wardour's hands rooted as firmly as ever in her mind! Discouraged and distressed, Mrs. Crayford left her, and walked back toward the house.

CHAPTER XV.

T the drawing-room window of the villa there appeared a polite little man, with bright, intelligent eyes and cheerful, social manners. Neatly dressed in professional black, he stood, self-proclaimed, a prosperous country doctor—successful and popular in a wide circle of patients and friends. As Mrs. Crayford approached him, he stepped out briskly to meet her on the lawn, with both hands extended in courtecus and cordial greeting.

"My dear madam, accept my heartfelt congratulations!" cried the doctor. "I have seen the good news in the paper; and I could hardly feel more rejoiced than I do now, if I had the honor of knowing Lieutenant Crayford personally. We mean to celebrate the occasion at home. I said to my wife before I came out, 'A bottle of the old Madeira at dinner to-day, mind!—to drink the lieutenant's health. God bless him!' And how is our interesting patient? The news is not altogether what we could wish, so far as she is concerned. I felt a little anxious, to tell you the truth, about the effect of it, and I have paid my visit to-day before the usual time. Not that I take a gloomy view of the news myself. No! There is clearly a doubt about the correctness of the information, as far as Mr. Aldersley is concerned—and that is a point, a great point, in Mr. Aldersley's favor. I give him the benefit of the doubt, as the lawyers say. Does Miss Burnham give him the benefit of the doubt, too? I hardly dare hope it, I confess."

"Miss Burnham has grieved and alarmed me," Mrs. Crayford answered. "I was just thinking of sending for you, when we met here."

With those introductory words she told the doctor exactly what had happened; repeating, not only the conversation of that morning between Clara and herself, but also the words which had fallen from Clara in the trance of the past night.

The doctor listened attentively. Little by little, its easy smiling composure vanished from his face as Mrs. Crayford went on, and left him completely transformed into a grave and thoughtful man.

"Let us go and look at her," he said.

He seated himself by Clara's side, and carefully studied her face, with his hand on her pulse. There was no sympathy here, between the dreamy mystical temperament of the patient and the downright practical character of the doctor. Clara secretly disliked her medical attendant. She submitted impatiently to the close investigation of which he made her the object. He questioned her, and she answered irritably. Advancing a step further (the doctor was not easily discouraged) he adverted to the news of the expedition, and took up the tone of remonstrances that had been already adopted by Mrs. Crayford. Clara declined to discuss the question. She rose with formal politeness, and requested permission to return to the house. The doctor attempted no further resistance. "By all means, Miss Burnham," he answered, resignedly—having first cast a look at Mrs. Crayford which said plainly, "Stay here with me." Clara bowed her acknowledgments in cold silence, and left them together. The doctor's bright eyes followed the girl's wasted, yet still graceful figure, as it slowly receded from view, with an expression of grave anxiety, which Mrs. Crayford noticed with grave misgiving on her side. He said nothing until Clara had disappeared under the veranda which ran around the garden side of the house.

"I think you told me," he began, "that Miss Burnham has neither father nor mother living?"

"Yes. Miss Burnham is an orphan."

"Has she any near relatives?"

"No. You may speak to me as her guardian and her friend. Are you alarmed about her?"

"I am seriously alarmed. It is only two days since I called here last—and I see a marked change in her for the worse. Physically and morally a change for the worse. Don't needlessly alarm yourself. The case is not, I trust entirely beyond the reach of remedy. The great hope for us is in the hope that Mr. Aldersley may still be living. In that event, I should feel no misgivings about the future. Her marriage would make a healthy and happy woman of her. But, as things are, I own I dread that settled conviction in her mind that Mr. Aldersley is dead, and that her own death is soon to follow. In her present state of health, that idea (haunting her. as it certainly will, day and night), will have its influence on her body as well as on her mind. Unless we can check the mischief her last reserve of strength will give way. If you wish for other advice, by all means send for it. You have my opinion."

"I am quite satisfied with your opinion," Mrs. Crayford replied. "It is your advice I want. For God's sake, tell me what we can do."

"We can try a complete change," said the doctor. "We can remove her from this place."

"She will refuse to leave it," Mrs. Crayford replied. "I have more than once proposed a change to her—and she always says No."

The doctor paused for a moment, like a man collecting his thoughts.

"I heard something on my way here," he proceeded, which suggests to my mind a method of meeting the difficulty that you have just mentioned. Unless I am entirely mistaken, Miss Burnham will not say no to the change I have in view for her."

"What is it?" asked Mrs. Crayford, eagerly.

"Pardon me if I ask you a question on my part, before I reply," said the doctor. "Are you fortunate enough to possess any interest at the admiralty?"

"Certainly. My father is in the secretary's office—and two of the lords of the admiralty are friends of his."

"Excellent! Now, I can speak out plainly with little fear of disappointing you. After what I have said, you will agree with me that the only change in Miss Burnham's life which will be of any use to her is a change that will alter the present tone of her mind on the subject of Mr. Aldersley. Place her in a position to discover—not by reference to her own distempered fancies and visions, but by reference to actual evidence and actual fact—whether Mr. Aldersley is or is not a living man; and there will be an end of the hysterical delusions which now threaten to fatally undermine her health. Even taking matters at their worst—even assuming Mr. Aldersley has died in the Arctic seas—it will be less injurious to her to discover this positively than to leave her mind to feed on its own morbid superstitions and speculations for weeks and weeks together, while the next news from the expedition is on its way to England. In one word, I want you to be in a position, before the week is out, to put Miss Burnham's present convictions to a practical test. Suppose you could say to her, 'We differ, my dear, about Mr. Francis Aldersley. You declare, without the shadow of reason for it, that he is certainly dead, and, worse still, that he has died by the act of one of his brother officers. I assert, on the authority of the newspapers, that nothing of the sort has happened, and that the chances are all in favor of his being still a living man. What do you say to crossing the Atlantic and deciding which of us is right—you or I?' Do you think Miss Burnham would say no to that, Mrs. Crayford? If I know anything of human nature, she will seize the opportunity as a means of converting you to the belief in the Second Sight."

"Good heavens, doctor! do you mean to tell me that we are to go out and meet the Arctic expedition on its way home?"

"Admirably guessed, Mrs. Crayford' That is exactly what I mean."

"But how is it to be done?"

"I will tell you immediately. I mentioned—didn't I—that I had heard something on my road to this house?"

"Yes?"

"Well, I met an old friend at my own gate, who walked with me part of the way here. Last night my friend dined with the admiral at Portsmouth. Among the guests there was a member of the Ministry, who had brought the news about the expedition with him from London. This gentleman told the company that there was very little doubt that the Admiralty would immediately send out a steam vessel, to meet and rescue men on the shores of America, and bring them home. Wait a little, Mrs. Crayford. Nobody knows as yet, under what rules and regulations the vessel will sail. Under somewhat similar circumstances, privileged people have been received as passengers, or rather as guests, in Her Majesty's ships—and what has been conceded on former occasions may, by bare possibility, be conceded now. I can say no more. If you are not afraid of the voyage for yourself, I am not afraid of it (nay, I am all in favor of it on medical grounds) for my patient. What do you say? Will you write to your father and ask him to try what his interest will do with his friends at the Admiralty?"

Mrs. Crayford rose excitedly to her feet.

"Write!" she exclaimed. "I will do better than write. The journey to London is no great matter—and my house? keeper here is to be trusted to take care of Clara in my absence. I will see my father tonight! He shall make good use of his interest at the Admiralty—you may rely on that. Oh, my dear doctor, what a prospect it is! My husband! Clara! What a discovery you have made—what a treasure you are! How can I thank you?"

"Compose yourself, my dear madam. Don't make too sure of success. We may consider Miss Burnham's objections as disposed of beforehand. But suppose the Lords of the Admiralty say No?"

"In that case I shall be in London, doctor; and I shall go to them myself. Lords are only men—and men are not in the habit of saying No to me!" So they parted.

In a week from that day Her Majesty's ship Amazon sailed for North America. Certain privileged persons, specially interested in the Arctic voyagers, were permitted to occupy the empty staterooms on board. On the list of those favored guests of the ship were the names of two ladies—Mrs. Crayford and Miss Burnham.

DISAGREED.

The Luetgert Jury Failed to Reach a Verdict and Are Discharged.

Chicago dispatch: The gray light of a cool autumn morning straggled through the windows of Judge Tuthill's court as Adolph Luetgert, who has been on trial on the charge of murdering his wife and boiling her body in a vat, heard from the foreman of the eleven men who had been considering his case for the past sixty hours, the words, "We are unable to agree upon a verdict." Imperturbable as ever, evincing no joy at the words, the wonderful nerve of the big sausage maker was with him to the last. He stood up, and with only a good natured smile on his swarthy face, shook hands with his son Arnold his counsel, and business partner, Wm. Charles, and was led back to jail; the jury dismissed and the great trial at an end. Later Luetgert made an affidavit for the Associated Press in which he declares that he did not kill his wife and that he does not know where she is, but that it is only a question of time until she comes home.

DANA IS DEAD.

Editor of the New York Sun Passes Away.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Charles A Dana, editor of the New York Sun, is dead. The sole survivor of that great editorial coterie, Greeley, James GordonBennett the first, Raymond, Ripley, Weed, Prentice and McCullagh, passed away at his home in Glencove, L. I., yesterday at the age of 78. Death was due to cirrhosis of the liver. Mr. Dana had been ill since last June, but the serious nature of the disease was not apparent until about a week ago. Already it is expected there will be a tremendous struggle between Paul Dana, the editor's son; William M. Laffan, the second in command, and the Wall street interests for the control of the paper. Charles A. Dana borrowed on his stock, and J. Pierpont Morgan may have much to say regarding the future management of the paper. Which will win is a question agitating newspaper men.

SCORES OF LIVES ARE LOST.

Steamer Wrecked on Cuban Coast and Two Hundred Persons Perished.

Havana dispatch: The coasting steamer Triton, from Havana to Bahia Honda, province of Pinar del Rio, has been wrecked between Dominica and Mariel on the north coast of that province. The steamer went ashore during heavy weather, grounding about eight miles from the coast. The purser and one of the passengers have arrived at Mariel, and say they have no knowledge regarding the fate of the captain, passengers and crew of the Triton. The missing passengers include several well known merchants. It is said the Triton had on board over 200 passengers, soldiers and civilians, and it is feared that they have all perished, in addition to the thirty men composing the steamer's crew. No details of the wreck, however, have yet been received.

THE STAGE.

John L. Sullivan will be seen in a musical farce called "Pleasure on the Ocean."

Louis Harrison will forego the construction of comic opera librettos in favor of comedy.

Madeline Lucette Ryley has made a comic opera libretto from John Tobin's comedy, "The Honeymooners."

The stage version of "The Little Minister" is in four acts and five scenes, of which only two bear any close relation to the novel.

Anthony Hope, the author of "The Prisoner of Zenda," has been engaged to deliver readings in this country under the direction of Major J. B. Pond.

When you know the temptations of players, their emotional nature and their general lack of sound sense, the number of decent folk on the stage seems surprising.

A few weeks ago the editor was taken with a severe cold that caused him to be in a most miserable condition. It was undoubtedly a bad case of la grippe and recognizing it as dangerous he took immediate steps to bring about a speedy cure. From the advertisement of Chamberlian's Cough Remedy and the many good recommendations included therin, we concluded to make a first trial of the medicine. To say that it was satisfactory in its results, is puting it very mildly, indeed. It acted like magic and the result was a speedy and permanent cure. We have no hesitancy in recommending this excellent Cough Remedy to anyone afflicted with a cough or cold in any form.—The Banner of Liberty. Libertytown, Maryland. If Mr. Seth Low really thinks himself so much better than his party, it is a case of gall for him to be asking republicans to vote for him.

When we have women police— Chicago and St. Louis already have them for street inspectors — will they be proof against the wiles of the corner mashers?

If Henry George and Seth Low are so anxious to kill bossism why do they not ask all their followers to vote for only one of them, instead of dividing their strength.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"SINS OF THE TONGUE," SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

From the Text: Acts V. 1—10, as Follows: "A Certain Man Named Ananias, With Sapphira His Wife, Sold a Possession," Etc.

WELL-MATCHED pair, alike in ambition and in falsehood, Ananias and Sapphira. They wanted a reputation for great beneficence, and they sold all their property, pretending to put the entire proceeds in the charity fund, while they put much of it in their own pocket. There was no necessity that they give all their property away, but they wanted the reputation of so doing. Ananias first lied about it and dropped down dead. Then Sapphira lied about it, and she dropped down dead. The two fatalities are a warning to all ages of the danger of sacrificing the truth.

There are thousands of ways of telling a lie. A man's whole life may be a falsehood and yet never with his lips may he falsify once. There is a way of uttering falsehood by look, by manner, as well as by lip. There are persons who are guilty of dishonesty of speech and then afterward say "may be," calling it a white lie, when no lie is that color. The whitest lie ever told was as black as perdition. There are those so given to dishonesty of speech that they do not know when they are lying. With some it is an acquired sin, and with others it is a natural infirmity. There are those whom you will recognize as born liars. Their whole life, from cradle to grave, is filled up with vice of speech. Misrepresentation and prevarication are as natural to them as the infantile diseases, and are a sort of moral croup and spiritual scarlatina. Then there are those who in after life have opportunities of developing this evil, and they go from deception to deception, and from class to class, until they are regularly graduated liars. At times the air in our cities is filled with falsehood, and lies cluster around the mechanic's hammer, blossom on the merchant's yardstick, and sometimes sit on the door of churches. They are called by some fabrication, and they are called by some fiction. You might call them subterfuge or deceit, or romance, or fable, or misrepresentation, or delusion; but as I know nothing to be gained by covering up a God-defying sin with a lexicographer's blanket, I shall call them in plainest vernacular, lies. They may be divided into agricultural, commercial, mechanical, social and ecclesiastical.

First of all, I speak of agricultural falsehoods. There is something in the presence of natural objects that has a tendency to make one pure. The trees never issue false stock. The wheat fields are always honest. Rye and oats never move out in the night, not paying for the place they occupy. Cornshocks never make false assignment. Mountain brooks are always current. The gold of the wheat fields is never counterfeit. But while the tendency of agricultural life is to make one honest, honesty is not the characteristic of all who come to the city markets from the country districts. You hear the creaking of the dishonest farm wagon in almost every street of our great cities—a farm wagon in which there is not one honest spoke, or one truthful rivet, from tongue to tail-board. Again and again has domestic economy in our great cities foundered on the farmer's firkin. When New York and Washington sit down and weep over their sins, let Westchester county and the neighborhoods around this capital sit down and weep over theirs.

The tendency in all rural districts is to suppose that sins and transgressions cluster in our great cities; but citizens and merchants long ago learned that it is not safe to calculate from the character of the apples on the top of the farmer's barrel what is the character of the apples all the way down toward the bottom. Many of our citizens and merchants have learned that it is always safe to see the farmer measure the barrel of beets. Milk cans are not always honest. There are those, who in country life, seem to think they have a right to overreach grain dealers and merchants of all styles. They think it is more honorable to raise corn than to deal in corn. The producer sometimes practically says to the merchant, "You get your money easily, anyhow." Does he get it easily? While the farmer sleeps, and he may go to sleep, conscious of the fact that his corn and rye are all the time progressing and adding to his fortune or his livelihood, the merchant tries to sleep, while conscious of the fact that at that moment the ship may be driving on the rock, or a wave sweeping over the hurricane deck spoiling his goods, or the speculators may be plotting a monetary revolution, or the burglars may be at that moment at his money safe, or the fire may have kindled on the very block where his store stands.

Easy, is it? Let those who get their living on the quiet farm and barn take the place of one of our city merchants and see whether it is so easy. It is hard enough to have the hands blistered with outdoor work, but it is harder with mental anxieties to have the brain consumed. God help the merchants. And do not let those who live in country life come to the conclusion that all the dishonesties belong to city life.

I pass on to consider commercial lies. There are those who apologize for deviations from the right and for practical deception by saying it is commercial custom. In other words, a lie by multiplication becomes a virtue. There are large fortunes gathered in which there is not one drop of the sweat of unrequited toil, and not one spark of bad temper flashes from the bronze bracket, and there is not one drop of needlewoman's heart blood on the crimson plush; while there are other fortunes about which it may be said that on every door knob and on every figure of the carpet, and on every wall there is the mark of dishonor. What if the hand wrung by toil and blistered until the skin comes off should be placed on the exquisite wall paper, leaving its mark of blood—four fingers and a thumb? or, if in the night the man should be aroused from his slumber again and again by his own conscience, getting himself up on elbow and crying out into the darkness, "Who is there?"

There are large fortunes upon which God's favor comes down, and it is just as honest and just as Christian to be affluent as it is to be poor. In many a house there is a blessing on every pictured wall and on every scroll, and on every traceried window, and the joy that flashes in the lights, and that showers in the music and that dances in the quick feet of the children pattering through the hall has in it the favor of God and the approval of man. And there are thousands and tens of thousands of merchants who, from the first day they sold a yard of cloth, or firkin of butter, have maintained their integrity. They were born honest, they will live honest, and they will die honest. But you and I know that there are in commercial life those who are guilty of great dishonesties of speech. A merchant says, "I am selling these goods at less than cost." Is he getting for those goods a price inferior to that which he paid for them? Then he has spoken the truth. Is he getting more? Then he lies. A merchant says: "I paid $25 for this article." Is that the price he paid for it? All right. But suppose he paid for it $23 instead of $25? Then he lies.

But there are just as many falsehoods before the counter as there are behind the counter. A customer comes in and asks: "How much is this article?" "It is five dollars." "I can get that for four somewhere else." Can he get it for four somewhere else, or did he say that just for the purpose of getting it cheap by depreciating the value of the goods? If so, he lied. There are just as many falsehoods before the counter as there are behind the counter. * * *

Social life is struck through with insincerity. They apologize for the fact that the furnace is out; they have not had any fire in it all winter. They apologize for the fare on their table; they never live any better. They decry their most luxuriant entertainment to win a shower of approval from you. They point at a picture on the wall as a work of one of the old masters. They say it is an heirloom in the family. It hung on the wall of a castle. A duke gave it to their grandfather. People that will lie about nothing else will lie about a picture. On small income we want the world to believe we are affluent, and society today is struck through with cheat and counterfeit and sham. How few people are natural! Frigidity sails around, iceberg grinding against iceberg. You must not laugh outright; that is vulgar. Your must smile. You must not dash quickly across the room; that is vulgar. You must glide. Much of society is a round of bows, and grins and grimaces and oh's and ah's and he, he's and simperings and namby-pambyism, a whole world of which is not worth one good honest round of laughter. From such a hollow scene the tortured guest retires at the close of the evening, assuring the host that he has enjoyed himself. Society is become so contorted and deformed in this respect that a mountain cabin where the rustics gather at a quilting or an apple-paring, has in it more good cheer than all the frescoed refrigerators of the metropolis.

I pass on to speak of ecclesiastical lies, those which are told for the advancement or retarding of a church or sect. It is hardly worth your while to ask an extreme Calvinist what an Arminian believes. He will tell you that an Arminian believes that man can save himself. An Arminian believes no such thing. It is hardly worth your while to ask an extreme Arminian what a Calvinist believes. He will tell you that a Calvinist believes that God made some men just to damn them. A Calvinist believes no such thing. It is hardly worth your while to ask a Pedo-Baptist what a Baptist believes. He will tell you a Baptist believes that immersion is necessary for salvation. A Baptist does not believe any such thing. It is hardly worth your while to ask a man, who very much hates Presbyterians, what a Presbyterian believes. He will tell you that a Presbyterian believes that there are infants in hell a span long, and that very phraseology has come down from generation to generation in the Christian church. There never was a Presbyterian who believed that. "Oh," you say, "I heard some Presbyterian minister twenty years ago say so." You did not. There never was a man who believed that, there never will be a man who will believe that. And yet, from boyhood, I have heard that particular slander against a Christian church going down through the community.

Then, how often it is that there are misrepresentations on the part of individual churches in regard to other churches—especially if a church comes to great prosperity. As long as a church is in poverty, and the singing is poor, and all the surroundings are decrepit, and the congregation are so hardly bestead in life that their pastor goes, with elbows out, then there will always be Christian people in churches who say, "What a pity! what a pity!" But let the day of prosperity come to a Christian church, and let the music be triumphant, and let there be vast assemblages, and then there will be even ministers of the Gospel critical and denunciatory and full of misrepresentation and falsification, giving the impression to the outside world that they do not like the corn because it is not ground in their mill. Oh, my friends, let us in all departments of life stand back from deception.

But some one says, "The deception that I practice is so small that it don't amount to anything." Ah, my friends, it does amount to a great deal. You say, "When I deceive, it is only about a case of needles, or a box of buttons, or a row of pins." But the article may be so small you can put it in your vest pocket, but the sin is as big as the pyramids, and the echo of your dishonor will reverberate through the mountains of eternity. There is no such thing as a small sin. They are all vast and stupendous, because they will all have to come under inspection in the Day of Judgment. You may boast yourself of having made a fine bargain—a sharp bargain. You may carry out what the Bible says in regard to that man who went in to make a purchase and depreciated the value of the goods, and then after he had got away boasted of the splendid bargain he had made. "It is naught, it is naught, saith the buyer; but when he is gone his way, then he boasteth." It may seem to the world a sharp bargain, but the recording angel wrote down in the ponderous tones of eternity, "Mr. So-and-so, doing business on Pennsylvania Avenue, or Broadway, or Chestnut Street, or State Street, told one lie."

May God extirpate from society all the ecclesiastical lies, and all the social lies, and all the mechanical lies, and all the commercial lies, and all the agricultural lies, and make every man to speak the truth of his neighbor. My friends, let us make our life correspond to what we are. Let us banish all deception from our behavior. Let us remember that the time comes when God will demonstrate before an assembled universe just what we are. The secret will come out. We may hide it while we live, but we cannot hide it when we die. To many life is a masquerade ball. As at such entertainment gentlemen and ladies appear in garb of kings or queens, or mountain bandits, or clowns, and then at the close of the dance put off their disguise, so many all through life are in mask. The masquerade ball goes on, and gemmed hand clasps gemmed hand, and dancing feet respond to dancing feet, and gleaming brow bends to gleaming brow, and the masquerade ball goes bravely on. But after a while languor comes and blurs the sight. Lights lower. Floor hollow with sepulchral echo. Music saddens into a wail. Lights lower. Now the masquerade is hardly seen. The fragrance is exchanged for the sickening odor of garlands that have lain a long while in the damp of sepulchres. Lights lower. Mists fill the room. The scarf drops from the shoulder of beauty, a shroud. Lights lower. Torn leaves and withered garlands now hardly cover up the ulcered feet. Stench of lampwicks almost quenched. Choking dampness. Chilliness. Feet still. Hands folded. Eyes shut. Voice hushed. Lights out.

OUR OBJECT: 1. We want to awaken a universal appreciation of the great merits of CASCARETS CANDY CATHARTIC. We also want to increase our business by teaching the people what diseases Cascarets will cure. If we can by this plan in a month's time, induce 10,000 people to become users and well-wishers of this wonderful laxative and liver regulator, which even now is selling at the rate of 5,000,000 boxes a year, it will pay us to give away $1,000, instead of spending it for some other form of advertising.

2. Everybody knows what enormous sums of money we spend annually for advertising. We probably lose $25,000 a year by not knowing just what a paper is worth as an advertising medium. If we can find out just how many see this advertisement and give it attention, it will be big money in our pockets. Your answer to this advertisement will help us find out, and we are willing to pay for the information.

WHAT YOU ARE TO DO: There are in the schedule below fourteen names of diseases and ailments cured by CASCARETS CANDY CATHARTIC. From each name letters have been omitted and their places supplied by stars. To fill in the blank spaces properly and get the names right will be a test of your learning. We want you to spell out as many names as you can, then send the list to us with 25 cents to pay for a box of CASCARETS. For correct lists we shall give cash prizes of from $1 to $100 in gold. The correct list gotten up in the most artistic and original style will be awarded the first prize, the next best, the second prize, and so on. Also, if your list contains ten or more correct names, you will receive a SPECIAL CONSOLATION PRIZE. By exercising care in preparing your list you ought to be able to secure part of the $1,000 cash award, but under all circumstances you will be a winner. The distance you live makes no difference, as all are treated alike.

AWARDS WILL BE MADE PROMPTLY: This advertisement will appear in this paper only twice, so prepare your list quickly and send it in without delay. Cut the advertisement out, so you will not neglect or forget it. Prizes will be honestly awarded and promptly sent. Here are the words to be spelled out. Be sure you give them in their right order:

1. CO * ST * * A * I * N. The cause of nearly all other diseases, cured by CASCARETS.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Future of Veterinary Medicine.

SINCE the advent of the bicycle and electric car, the statement has been made that horses will soon become a thing of the past, and veterinary services will be required no longer, says Journal of Comparative Medicine. The same statement was made when steam roads were first operated, but experience shows that far more horses were required to carry on the commerce that developed as a result of improved facilities for transportation than could be used under the old system, when all inland travel was dependent upon horse-power, and local wants were met almost entirely by local products. While it is true that some horses have been displaced by mechanical agencies, it is also true that the demand for horse-labor in other directions has increased correspondingly and in proportion to the activity of the commerce of the country. For the past few years certain classes of horses have been very cheap, and this is directly attributable to the sudden increase in their production, an increase that was far beyond all possible demands, and to the general depression of business, which greatly reduced the demand for horse-labor, as well as for that of man. But good horses are and always have been in constant demand at remunerative prices, and all well-informed horsemen admit that the demand for horses of good quality is greater than the supply. Horse-breeding was such an exceedingly profitable occupation a few years ago, and there was such an active demand for horses of a very inferior type, that any one with a little capital could engage in the rearing of horses and make money. That period might justly be compared to the boom-period of a Western town, or to the rush into any branch of industry that is apparently simple, easy to carry on, and promises large returns. But now the business of breeding horses is established on a better, sounder and firmer basis. The breeders of this country are beginning to understand that it is only by the exercise of much knowledge, good judgment and constant watchfulness that horses of superior quality can be produced, but that when these requisites are properly applied, the reward is satisfactory. Horses will always be used for draught work in cities and in country; they will always be used for riding and driving; and racing, the sport of kings, will always continue. But the horse might become entirely extinct, and an enormous field for the employment of veterinary knowledge and skill would still remain. According to the statistics of 1896, the horses of the United States number 15,125,057 and are valued at more than $500,000,000, while the mules of the country are worth $103,000,000 more. The cattle of the United States number 48,200,000, and are worth $873,000,000. The sheep are worth over $65,000,000, and are rapidly increasing in number and value. The swine number about 43,000,000, and are worth more than $186,000,000. The total value of the several classes of live stock mentioned amounts to $1,727,926,084. This total is considerably less than it has been for some years, and than it will be when the general business conditions improve and live-stock values respond to the resulting stimulation. The export trade of the United States bears principally upon the livestock industry, and exports of horses, cattle, meats and dairy products are increasing from year to year. No, the field of the veterinarian is not bounded by any prospective limitation of the horse's usefulness. It includes the cultivation, care and protection of animals that supply us with our most nutritious and expensive foods; with many of the luxuries, as well as necessaries, of our diet; with warm clothing for our body, head, hands and feet; with many of the pleasures and comforts of life; with agreeable, healthful and elevating recreation, as well as those that furnish the common means of transporting freight.

Maryland's Nursery Stock Law.

As the shipping season is now near at hand I desire to call your attention to that part of our "Trees and Nursery Stock Law" relative to stock coming from other states, which is as follows: (Laws of Maryland, 1896, chapter 290, section 58). "Whenever any trees, plants or vines are shipped into this state from another state every package thereof shall be plainly labeled on the outside with the name of the consignor, the name of the consignee, the contents, and a certificate showing that the contents have been inspected by a state or government officer, and that the trees, plants or vines therein contained are apparently free from all San Jose scale, Yellows, Rosette or other injurious insect or disease. Whenever any trees, plants or vines are shipped into this state without such a certificate plainly fixed on the outside of such package, the fact may be reported to any justice of the peace of this state, and said justice shall issue a summons for the consignee of such package, and the agent of the consignor, if he be known, to appear before him on a certain day, to be therein named, to show cause why such trees, plants or vines should not be seized as being in violation of the provisions of this act, and on trial thereof, if said justice be satisfied that the provisions of this act have been violated, said justice shall order said agent or consignee to return such package of trees, plants or vines immediately to the shipper or consignor; unless said consignee or agent shall forthwith have said trees, plants and vines examined by the state entomologist of this state, and he certify to such justice of the peace that the said trees, plants or vines are apparently free from all insect or disease, and if such agent or consignee shall fail to have such nursery stock examined by the state entomologist, or fail to return such package to the shipper or consignee thereof, then said justice of the peace shall order and direct the constable or sheriff to burn and destroy all such trees, plants and vines as have been shipped into this state in violation of law."

It is not our purpose to enforce this section for any selfish motive; but experience has taught us it is necessary for the protection of our nursery and horticultural interests. Our own nurserymen have had their stock critically inspected, and it is due them and their interests that they should be protected. We, therefore, respectfully request that outside nurserymen who have stock to deliver in this state this fall or next spring send us a copy of their certificate of inspection, to avoid any unnecessary delay in the delivery of any trees, etc., that may be shipped into this state.

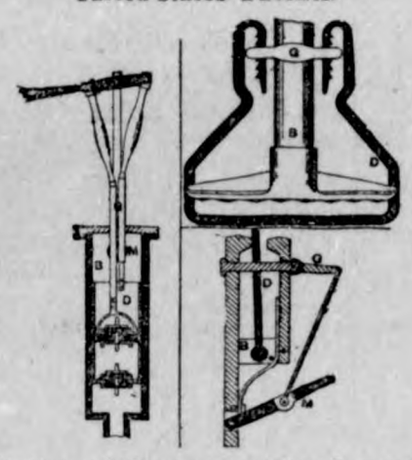
State Entomologist.

Concerning Sugar Beets.

The United States consul at Magdeburg, Germany, says that beet farms and beet sugar factories must stand close together. It is idle to grow beets if there is no mill at hand to extract the sugar from them, and it is idle to build a factory if there are no beet farms at hand to supply the raw material. In addition to the adaptation of soil and climate to beet growing therefore the farmer must consider the suitability of the place for the establishment of a factory, and, conversely, the would-be manufacturer must consider, apart from the intrinsic availability of his mill site, the possibilities of beet culture on the surrounding farms. The requirements for beet culture are a rich, deep soil, with a porous, well-drained subsoil and a generous application of suitable fertilizers. The climate should be such as to assure fairly moist weather for the first three months of the growing season and one month of comparatively dry, sunny weather following. Indeed, the latter is the more important, for the necessary moisture of the first three months can be supplied by artificial irrigation. When such conditions of soil and climate do not exist there is little use in trying beet culture. Where they are found the farmer will be justified in making some practical experiments with sugar beets, not on a large scale necessarily, but in small lots, in various parts of his farm. If it be ascertained that beets can be successfully grown in a given place the next question is whether a factory can be profitably conducted there. The essential requirements for a factory are water for washing the beets, etc., fuel for the engines, and limestone for purifying the saccharine juice. These must be close at hand, or readily and cheaply procurable from a distance. If they are not there is no use in building a factory and none in attempting to grow beets. If they are a mutual agreement should be made between the farmer and the manufacturer, the former stipulating to provide sufficient quantities of beets to make the factory profitable, the latter to take and utilize the product of the farms. All these conditions complied with, the enterprise may be undertaken with good promise of success. That there are many places in the United States where it may be thus undertaken is not to be doubted. But that fact must be ascertained by actual experiment in every case, unless disappointment and disaster are to be the result.

Swine Supply.—The September report of the department of agriculture says: Reports as to the number of stock hogs for fattening show a decrease of 9.2 per cent from that of last year. The reduction is greatest in the following states, the figures indicating the decreased percentage: Mississippi, 12; Texas, 10; Arkansas, 12; Tennessee, 13; Kentucky, 16; Iowa, 18; Nebraska is the only state with 1,000,000 hogs or upward from which an increase is reported, the gain for that state being 5 per cent. In point of condition the reports are fairly uniform. Only five states and territories out of forty-eight report less than 90, while only two, Rhode Island and Nebraska, are as much as 100.

United States Patents.



Last weed there were issued exactly 500 patents to citizens of the United States. Amongst them was one for an airship, patented to a Minnesota inventor, an autoharp, a cash register, while a New York inventor received a patent for a coffin. Amongst the novel inventions are found a quilting attachment for sewing machines, a simple attachment for bicycle tires, making them puncture proof, a barrel shaped wind mill, a machine for making elbows for stove pipes, a bicycle frame that can be instantly changed from a diamond to a ladies' drop frame and a device to prevent the slipping of belts. Amongst the famous expired patents we have selected three which are shown above and which may now be used, comprising a double acting pump, a mop head and a vice. These patents are taken from Sues' copyrighted machine movements. Inventors having applications filed through Wedderburn, should address Sues & Co., Attorneys at Law, Bee building, Omaha, Nebraska, for free information.

AN OPEN LETTER

From Miss Sachner, of Columbus, O., to Ailing Women.

To all women who are ill:—It affords me great pleasure to tell you of the benefit I have derived from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I can hardly find words to express my gratitude for the boon given to suffering women in that excellent remedy. Before taking the Compound I was thin, sallow, and nervous. I was troubled with leucorrhœa, and my menstrual periods were very irregular. I tried three physicians and gradually grew worse. About a year ago I was advised by a friend to try Mrs. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and Vegetable Compound, which I did. After using three bottles of the Vegetable Compound and one package of Sanative Wash, I am now enjoying better health than I ever did, and attribute the same to your wonderful remedies. I cannot find words to express what a Godsend they have been to me.

Whenever I begin to feel nervous and ill, I know I have a never-failing physician at hand. It would afford me pleasure to know that my words had directed some suffering sister to health and strength through those most excellent remedies.—Miss May Sachner, 348½ E. Rich St., Columbus, O.

Friends and neighbors were invited in until the house was full to overflowing, and the evening spent in plesant conversation and singing. At the proper time, oysters, ice cream cake and fruit were served. Some fine silverware pieces were presented to Mrs. Walensky, who by the way was completly surprised, not having even guessed of such a thing. The party dispersed at a late hour having passed a very pleastant evening.

The Eng. M. E. people met at the church Saturday night, each carrying a bundle, and went in procession to surprise our new preacher Rev. Barsalou and his wife. Now she wants to play there, but the proper authority refuses her a license, remarking with chilling politeness, "I will not be so impolite as to permit a lady to contradict herself." Annie Besant discovers that the women of this country are too restless, and that it is a natural result of their growing superiority to the American man. Apparently restlessness, in her view, in an affliction; but the cure of it, through some process looking to inferiority, is not to be thought of for a moment. The man must do his share. He must make it the chief object of his life to grow up to her superiority, and it is melancholy to reflect that on the whole he can't do it.

Up to the time of this writing, the yellow fever outbreak in cities near the Gulf of Mexico has been less disastrous than on any other occasion of the coming of that plague. The death-rate has been low, and in the larger cities there has been no panic. It would be interesting to know how far this mitigation of horrors is the result of the sensible course pursued by the authorities and the newspapers. Apparently the precise facts have been given out each day, with such comments as the situation warranted, and the people have calmly and heroically faced the danger whereof they knew. Secrecy might have caused universal panic; and the panic is one of the most nourishing conditions of the plague.

Since 1868, or during the last twenty-nine years, Cuba has been in open revolt nearly thirteen years. The ten years' war was very costly in blood and treasure, both to the mother country and to the island, and there had not been great recovery from its ravages when the present insurrection broke out in February, 1895. Since the last uprising the Spanish government has sent to Havana more than 250,000 men, the flower of the youth and chivalry of the nation. Of these it is admitted more than 45,000 have been killed in battle or disease, and it is probable that the number is nearly double that. Nearly half as many more have been sent back to Spain crippled by wounds or broken by disease, to be burdens upon the communities in which they live.

The Chicago Record has prepared a postal savings bank bill, which will undoubtedly be introduced in congress next month. The idea is a good one, and in a general way will meet with the approval of adherents of every political party. The bill as drafted has some faults, however, which will undoubtedly be remedied in congress. As it now reads it fixes a limit on individual deposits, and also fixes a time limit on withdrawals. These defects will undoubtedly be remedied by amendments allowing the depositor a limitless account, together with the privilege of checking out whenever he pleases. Another defective provision allows the postoffice department to reloan to national banks and on state and municipal improvement bonds. This section will probably be amended with the provision that no money shall be loaned on bonds bearing date previous to passage of said bill, and that all bonds shall be for improvements made after such bill becomes law. With these amendments the bill would undoubtedly give general satisfaction.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

MEMORIAL BUILDING STOPPED.

Executive Council Has Decided to Postpone its Erection.

DES MOINES, Nov. 7.—The state executive council has indefinitely postponed the erection of the proposed state memorial, historical and art building for the reason that the fund provided for by the last general assembly has been found to be insufficient. The council will lay the matter before the coming session of the legislature. The sum appropriated by the last general assembly was $25,000. The act stated that this sum must cover the cost of purchasing a site adjacent to the state house, the drawing of the plans, and the complete erection of the building. The council purchased two lots on the corner of Eleventh and Capitol avenue just east of the capitol, for $4.300, had plans drawn, accepted what they deemed to be the best and then asked for bids on the constructian of the building. The bids were opened and found much higher than the appropriation would permit and after discussing the matter thoroughly the council has decided that the best thing they can do is to postpone all further work until the matter can be laid before the legislature at the session to be held this winter.

WHITCOMB SENTENCED.

Notorious Cherokee Robber Given Ten Years in the Penitentiary.

CHEROKEE, Nov. 8.—Charles Whitcomb has been sentenced to ten years at hard labor in the Anamosa penitentiary for the conviction of robbery. The crime for which Whitcomb was sentenced was committed a year ago. He with a partner, Fred Holtey, went to the house of a German near Larrabee, by the name of Chris Heinel, and at the point of a revolver they demanded his money. Holtey was captured and, owing to his youth, was permitted to pay a fine. Whitcomb was captured in Nebraska in June. He is a criminal of the worst character and, after being lodged in jail, made a murderous assault upon the jailor and nearly succeeded in regaining his liberty.

A NEED LONG FELT.

Railroads Must Now Have Automatic Couplers.

DES MOINES, Nov. 4.—Iowa railway companies must provide all their rolling stock with safety, automatic brakes and safety couplers not later than January 1, 1898, or be held in contempt of a law passed by the last general assembly. This requirement, long the subject of agitation, was made by the last legislature without the extension of time to 1900 that was in the minds of some. The twenty-fourth general assembly passed a law giving the railroad commissioners authority to extend the time to 1900 if they thought such action necessary, but the extension did not get into the law. Heavy penalties are attached to violations of the statute.

EX-ALDERMEN INDICTED.

Dubuque Officials Who Raised Their Salaries Are Indicted.

DUBUQUE, Nov. 5.—The grand jury indicted ex-Aldermen Cullen, Halpin, Shea, Vogler, Sculte, Crawford, Bauer and Kauffman for raising their own salaries in 1895. Judge Waterman sustained demurrers to the original indictments, but the supreme court overruled him. Ex-Street Commissioner Hagerty and ex-Committee Clerk O'Connell were indicted for stuffing the street commissioner's pay roll for April.

Assessments Decreased.

SIOUX CITY, Nov. 6.—Judge Gaynor of the district court, made an order reducing the assessment against the stockholders of the defunct Iowa Savings Bank from 100 per cent to 50 per cent. This will mean a saving of $125,000 to the stockholders of the bank, and $25,000 saving to the stockholders of the Sioux City Savings Bank, as the same action will undoubtedly be taken in this case. The court did this in accordance with the late ruling of the supreme court as to the assessment in bank cash. This ends a long line of litigation that has been pending in the courts.

Commissioners' Salaries.

DES MOINES, Nov. 5.—In response to a query from the auditor of state as to whether the section of the code reducing the salary of the railroad commissioners from $3,000 to $2,200 annually is to be construed as taking effect with the code on October 1 last or at the beginning of the next terms of the commissioners, Attorney General Remley submitted an opinion that the change contemplated was to take effect on October 1.

Boy Killed by Tramps.

OTTUMWA, Nov. 6.—The dead body of a boy about 15 years old was found alongside the Burlington track. He was tramping with a crowd of men, and it is thought that he may have been killed by his companions for his money, it being known that he had quite a sum on his person. There was not a scrap of paper on his person by which he might be identified.

SUCCESSFUL JOURNALISM.

Iowa's Daily Newspaper For $1 a Year.

DES MOINES, Nov. 2.—The Des Moines Daily News, the only daily paper in the world for $1 a year, has reached the phenomenal circulation of 17,000 copies per day, double that of any other Iowa daily. The News has recently added to its editorial force as managing editor Edwin A. Nye, lately editor of the Danville (Ill.) Commercial and one of the brightest editors in the west. Mr. Nye declines a $4,000 consulship tendered him by President McKinley to identify himself with this remarkably successful newspaper, which is regarded by advertisers as the most valuable medium in the state and commands the highest rates for space. This is the third year the Daily News has been offered for $1 a year.

Ounce of Wise Prevention.

OSKALOOSA, Nov. 5.—At a meeting of the Oskaloosa board of health in conjunction with the city council an order was passed closing all of the five ward school buildings on account of fear of diphtheria, no death from which has occurred.

Killed by a Bull.

SWEA CITY, Nov. 6.—John F. Peterson, a Swede farmer living in Swea township, Kossuth county, was killed by a bull which he had in his feed lot. Mr. Peterson formerly lived near Marcus.

Killed by a Train.

OTTUMWA, Nov. 6.—John Bullock, 88 years old, was killed by a switch engine on the Burlington. It struck him as he attempted to cross the tracks ahead of it.

IOWA CONDENSED.

A great school—Highland Park College, Des Moines, Iowa. Send to President Rearick for free catalogue.

Benjamin Hartman, of Muscatine, was killed by the cars at Abingdon, Ill. He is thought to have committed suicide as his actions and talk have been queer lately.

News is received that Victor Fish has escaped from the penitentiary at Anamosa. He was convicted of stealing a harness from a barn in Des Moines and sent to the prison for six years. That was six months ago, and it was his third term, he having been sent up before from Sioux City and Adel.

David Grier, of Oskaloosa, a railroad man and ex-bartender, attempted to commit suicide by taking eight grains of morphine. He was found by his wife before the drug had killed, and two doctors, after working with him three hours, saved his life. No cause is given for the act. He had had steady employment and a good home.

Family trouble caused Mrs. A. W. Fitch, of Des Moines, to try to take her life. Mrs. Fitch told her husband that she had taken morphine and was going to die. Mr. Fitch at once summoned doctors and emetics were administered and the fatal effects of the morphine prevented. Mrs. Fitch had taken about a teaspoonful of the drug in a powdered form, and it was only with great difficulty that death was prevented.

Dubuque dispatch: The bones of Julien Dubuque, the first white settler west of the Mississippi, with those of two Indian chiefs, were unearthed a few weeks ago by the builders of a monument upon his grave, occupying a picturesque bluff below town. They were deposited in a stone sarcophagus within the monument, in the presence of over 2,000 people. The ceremonies were under the auspices of the Early Settlers' Association, and J. H. Shields delivered the oration.

The C., M. & St. P. depot at Charles City was robbed a few nights since, the burglars using a drill and breaking the safe. They secured $43 in cash, five 2,000 and five 1,000 mileage books and escaped before the agent returned from his supper, the office being left alone but twenty minutes. The work was evidently done by the same gang that robbed the Nora Springs postoffice the night before, when they escaped with $70 in cash and $75 in stamps, which were in registered letter envelopes.

The jury in the case of Mrs. Christian Behrens, of Davenport, recently jointly indicted with Henry Bendt for the murder of Claus Behrens, the woman's husband, by administering poison in the shape of paris green, was discharged by Judge Waterman, after being out fifty-two hours. It is stated the jury stood eight for conviction and four for acquittal. The case has received great public attention in this section. The claim of the defense was that Behrens committed suicide.

Joseph Shaw, living near Beacon, attempted suicide a few days ago by hanging. When he was found he was living, though his neck was dislocated. It was two hours before he regained consciousness, and his life is yet despaired of. Shaw, after a hard-fought trial in court, had been acquitted of the charge of seduction and abortion preferred by Anna Barrows, a domestic in his home. It is said by some that the joy of being acquitted turned his mind, while others maintain that he was worried to death.

ALL OVER THE WORLD

OHIO ELECTION.

Courts Will Be Asked to Take a Hand.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5.—It has become known that the courts will be resorted to for the purpose of preventing boards of election from issuing certificates to the republican candidates in certain counties. The republican state committee also have lawyers preparing cases on contest. The republicans get three representatives on the face of the returns from Delaware, Noble and Wood counties, whose pluralities only aggregate 152 and a change of seventy-two votes would have given the democrats control of the legislature. The republicans also claim that the democrats elected members to the legislature on close margins, that there were ten counties in the state that gave less than 100 plurality each for their candidates for the legislature and that the democrats secured as many members on these small pluralities as the republicans. Both sides are preparing for contests, first in the courts and then in the legislature. As each branch of the legislature is the tribunal of last resort in judging of the qualifications of its own members, the republicans have an advantage in their control of the house over the democrats, who will control the senate. There are thirty-six senators with only one or two contests possible in that body. In the house there are 105 members with a dozen or more seats that can be contested and the republicans claim a majority of seven in that body, so that more democrats can be unseated in the house than republicans in the senate.

BLANCO IN CUBA.

New Captain General Arrives and Issues a Proclamation.

Havana dispatch: Upon the arrival of Captain General Blanco in Havana he issued the following proclamation to the inhabitants of Cuba: "I am again with you, with good will and a sincere desire to serve the general welfare and establish lasting peace. I shall follow a broad policy in my endeavor to restore fraternity among the Cuban inhabitants. I am sincere in my intention to inaugurate a new government policy, the object of which will be to secure and preserve the peace. I hope you will all salute and embrace the Spanish flag, throwing aside all party prejudices and discarding alliances with those who are staining the country with blood. Clemency awaits all who observe the laws; but, however regretable it may be, I shall rigorously fight those who obstinately or ungratefully continue to carry on war."

OHIO LEGISLATURE.

Majority of Five for Republicans on Joint Ballot.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 8.—The contest for control of the Ohio legislature is considered ended. The official counting in some counties will continue this week, but there has been such close watching that no material changes are expected. Indications are that the next senate will stand 19 democrats and 17 republicans; the house 61 democrats and 58 republicans, a majority of five republicans on joint ballot. There may be several contested seats, but they cannot be considered until the legislature meets next January.

BIMETALLIC COMMISSIONERS.

Two Return Home From Their Failed European Mission.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Senator Edward O. Wolcott, of Colorado, and Charles G. Paine, two of the monetary commissioners appointed by President McKinley to confer with European governments concerning the feasibility of a conference to consider international bimetallism, arrived on the steamship Campania. The other commissioner, former Vice-President Stevenson, will return on a later vessel. Senator Wolcott asked to be excused from saying anything on his mission abroad. Gen. Paine also declined to speak.

HONOR JEFFERSON DAVIS.

Georgia Proposes to Make His Birthday a Legal Holiday.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 6.—The bill by Mr. Oliver of Burke county, to make the birthday of Jefferson Davis a legal holiday in Georgia, was adversely reported by the general judiciary in the house of representatives, and Mr. Oliver called up the measure and moved to disagree with the committee. In an earnest speech he asked the house to honor the hero of a lost cause. The report of the committee was disagreed to by an almost unanimous vote.

Bulgaria Escaped Independence.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—A dispatch from Constantinople to the Frankfort Zeitung says that the porte, under the threat from the Bulgarian government that unless the promised berats to the Bulgarian bishops in Macedonia should be granted, Bulgaria would declare independence, finally acceded to the demands and granted berats.

GETTING READY FOR WAR.

The Brooklyn Naval Yard is Rushing Work On Many War Vessels.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The Commercial-Advertiser says: The Brooklyn navy yards is active and work on all the war vessels lying at the wharves or in the dry-docks is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible under orders from the navy department. No one seems to understand why so much haste is necessary, and inquiries are met with the invariable reply: "It is nothing unusual. We are obeying orders issued some time ago, that is all. We always finish work at this station as rapidly as we can. Spain's naval activities have nothing to do with our industry." An officer attached to the office of the commandant of the yard repeated this time-worn explanation, but added that he believed some sort of an order had been received to urge the completion of the two new vessels, which are at the yard making preparations for their final trials under the board of inspection. These vessels are the torpedo boat Foote and the big battleship Iowa.

FOR LIBERTY.

General Gomez Will Accept Nothing Less.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Herald prints the following letter from Maximo Gomez, general-in-chief of the Cuban army of liberation, dated at his camp in Sancti Spiritus: "The enemies of Cuba are circulating in the United States a rumor that they are disposed to accept autonomy as a basis of settlement or a solution of the present war. The constitution of Cuba absolutely establishes in its article eleven that peace is to be negotiated upon a basis of absolute independence of Cuba. It is to obtain independence that we have been fighting for two years and will continue the fight until victory shall be ours. All statements that have hitherto or may be in the future published to the effect that we are willing to accept any other solution short of independence, should be regarded as false."

NINETEEN DROWNED.

Steamer Idaho Founders in a Gale on Lake Erie.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 8.—The Western Transit company's steamer, Idaho, which left Buffalo for Chicago, laden with package freight, foundered off Long Point on Lake Erie during a furious gale. The first mate and one sailor, who succeeded in reaching the rigging, were rescued by the steamer Mariposa. The rest of the crew numbering 19, were undoubtedly drowned

After Andree.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—The Lokal Anzeiger announces that a steamer fitted out by the government of Tromsoe, under instruction from King Oscar, has left Tromsoe island in search of Professor Andree. She will proceed to Spitzbergen and is provisioned for eight months.

BREVITIES.

James H. Eckels, former comptroller of the currency for the United States, has been elected president of the Commercial National Bank of Chicago, Mr. Eckels will enter upon his new duties January 1, 1898. The Commercial National is one of the largest banking institutions of this city, its deposits amounting to nearly $10,000,000.

At Manchester, Eng., recently, at a conference between representatives of cotton operatives, the employers gave notice of their intention to make a 5 per cent reduction in wages December 1. Later the employers' and operatives' representatives agreed to submit the matter to arbitration. This will probably avert a contemplated strike affecting 200,000 persons.

Reports recently received from Snake river, Colorado, say that Game Warden Wilcox, in attempting to arrest some Indians near Lily Park for violating the Colorado game laws, was fired upon by Utes. The officers returned the fire, killing five Utes. Wilcox with several posses of deputy sheriffs and ranchmen, is after the Indians and further conflict is inevitable. Excitement is intense, and parties are organizing to go to the relief of the game warden, fearing a general uprising of Indians.

The bark Gazelle arrived in Boston from Para and Barbadoes and Captain Greene reported that when 189 miles south of South Shoal lighthouse, he fell in with an immense amount of wreckage, apparently marking the spot where some large English vessel had foundered. The wreckage included a portion of a vessel's deck with knees attached, main ribs and stanchions planking and pieces of a dock house, besides a boat upon which is plainly visible the word "London." There were also about ten packages of pitch pine deals in the midst of the wreckage but no spars or rigging in sight. Judging from the deck and wreckage the vessel would carry about 150 men.

The question was a dangerous one to answer. Steventon left it to Crayford to reply. Once again he answered evasively.

"It doesn't follow, my dear," he said, that the two men were missing together, because their names happen to come together on the list."

Clara instantly drew the inevitable conclusion from that ill-considered reply.

"Frank is missing from the party of relief," she said. "Am I to understand that Wardour is missing from the huts?"

Both Crayford and Steventon hesitated. Mrs. Crayford cast an indignant look at them, and told the necessary lie without a moment's hesitation!

"Yes!" she said. "Wardour is missing from the huts."

Quickly as she had spoken, she had still spoken to late. Clara had noticed the momentary hesitation on the part of the two officers. She turned to Steventon.

"I trust to your honor," she said quietly. "Am I right, or wrong, in believing that Mrs. Crayford is mistaken?"

She had addressed herself to the right man of the two. Steventon had no wife present to exercise authority over him. Steventon, put on his honor and fairly forced to say something, owned the truth. Wardour had replaced an officer whom accident had disabled from accompanying the party of relief; and Wardour and Frank were missing together.

Clara looked at Mrs. Crayford.

"You hear?" she said. "It is you who are mistaken; not I. What you call 'accident'—what I call fate—brought Richard Wardour and Frank together as members of the same Expedition after all." Without waiting for a reply, she again turned to Steventon, and surprised him by changing the painful subject of the conversation of her own accord.

"Have you been in the Highlands of Scotland?" she asked.

"I have never been in the Highlands," Steventon replied.

"Have you ever read, in books about the Highlands, of such a thing as 'The Second Sight?'"

"Yes."

"Do you believe in Second Sight?"

Steventon politely declined to commit himself to a direct reply.

"I don't know what I might have done if I had ever been in the Highlands," he said. "As it is, I have had no opportunity of giving the subject any serious considerations."

"I won't put your credulity to the test," Clara proceeded. "I won't ask you to believe anything more extraordinary than that I had a strange dream in England not very long since. My dream showed me what you have just acknowledged—and more than that. How did the two missing men come to be parted from their companions? Were they lost by pure accident, or were they deliberately left behind on the march?"

Crayford made a last vain effort to check her inquiries at the point which they had now reached.

"Neither Steventon nor I were members of the party of relief," he said. "How are we to answer you?"

"Your brother officers who were members of the party must have told you what happened," Clara rejoined. "I only ask you and Mr. Steventon to tell me what they told you."

Mrs. Crayford interposed again—with a practical suggestion this time.

"The luncheon is not unpacked yet," she said. "Come Clara! this is our business, and the time is passing."

"The luncheon can wait a few minutes longer," Clara answered. Bear with my obstinacy," she went on, laying her hand carelessly on Crayford's shoulder. "Tell me how those two came to be separated from the rest. You have always been the kindest of friends; don't begin to be cruel to me now!"

The tone in which she made her entreaty to Crayford went straight to the sailor's heart. He gave up the hopeless struggle; he let her see a glimpse of the truth.

"On the third day out," he said, "Frank's strength failed him. He fell behind the rest from fatigue."

"Surely they waited for him?"

"It was a serious risk to wait for him, my child. Their lives, and the lives of the men they had left in the huts, depended, in that dreadful climate, on their pushing on. But Frank was a favorite. They waited half a day to give Frank the chance of recovering his strength."

There he stopped. There, the imprudence into which his fondness for Clara had led him, showed itself plainly, and closed his lips.

It was too late to take refuge in silence. Clara was determined on hearing more. She questioned Steventon next.

"Did Frank go on again after the halfday's rest?" she asked.

"He tried to go on——"

"And failed?"

"Yes."

"What did the men do when he failed? Did they turn cowards? Did they desert Frank?"

She had purposely used language which might irritate Steventon into answering her plainly. He was a young man; he fell into the snare that she had set for him.

"Not one among them was a coward, Miss Burnham!" he replied, warmly. "You were speaking cruelly and unjustly of as brave a set of fellows as ever lived. The strongest man among them set the example; he volunteered to stay by Frank and to bring him on the track of the exploring party."

There Steventon stopped, conscious on his side, that he had said too much. Would she ask him who this volunteer was? No. She went straight on with the most ambarrassing question that she had put yet—referring to the volunteer, as if Steventon had already mentioned his name.

"What made Richard Wardour so ready to risk his life for Frank's sake?" she said to Crayford. "Did he do it out of friendship for Frank? Surely you can tell me that? Carry your memory back to the days when you were all living in the huts. Were Frank and Wardour friends at that time? Did you never hear any angry words pass between them?"

There Mrs. Crayford saw her opportunity of giving her husband a timely hint. "My dear child!" she said. "How can you expect him to remember that? There must have been plenty of quarrels among the men, all shut up together, and all weary of each other's company, no doubt."

"Plenty of quarrels!" Crayford repeated—"and every one of them made up again."

"—d every one of them made up again," Mrs. Crayford reiterated, in her turn. "There! a plainer answer than that you can't wish to have. Now are you satisfied! Mr. Steventon, come and lend a hand (as you say at sea) with the hamper—Clara won't help me. William! Don't stand there doing nothing. This hamper holds a great deal; we must have a division of labor. Your division shall be laying the tablecloth. Don't handle it in that clumsy way! You unfold a tablecloth as if you were unfurling a sail. Put the knives on the right and the forks on the left, and the napkin and bread between them. Clara! if you are not hungry in this fine air, you ought to be. Come and do your duty—come and have some lunch."

She looked up as she spoke. Clara appeared to have yielded at last to the conspiracy to keep her in the dark. She had returned slowly to the boat-house doorway; and she was standing alone on the threshold, looking out. Approaching her to lead her to the luncheon-table, Mrs. Crayford could hear that she was speaking softly to herself. She was repeating the farewell words which Richard Wardour had spoken to her at the ball.

"'A time may come when I shall forgive you. But the man who has robbed me of you shall rue the day when you and he first met.' Oh, Frank! Frank! does Richard still live—with your blood on his conscience, and my image in his heart?"

Her lips suddenly closed. She started, and drew back from the doorway, trembling violently. Mrs. Crayford looked out at the quiet seaward view.

"Anything there that frightens you, my dear?" she asked. "I can see nothing—except the boats drawn up on the beach."

"I can see nothing either, Lucy."

"And, yet, you are trembling as if there were something dreadful in the view from this door."

"There is something dreadful! I feel it—though I see nothing. I feel it—nearer and nearer in the empty air, darker and darker in the sunny light. I don't know what it is. Take me away. No, not out on the beach. I can't pass the door. Somewhere else! somewhere else!"

Mrs. Crayford looked round her, and noticed a second door at the inner end of the boat-house. She spoke to her husband.

"See where that door leads to, William."

Crayford opened the door. It led into a desolate inclosure—half garden, half yard. Some nets, stretched on poles, were hanging up to dry. No other objects were visible—not a living creature appeared in the place. "It doesn't look very inviting, my dear," said Mrs. Crayford, "I am at your service, however. What do you say?"

She offered her arm to Clara as she spoke. Clara refused it. She took Crayford's arm, and clug to him.

"I'm frightened, dreadfully frightened!" she said to him faintly. "You keep with me—a woman is not protection; I want to be with you." She looked round again at the boat-house doorway. "Oh!" she whispered, "I'm cold all over—I'm frozen with fear of this place. Come into the yard! Come into the yard!"

"Leave her to me," said Crayford to his wife. "I will call you if she doesn't get better in the open air."

He took her out at once, and closed the yard door behind him.

"Mr. Steventon! do you understand this?" asked Mrs. Crayford. "What can she possibly be frightened of?"

She put the question, still looking mechanically at the door by which her husband and Clara had gone out. Receiving no reply, she glanced round at Steventon. He was standing on the opposite side of the luncheon-table, with his eyes fixed attentively on the view from the main doorway of the boat-house. Mrs. Crayford looked where Steventon was looking. This time, there was something visible. She say the shadow of a human figure projected on the stretch of smooth yellow sand in front of the boat-house.

In a moment more, the figure appeared. A man came slowly into view, and stopped on the threshold of the door.

CHAPTER XVIII.

THE man was a sinister and terrible object to look at. His eyes glared like the eyes of a wild animal; his head was bare; his long gray hair was torn and tangled; his miserable garments hung about him in rags. He stood in the doorway, a speechless figure of misery and want, staring at the well-spread table like a hungry dog.

Steventon spoke to him.

"Who are you?"

He answered in a hollow voice: "A starving man."

He advanced a few steps, slowly and painfully, as if he was sinking under fatigue.

"Throw me some bones from the table," he said. "Give me my share along with the dogs."

There was a madness as well as hunger in his eyes while he spoke these words. Steventon placed Mrs. Crayford behind him, so that he might be easily able to protect her in case of need, and beckoned to two sailors who were passing the door of the boat-house at the time.

"Give the man some bread and meat," he said, "and walk near him."

The outcast seized on the bread and meat with lean, long-nailed hands that looked like claws. After the first mouthful of food he stopped, considered vacantly with himself, and broke the bread and meat into two portions. One portion he put into an old canvas wallet that hung over his shoulder; the other he devoured voraciously. Steventon questioned him.

"Where do you come from?"

"From the sea."

"Wrecked?"

"Yes."

Steventon turned to Mrs. Crayford. "There may be some truth in the poor wretch's story," he said. "I heard something of a strange boat having been cast on the beach, thirty or forty miles higher up the coast. When were you wrecked, my man?"

The starving creature looked up from his food, and made an effort to collect his thoughts—to exert his memory. It was not to be done. He gave up the attempt in despair. His language, when he spoke, was as wild as his looks.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Easy.

This is a day of all sorts of advertising competitions. One of the oddest is reported from England by the London Telegraph:

A traveling circus recently paid a visit to Clitheroe, and as an attraction, offered a prize to the man who could, as the Lancastrians term it, "pull th' ugliest mug."

The rules laid down were that each person should have "three tries." Competition ran high, some of the contortions being horrible to behold. After all had done their best, the clown, who acted as judge, coolly confronted a man sitting in the audience, who was noted for his ugliness, and said

"Tha's won th' prize, owd mon."

"Me?" said the astonished individual; "wha' aw worn't tryin' for't!"

"Tha'd no need to try," said the clown; "tha's won it wi'out."

CAPTURED A TURKEY.

AND THE RAMROD OF A MUSKET WAS THE TOOL.

Billy Edwards' Bright Scheme—A Soldier Boy Improved a Tempting Opportunity—No Investigation Was Ever Made.

TOWARD the close of the year 1861 the 75th New York volunteers, a newly recruited regiment from Cayuga and Wayne counties, was put on board a steamer in New York Harbor and sailed for Santa Rosa Island, at the mouth of Pensacola bay, says the New York Tribune. The boys had got somewhat used to army fare by this time, but it was not what they were accustomed to at home and it is not to be wondered at that they occasionally hankered after the fleshpots of Egypt. Time hung rather heavily on the hands of these young warriors for a few days, because there was no guard mounting, drill or dress parade on shipboard. They wandered about curiously, so far as the discipline and usages of the occasion would allow; closely observing the architecture and other naval features of their floating abode. There was a mischievous fellow in the regiment who, for convenience, may be called Billy Edwards, although that was not his name. One day, while prowling about on deck, Billy and some of his companions detected an odor pleasantly suggestive of viands in process of preparation for the table.

Following the clew afforded by their noses they soon ascertained that a turkey, designed for the officers, had been roasted in the cook's galley. Pursuing their investigations still farther, they found that this well-stuffed and glistening bird was exposed to view almost directly under a skylight in the deck on which the soldiers were at liberty to stroll. Whereat their mouths watered and covetous impulses inspired them. Then an idea took possession of Billy. Dashing away with such haste as was possible, he rushed down the companionway to the quarters temporarily occupied by the men, got possession of the ramrod of a musket, adjusted to the end of it the screw employed in drawing a charge from a loaded gun, and then returned to his recent post of observation. He had not long to wait for his opportunity. The turkey still reposed, in blissful unconsciousness of the impending change in its destiny, where it had been a few minutes before. A close watch was kept on the cook. Suddenly, just as the latter's back was turned, the ramrod was thrust down at arm's length, inserted in the breast of the bird and given a vigorous rotary wrench, which entangled it in the hot, savory flesh. Gently at first, and then more rapidly, the rod was drawn upward, bringing with it the precious load. The turkey was enveloped in an overcoat and Edwards and his fellow-conspirators escaped without interference. The meal which they enjoyed in private that day was a memorable event in their careers. The capture of Port Hudson was nothing to it. What the cook said when he discovered that the bird had flown is not on record. He may have had his suspicions, but he could not trace the thief. And it is probable that neither the officers of the regiment nor of the vessel deemed it judicious to investigate the affair thoroughly.

Why Cats Always Fall on Their Feet.

Why does a cat always fall on its feet? This is a question that has recently absorbed the earnest attention of the French Academy of Sciences. The problem is clearly a difficult one, for that learned body of savants has so far failed to offer a final solution. M. Marey, a distinguished professor who has made a special study of animal movements, claims that the body of a cat is composed of two parts, one of which acts as a pivot for the other. Upon dropping the cat, it appears, paws upward, and then by a series of convulsive movements, it gradually rights itself and reaches the ground in an upright position. The whole process of turning is accomplished before the animal has fallen a yard. Without a fulcrum, without something to lean against, the cat certainly would not accomplish the feat. Mr. Marey declares that the animal's limbs act upon a fulcrum which its own body provides.

A Dried Up Lake.

A lake near Morrilton, Ark., dried up a couple of years ago, leaving a rich deposit of soil ten feet deep. A portion of it was planted with corn this year and it will yield 200 bushels to the acre. The corn, so the story goes, was sown broadcast, like wheat, and came up so strong and thick that a coon which recently tried to make its way through the stalks was unable to extricate itself, and was captured.

A novel proposition was made not long ago to the Receivers of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The B. & O has a branch running from what is known as Alexandria Junction, near Washington, to Shepherd's on the Potomac River, where a car ferry is operated in connection with the lines leading south from the Capitol. A professor of an eastern college desired to lease this short stretch of track for the purpose of educating young men in practical railroad work. In his letter he explained that he thought there was a wide field for bright and energetic boys who could be thoroughly well grounded in the practical side of railroading, provided they could be educated on a regular line of road. He believed that by the employment of veteran railroad men as teachers that the boys could profitably spend 2 or 3 years working as trainmen, firemen, engineers, switchmen, station agents, and in other capacities required in the railroad service. Annie Besant discovers that the women of this country are too restless, and that it is a natural result of their growing superiority to the American man. Apparently restlessness, in her view, in an affliction; but the cure of it, through some process looking to inferiority, is not to be thought of for a moment. The man must do his share. He must make it the chief object of his life to grow up to her superiority, and it is melancholy to reflect that on the whole he can't do it.

Up to the time of this writing, the yellow fever outbreak in cities near the Gulf of Mexico has been less disastrous than on any other occasion of the coming of that plague. The death-rate has been low, and in the larger cities there has been no panic. It would be interesting to know how far this mitigation of horrors is the result of the sensible course pursued by the authorities and the newspapers. Apparently the precise facts have been given out each day, with such comments as the situation warranted, and the people have calmly and heroically faced the danger whereof they knew. Secrecy might have caused universal panic; and the panic is one of the most nourishing conditions of the plague.

Since 1868, or during the last twenty-nine years, Cuba has been in open revolt nearly thirteen years. The ten years' war was very costly in blood and treasure, both to the mother country and to the island, and there had not been great recovery from its ravages when the present insurrection broke out in February, 1895. Since the last uprising the Spanish government has sent to Havana more than 250,000 men, the flower of the youth and chivalry of the nation. Of these it is admitted more than 45,000 have been killed in battle or disease, and it is probable that the number is nearly double that. Nearly half as many more have been sent back to Spain crippled by wounds or broken by disease, to be burdens upon the communities in which they live.

The Chicago Record has prepared a postal savings bank bill, which will undoubtedly be introduced in congress next month. The idea is a good one, and in a general way will meet with the approval of adherents of every political party. The bill as drafted has some faults, however, which will undoubtedly be remedied in congress. As it now reads it fixes a limit on individual deposits, and also fixes a time limit on withdrawals. These defects will undoubtedly be remedied by amendments allowing the depositor a limitless account, together with the privilege of checking out whenever he pleases. Another defective provision allows the postoffice department to reloan to national banks and on state and municipal improvement bonds. This section will probably be amended with the provision that no money shall be loaned on bonds bearing date previous to passage of said bill, and that all bonds shall be for improvements made after such bill becomes law. With these amendments the bill would undoubtedly give general satisfaction.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

MEMORIAL BUILDING STOPPED.

Executive Council Has Decided to Postpone its Erection.

DES MOINES, Nov. 7.—The state executive council has indefinitely postponed the erection of the proposed state memorial, historical and art building for the reason that the fund provided for by the last general assembly has been found to be insufficient. The council will lay the matter before the coming session of the legislature. The sum appropriated by the last general assembly was $25,000. The act stated that this sum must cover the cost of purchasing a site adjacent to the state house, the drawing of the plans, and the complete erection of the building. The council purchased two lots on the corner of Eleventh and Capitol avenue just east of the capitol, for $4,300, had plans drawn, accepted what they deemed to be the best and then asked for bids on the constructian of the building. The bids were opened and found much higher than the appropriation would permit and after discussing the matter thoroughly the council has decided that the best thing they can do is to postpone all further work until the matter can be laid before the legislature at the session to be held this winter.

WHITCOMB SENTENCED.

Notorious Cherokee Robber Given Ten Years in the Penitentiary.

CHEROKEE, Nov. 8.—Charles Whitcomb has been sentenced to ten years at hard labor in the Anamosa penitentiary for the conviction of robbery. The crime for which Whitcomb was sentenced was committed a year ago. He with a partner, Fred Holtey, went to the house of a German near Larrabee, by the name of Chris Heinel, and at the point of a revolver they demanded his money. Holtey was captured and, owing to his youth, was permitted to pay a fine. Whitcomb was captured in Nebraska in June. He is a criminal of the worst character and, after being lodged in jail, made a murderous assault upon the jailor and nearly succeeded in regaining his liberty.

A NEED LONG FELT.

Railroads Must Now Have Automatic Couplers.

DES MOINES, Nov. 4.—Iowa railway companies must provide all their rolling stock with safety, automatic brakes and safety couplers not later than January 1, 1898, or be held in contempt of a law passed by the last general assembly. This requirement, long the subject of agitation, was made by the last legislature without the extension of time to 1900 that was in the minds of some. The twenty-fourth general assembly passed a law giving the railroad commissioners authority to extend the time to 1900 if they thought such action necessary, but the extension did not get into the law. Heavy penalties are attached to violations of the statute.

EX-ALDERMEN INDICTED.

Dubuque Officials Who Raised Their Salaries Are Indicted.

DUBUQUE, Nov. 5.—The grand jury indicted ex-Aldermen Cullen, Halpin, Shea, Vogler, Scultc, Crawford, Bauer and Kauffman for raising their own salaries in 1895. Judge Waterman sustained demurrers to the original indictments, but the supreme court overruled him. Ex-Street Commissioner Hagerty and ex-Committee Clerk O'Connell were indicted for stuffing the street commissioner's pay roll for April.

Assessments Decreased.

SIOUX CITY, Nov. 6.—Judge Gaynor of the district court, made an order reducing the assessment against the stockholders of the defunct Iowa Savings Bank from 100 per cent to 50 per cent. This will mean a saving of $125,000 to the stockholders of the bank, and $25,000 saving to the stockholders of the Sioux City Savings Bank, as the same action will undoubtedly be taken in this case. The court did this in accordance with the late ruling of the supreme court as to the assessment in bank cash. This ends a long line of litigation that has been pending in the courts.

Commissioners' Salaries.

DES MOINES, Nov. 5.—In response to a query from the auditor of state as to whether the section of the code reducing the salary of the railroad commissioners from $3,000 to $2,200 annually is to be construed as taking effect with the code on October 1 last or at the beginning of the next terms of the commissioners, Attorney General Remley submitted an opinion that the change contemplated was to take effect on October 1.

Boy Killed by Tramps.

OTTUMWA, Nov. 6.—The dead body of a boy about 15 years old was found alongside the Burlington track. He was tramping with a crowd of men, and it is thought that he may have been killed by his companions for his money, it being known that he had quite a sum on his person. There was not a scrap of paper on his person by which he might be identified.

SUCCESSFUL JOURNALISM.

Iowa's Daily Newspaper For $1 a Year.

DES MOINES, Nov. 2.—The Des Moines Daily News, the only daily paper in the world for $1 a year, has reached the phenomenal circulation of 17,000 copies per day, double that of any other Iowa daily. The News has recently added to its editorial force as managing editor Edwin A. Nye, lately editor of the Danville (Ill.) Commercial and one of the brightest editors in the west. Mr. Nye declines a $4,000 consulship tendered him by President McKinley to identify himself with this remarkably successful newspaper, which is regarded by advertisers as the most valuable medium in the state and commands the highest rates for space. This is the third year the Daily News has been offered for $1 a year.

News is received that Victor Fish has escaped from the penitentiary at Anamosa. He was convicted of stealing a harness from a barn in Des Moines and sent to the prison for six years. That was six months ago, and it was his third term, he having been sent up before from Sioux City and Adel.

David Grier, of Oskaloosa, a railroad man and ex-bartender, attempted to commit suicide by taking eight grains of morphine. He was found by his wife before the drug had killed, and two doctors, after working with him three hours, saved his life. No cause is given for the act. He had had steady employment and a good home.

Family trouble caused Mrs. A. W. Fitch, of Des Moines, to try to take her life. Mrs. Fitch told her husband that she had taken morphine and was going to die. Mr. Fitch at once summoned doctors and emetics were administered and the fatal effects of the morphine prevented. Mrs. Fitch had taken about a teaspoonful of the drug in a powdered form, and it was only with great difficulty that death was prevented.

Dubuque dispatch: The bones of Julien Dubuque, the first white settler west of the Mississippi, with those of two Indian chiefs, were unearthed a few weeks ago by the builders of a monument upon his grave, occupying a picturesque bluff below town. They were deposited in a stone sarcophagus within the monument, in the presence of over 2,000 people. The ceremonies were under the auspices of the Early Settlers' Association, and J. H. Shields delivered the oration.

The C., M. & St. P. depot at Charles City was robbed a few nights since, the burglars using a drill and breaking the safe. They secured $43 in cash, five 2,000 and five 1,000 milcage books and escaped before the agent returned from his supper, the office being left alone but twenty minutes. The work was evidently done by the same gang that robbed the Nora Springs postoffice the night before, when they escaped with $70 in cash and $75 in stamps, which were in registered letter envelopes.

The jury in the case of Mrs. Christian Behrens, of Davenport, recently jointly indicted with Henry Bendt for the murder of Claus Behrens, the woman's husband, by administering poison in the shape of paris green, was discharged by Judge Waterman, after being out fifty-two hours. It is stated the jury stood eight for conviction and four for acquittal. The case has received great public attention in this section. The claim of the defense was that Behrens committed suicide.

Joseph Shaw, living near Beacon, attempted suicide a few days ago by hanging. When he was found he was living, though his neck was dislocated. It was two hours before he regained consciousness, and his life is yet despaired of. Shaw, after a hard-fought trial in court, had been acquitted of the charge of seduction and abortion preferred by Anna Barrows, a domestic in his home. It is said by some that the joy of being acquitted turned his mind, while others maintain that he was worried to death.

ALL OVER THE WORLD

OHIO ELECTION.

Courts Will Be Asked to Take a Hand.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5.—It has become known that the courts will be resorted to for the purpose of preventing boards of election from issuing certificates to the republican candidates in certain counties. The republican state committee also have lawyers preparing cases on contest. The republicans get three representatives on the face of the returns from Delaware, Noble and Wood counties, whose pluralities only aggregate 152 and a change of seventy-two votes would have given the democrats control of the legislature. The republicans also claim that the democrats elected members to the legislature on close margins, that there were ten counties in the state that gave less than 100 plurality each for their candidates for the legislature and that the democrats secured as many members on these small pluralities as the republicans. Both sides are preparing for contests, first in the courts and then in the legislature. As each branch of the legislature is the tribunal of last resort in judging of the qualifications of its own members, the republicans have an advantage in their control of the house over the democrats, who will control the senate. There are thirty-six senators with only one or two contests possible in that body. In the house there are 105 members with a dozen or more seats that can be contested and the republicans claim a majority of seven in that body, so that more democrats can be unseated in the house than republicans in the senate.

BLANCO IN CUBA.

New Captain General Arrives and Issues a Proclamation.

Havana dispatch: Upon the arrival of Captain General Blanco in Havana he issued the following proclamation to the inhabitants of Cuba: "I am again with you, with good will and a sincere desire to serve the general welfare and establish lasting peace. I shall follow a broad policy in my endeavor to restore fraternity among the Cuban inhabitants. I am sincere in my intention to inaugurate a new government policy, the object of which will be to secure and preserve the peace. I hope you will all salute and embrace the Spanish flag, throwing aside all party prejudices and discarding alliances with those who are staining the country with blood. Clemency awaits all who observe the laws; but, however regretable it may be, I shall rigorously fight those who obstinately or ungratefully continue to carry on war."

OHIO LEGISLATURE.

Majority of Five for Republicans on Joint Ballot.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 8.—The contest for control of the Ohio legislature is considered ended. The official counting in some counties will continue this week, but there has been such close watching that no material changes are expected. Indications are that the next senate will stand 19 democrats and 17 republicans; the house 61 democrats and 58 republicans, a majority of five republicans on joint ballot. There may be several contested seats, but they cannot be considered until the legislature meets next January.

BIMETALLIC COMMISSIONERS.

Two Return Home From Their Failed European Mission.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Senator Edward O. Wolcott, of Colorado, and Charles G. Paine, two of the monetary commissioners appointed by President McKinley to confer with European governments concerning the feasibility of a conference to consider international bimetallism, arrived on the steamship Campania. The other commissioner, former Vice-President Stevenson, will return on a later vessel. Senator Wolcott asked to be excused from saying anything on his mission abroad. Gen. Paine also declined to speak.

HONOR JEFFERSON DAVIS.

Georgia Proposes to Make His Birthday a Legal Holiday.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 6.—The bill by Mr. Oliver of Burke county, to make the birthday of Jefferson Davis a legal holiday in Georgia, was adversely reported by the general judiciary in the house of representatives, and Mr. Oliver called up the measure and moved to disagree with the committee. In an earnest speech he asked the house to honor the hero of a lost cause. The report of the committee was disagreed to by an almost unanimous vote.

Bulgaria Escaped Independence.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—A dispatch from Constantinople to the Frankfort Zeitung says that the porte, under the threat from the Bulgarian government that unless the promised berats to the Bulgarian bishops in Macedonia should be granted, Bulgaria would declare independence, finally acceded to the demands and granted berats.

GETTING READY FOR WAR.

The Brooklyn Naval Yard is Rushing Work On Many War Vessels.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The Commercial-Advertiser says: The Brooklyn navy yards is active and work on all the war vessels lying at the wharves or in the dry-docks is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible under orders from the navy department. No one seems to understand why so much haste is necessary, and inquiries are met with the invariable reply: "It is nothing unusual. We are obeying orders issued some time ago, that is all. We always finish work at this station as rapidly as we can. Spain's naval activities have nothing to do with our industry." An officer attached to the office of the commandant of the yard repeated this time-worn explanation, but added that he believed some sort of an order had been received to urge the completion of the two new vessels, which are at the yard making preparations for their final trials under the board of inspection. These vessels are the torpedo boat Foote and the big battleship Iowa.

FOR LIBERTY.

General Gomez Will Accept Nothing Less.

NEW YORK, Nov. 6.—The Herald prints the following letter from Maximo Gomez, general-in-chief of the Cuban army of liberation, dated at his camp in Sancti Spiritus: "The enemies of Cuba are circulating in the United States a rumor that they are disposed to accept autonomy as a basis of settlement or a solution of the present war. The constitution of Cuba absolutely establishes in its article eleven that peace is to be negotiated upon a basis of absolute independence of Cuba. It is to obtain independence that we have been fighting for two years and will continue the fight until victory shall be ours. All statements that have hitherto or may be in the future published to the effect that we are willing to accept any other solution short of independence, should be regarded as false."

NINETEEN DROWNED.

Steamer Idaho Founders in a Gale on Lake Erie.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 8.—The Western Transit company's steamer, Idaho, which left Buffalo for Chicago, laden with package freight, foundered off Long Point on Lake Erie during a furious gale. The first mate and one sailor, who succeeded in reaching the rigging, were rescued by the steamer Mariposa. The rest of the crew numbering 19, were undoubtedly drowned.

After Andree.

BERLIN, Nov. 5.—The Lokal Anzeiger announces that a steamer fitted out by the government of Tromsoe, under instruction from King Oscar, has left Tromsoe island in search of Professor Andree. She will proceed to Spitzbergen and is provisioned for eight months.

BREVITIES.

James H. Eckels, former comptroller of the currency for the United States, has been elected president of the Commercial National Bank of Chicago, Mr. Eckels will enter upon his new duties January 1, 1898. The Commercial National is one of the largest banking institutions of this city, its deposits amounting to nearly $10,000,000.

At Manchester, Eng., recently, at a conference between representatives of cotton operatives, the employers gave notice of their intention to make a 5 per cent reduction in wages December 1. Later the employers' and operatives' representatives agreed to submit the matter to arbitration. This will probably avert a contemplated strike affecting 200,000 persons.

Reports recently received from Snake river, Colorado, say that Game Warden Wilcox, in attempting to arrest some Indians near Lily Park for violating the Colorado game laws, was fired upon by Utes. The officers returned the fire, killing five Utes. Wilcox with several posses of deputy sheriffs and ranchmen, is after the Indians and further conflict is inevitable. Excitement is intense, and parties are organizing to go to the relief of the game warden, fearing a general uprising of Indians.

The bark Gazelle arrived in Boston from Para and Barbadoes and Captain Greene reported that when 180 miles south of South Shoal lighthouse, he fell in with an immense amount of wreckage, apparently marking the spot where some large English vessel had foundered. The wreckage included a portion of a vessel's deck with knees attached, main ribs and stanchions planking and pieces of a dock house, besides a boat upon which is plainly visible the word "London." There were also about ten packages of pitch pine deals in the midst of the wreckage but no spars or rigging in sight. Judging from the deck and wreckage the vessel would carry about 150 men.

The question was a dangerous one to answer. Steventon left it to Crayford to reply. Once again he answered evasively.

"It doesn't follow, my dear," he said, that the two men were missing together, because their names happen to come together on the list."

Clara instantly drew the inevitable conclusion from that ill-considered reply.

Frank is missing from the party of relief," she said. "Am I to understand that Wardour is missing from the huts?"

Both Crayford and Steventon hesitated. Mrs. Crayford cast an indignant look at them, and told the necessary lie without a moment's hesitation!

"Yes!" she said. "Wardour is missing from the huts."

Quickly as she had spoken, she had still spoken to late. Clara had noticed the momentary hesitation on the part of the two officers. She turned to Steventon.

"I trust to your honor," she said quietly. "Am I right, or wrong, in believing that Mrs. Crayford is mistaken?"

She had addressed herself to the right man of the two. Steventon had no wife present to exercise authority over him. Steventon, put on his honor and fairly forced to say something, owned the truth. Wardour had replaced an officer whom accident had disabled from accompanying the party of relief; and Wardour and Frank were missing together.

Clara looked at Mrs. Crayford.

"You hear?" she said. "It is you who are mistaken; not I. What you call 'accident'—what I call fate—brought Richard Wardour and Frank together as members of the same Expedition after all." Without waiting for a reply, she again turned to Steventon, and surprised him by changing the painful subject of the conversation of her own accord.

"Have you been in the Highlands of Scotland?" she asked.

"I have never been in the Highlands," Steventon replied.

"Have you ever read, in books about the Highlands, of such a thing as 'The Second Sight?' "

"Yes."

"Do you believe in Second Sight?"

Steventon politely declined to commit himself to a direct reply.

"I don't know what I might have done if I had ever been in the Highlands," he said. "As it is, I have had no opportunity of giving the subject any serious considerations."

"I won't put your credulity to the test," Clara proceeded. "I won't ask you to believe anything more extraordinary than that I had a strange dream in England not very long since. My dream showed me what you have just acknowledged—and more than that. How did the two missing men come to be parted from their companions? Were they lost by pure accident, or were they deliberately left behind on the march?"

Crayford made a last vain effort to check her inquiries at the point which they had now reached.

"Neither Steventon nor I were members of the party of relief," he said. "How are we to answer you?"

"Your brother officers who were members of the party must have told you what happened," Clara rejoined. "I only ask you and Mr. Steventon to tell me what they told you."

Mrs. Crayford interposed again—with a practical suggestion this time.

"The luncheon is not unpacked yet," she said. "Come Clara! this is our business, and the time is passing."

"The luncheon can wait a few minutes longer," Clara answered. Bear with my obstinacy," she went on, laying her hand carelessly on Crayford's shoulder. "Tell me how those two came to be separated from the rest. You have always been the kindest of friends; don't begin to be cruel to me now!"

The tone in which she made her entreaty to Crayford went straight to the sailor's heart. He gave up the hopeless struggle; he let her see a glimpse of the truth.

"On the third day out," he said, "Frank's strength failed him. He fell behind the rest from fatigue."

"Surely they waited for him?"

"It was a serious risk to wait for him, my child. Their lives, and the lives of the men they had left in the huts, depended, in that dreadful climate, on their pushing on. But Frank was a favorite. They waited half a day to give Frank the chance of recovering his strength."

There he stopped. There, the imprudence into which his fondness for Clara had led him, showed itself plainly, and closed his lips.

It was too late to take refuge in silence. Clara was determined on hearing more. She questioned Steventon next.

"Did Frank go on again after the halfday's rest?" she asked.

"He tried to go on——'

"And failed?"

"Yes."

"What did the men do when he failed? Did they turn cowards? Did they desert Frank?"

She had purposely used language which might irritate Steventon into answering her plainly. He was a young man; he fell into the snare that she had set for him.

"Not one among them was a coward, Miss Burnham!" he replied, warmly. "You were speaking cruelly and unjustly of as brave a set of fellows as ever lived. The strongest man among them set the example; he volunteered to stay by Frank and to bring him on the track of the exploring party."

There Steventon stopped, conscious on his side, that he had said too much. Would she ask him who this volunteer was? No. She went straight on with the most ambarrassing question that she had put yet—referring to the volunteer, as if Steventon had already mentioned his name.

"What made Richard Wardour so ready to risk his life for Frank's sake?" she said to Crayford. "Did he do it out of friendship for Frank? Surely you can tell me that? Carry your memory back to the days when you were all living in the huts. Were Frank and Wardour friends at that time? Did you never hear any angry words pass between them?"

There Mrs. Crayford saw her opportunity of giving her husband a timely hint. "My dear child!" she said. "How can you expect him to remember that? There must have been plenty of quarrels among the men, all shut up together, and all weary of each other's company, no doubt."

"Plenty of quarrels!" Crayford repeated—"and every one of them made up again."

"—d every one of them made up again," Mrs. Crayford reiterated, in her turn. "There! a plainer answer than that you can't wish to have. Now are you satisfied! Mr. Steventon, come and lend a hand (as you say at sea) with the hamper—Clara won't help me. William! Don't stand there doing nothing. This hamper holds a great deal; we must have a division of labor. Your division shall be laying the tablecloth. Don't handle it in that clumsy way! You unfold a tablecloth as if you were unfurling a sail. Put the knives on the right and the forks on the left, and the napkin and bread between them. Clara! if you are not hungry in this fine air, you ought to be. Come and do your duty—come and have some lunch."

She looked up as she spoke. Clara appeared to have yielded at last to the conspiracy to keep her in the dark. She had returned slowly to the boat-house doorway; and she was standing alone on the threshold, looking out. Approaching her to lead her to the luncheon-table, Mrs. Crayford could hear that she was speaking softly to herself. She was repeating the farewell words which Richard Wardour had spoken to her at the ball.

"'A time may come when I shall forgive you. But the man who has robbed me of you shall rue the day when you and he first met.' Oh, Frank! Frank! does Richard still live—with your blood on his conscience, and my image in his heart?"

Her lips suddenly closed. She started, and drew back from the doorway, trembling violently. Mrs. Crayford looked out at the quiet seaward view.

"Anything there that frightens you, my dear?" she asked. "I can see nothing—except the boats drawn up on the beach."

"I can see nothing either, Lucy."

"And, yet, you are trembling as if there were something dreadful in the view from this door."

"There is something dreadful! I feel it—though I see nothing. I feel it—nearer and nearer in the empty air, darker and darker in the sunny light. I don't know what it is. Take me away. No, not out on the beach. I can't pass the door. Somewhere else! somewhere else!"

Mrs. Crayford looked round her, and noticed a second door at the inner end of the boat-house. She spoke to her husband.

"See where that door leads to, William."

Crayford opened the door. It led into a desolate inclosure—half garden, half yard. Some nets, stretched on poles, were hanging up to dry. No other objects were visible—not a living creature appeared in the place. "It doesn't look very inviting, my dear," said Mrs. Crayford, "I am at your service, however. What do you say?"

She offered her arm to Clara as she spoke. Clara refused it. She took Crayford's arm, and clug to him.

"I'm frightened, dreadfully frightened!" she said to him faintly. "You keep with me—a woman is not protection; I want to be with you." She looked round again at the boat-house doorway. "Oh!" she whispered, "I'm cold all over—I'm frozen with fear of this place. Come into the yard! Come into the yard!"

"Leave her to me," said Crayford to his wife. "I will call you if she doesn't get better in the open air."

He took her out at once, and closed the yard door behind him.

"Mr. Steventon! do you understand this?" asked Mrs. Crayford. "What can she possibly be frightened of?"

She put the question, still looking mechanically at the door by which her husband and Clara had gone out. Receiving no reply, she glanced round at Steventon. He was standing on the opposite side of the luncheon-table, with his eyes fixed attentively on the view from the main doorway of the boat-house. Mrs. Crayford looked where Steventon was looking. This time, there was something visible. She say the shadow of a human figure projected on the stretch of smooth yellow sand in front of the boat-house.

In a moment more, the figure appeared. A man came slowly into view, and stopped on the threshold of the door.

CHAPTER XVIII.

THE man was a sinister and terrible object to look at. His eyes glared like the eyes of a wild animal; his head was bare; his long gray hair was torn and tangled; his miserable garments hung about him in rags. He stood in the doorway, a speechless figure of misery and want, staring at the well-spread table like a hungry dog.

Steventon spoke to him.

"Who are you?"

He answered in a hollow voice:

"A starving man."

He advanced a few steps, slowly and painfully, as if he was sinking under fatigue.

"Throw me some bones from the table," he said. "Give me my share along with the dogs."

There was a madness as well as hunger in his eyes while he spoke these words. Steventon placed Mrs. Crayford behind him, so that he might be easily able to protect her in case of need, and beckoned to two sailors who were passing the door of the boat-house at the time.

"Give the man some bread and meat," he said, "and walk near him."

The outcast seized on the bread and meat with lean, long-nailed hands that looked like claws. After the first mouthful of food he stopped, considered vacantly with himself, and broke the bread and meat into two portions. One portion he put into an old canvas wallet that hung over his shoulder; the other he devoured voraciously. Steventon questioned him.

"Where do you come from?"

"From the sea."

"Wrecked?"

"Yes."

Steventon turned to Mrs. Crayford. "There may be some truth in the poor wretch's story," he said. "I heard something of a strange boat having been cast on the beach, thirty or forty miles higher up the coast. When were you wrecked, my man?"

The starving creature looked up from his food, and made an effort to collect his thoughts—to exert his memory. It was not to be done. He gave up the attempt in despair. His language, when he spoke, was as wild as his looks.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Easy.

This is a day of all sorts of advertising competitions. One of the oddest is reported from England by the London Telegraph:

A traveling circus recently paid a visit to Clitheroe, and as an attraction, offered a prize to the man who could, as the Lancastrians term it, "pull th' ugliest mug."

The rules laid down were that each person should have "three tries." Competition ran high, some of the contortions being horrible to behold. After all had done their best, the clown, who acted as judge, coolly confronted a man sitting in the audience, who was noted for his ugliness, and said

"Me?" said the astonished individual; "wha' aw worn't tryin' for't!"

"Tha'd no need to try," said the clown; "tha's won it wi'out."

CAPTURED A TURKEY.

AND THE RAMROD OF A MUSKET WAS THE TOOL.

TOWARD the close of the year 1861 the 75th New York volunteers, a newly recruited regiment from Cayuga and Wayne counties, was put on board a steamer in New York Harbor and sailed for Santa Rosa Island, at the mouth of Pensacola bay, says the New York Tribune. The boys had got somewhat used to army fare by this time, but it was not what they were accustomed to at home and it is not to be wondered at that they occasionally hankered after the fleshpots of Egypt. Time hung rather heavily on the hands of these young warriors for a few days, because there was no guard mounting, drill or dress parade on shipboard. They wandered about curiously, so far as the discipline and usages of the occasion would allow; closely observing the architecture and other naval features of their floating abode. There was a mischievous fellow in the regiment who, for convenience, may be called Billy Edwards, although that was not his name. One day, while prowling about on deck, Billy and some of his companions detected an odor pleasantly suggestive of viands in process of preparation for the table.

Following the clew afforded by their noses they soon ascertained that a turkey, designed for the officers, had been roasted in the cook's galley. Pursuing their investigations still farther, they found that this well-stuffed and glistening bird was exposed to view almost directly under a skylight in the deck on which the soldiers were at liberty to stroll. Whereat their mouths watered and covetous impulses inspired them. Then an idea took possession of Billy. Dashing away with such haste as was possible, he rushed down the companionway to the quarters temporarily occupied by the men, got possession of the ramrod of a musket, adjusted to the end of it the screw employed in drawing a charge from a loaded gun, and then returned to his recent post of observation. He had not long to wait for his opportunity. The turkey still reposed, in blissful unconsciousness of the impending change in its destiny, where it had been a few minutes before. A close watch was kept on the cook. Suddenly, just as the latter's back was turned, the ramrod was thrust down at arm's length, inserted in the breast of the bird and given a vigorous rotary wrench, which entangled it in the hot, savory flesh. Gently at first, and then more rapidly, the rod was drawn upward, bringing with it the precious load. The turkey was enveloped in an overcoat and Edwards and his fellow-conspirators escaped without interference. The meal which they enjoyed in private that day was a memorable event in their careers. The capture of Port Hudson was nothing to it. What the cook said when he discovered that the bird had flown is not on record. He may have had his suspicions, but he could not trace the thief. And it is probable that neither the officers of the regiment nor of the vessel deemed it judicious to investigate the affair thoroughly.

Why Cats Always Fall on Their Feet.

Why does a cat always fall on its feet? This is a question that has recently absorbed the earnest attention of the French Academy of Sciences. The problem is clearly a difficult one, for that learned body of savants has so far failed to offer a final solution. M. Marey, a distinguished professor who has made a special study of animal movements, claims that the body of a cat is composed of two parts, one of which acts as a pivot for the other. Upon dropping the cat, it appears, paws upward, and then by a series of convulsive movements, it gradually rights itself and reaches the ground in an upright position. The whole process of turning is accomplished before the animal has fallen a yard. Without a fulcrum, without something to lean against, the cat certainly would not accomplish the feat. Mr. Marey declares that the animal's limbs act upon a fulcrum which its own body provides.

A Dried Up Lake.

A lake near Morrilton, Ark., dried up a couple of years ago, leaving a rich deposit of soil ten feet deep. A portion of it was planted with corn this year and it will yield 200 bushels to the acre. The corn, so the story goes, was sown broadcast, like wheat, and came up so strong and thick that a coon which recently tried to make its way through the stalks was unable to extricate itself, and was captured.

A novel proposition was made not long ago to the Receivers of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. The B. & O has a branch running from what is known as Alexandria Junction, near Washington, to Shepherd's on the Potomac River, where a car ferry is operated in connection with the lines leading south from the Capitol. A professor of an eastern college desired to lease this short stretch of track for the purpose of educating young men in practical railroad work. In his letter he explained that he thought there was a wide field for bright and energetic boys who could be thoroughly well grounded in the practical side of railroading, provided they could be educated on a regular line of road. He believed that by the employment of veteran railroad men as teachers that the boys could profitably spend 2 or 3 years working as trainmen, firemen, engineers, switchmen, station agents, and in other capacities required in the railroad service. As this branch of the B. & O. is of considerable value the Receivers were compelled to decline the offer.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

DYNAMITE IS NOW UNDER OUR GREAT CITIES.

From the Text: "The Boar Out of the Wood Doth Waste It, and the Wild Beast of the Field Doth Devour It"—Psalms 80 : 13.

BY this homely but expressive figure, David sets forth the bad influences which in olden time broke in upon God's heritage, as with swine's foot trampling, and as with swine's snout uprooting the vineyards of prosperity. What was true then is true now. There have been enough trees of righteousness planted to overshadow the whole earth, had it not been for the axe-men who hewed them down. The temple of truth would long ago have been completed, had it not been for the iconoclasts who defaced the walls and battered down the pillars. The whole earth would have been all Eschol of ripened clusters, had it not been that "the boar has wasted it and the wild beast of the field devoured it."

I propose to point out to you those whom I consider to be the destructive classes of society. First, the public criminals. You ought not to be surprised that these people make up a large proportion of many communities. In 1869, of the forty-nine thousand people who were incarcerated in the prisons of the country, thirty-two thousand were of foreign birth. Many of them were the very desperadoes of society, oozing into the slums of our cities, waiting for an opportunity to riot and steal and debauch, joining the large gang of American thugs and cutthroats. There are in our cities, people whose entire business in life is to commit crime. That is as much their business as jurisprudence or medicine or merchandise is your business. To it they bring all their energies of body, mind and soul, and they look upon the interregnums which they spend in prison as so much unfortunate loss of time, just as you look upon an attack of influenza or rheumatism which fastens you in the house for a few days. It is their lifetime business to pick pockets, and blow up safes, and shoplift, and ply the panel game, and they have as much pride of skill in their business as you have in yours when you upset the argument of an opposing counsel, or cure a gun-shot fracture which other surgeons have given up, or foresee a turn in the market so you buy goods just before they go up twenty per cent. It is their business to commit crime, and I do not suppose that once in a year the thought of the immorality strikes them. Added to these professional criminals, American and foreign, there is a large class of men who are more or less industrious in crime. Drunkenness is responsible for much of the theft, since it confuses a man's ideas of property, and he gets his hands on things that do not belong to him. Rum is responsible for much of the assault and battery, inspiring men to sudden bravery, which they must demonstrate, though it be on the face of the next gentleman.

They are harder in heart and more infuriate when they come out of jail than when they went in. Many of the people who go to prison go again and again and again. Some years ago, of fifteen hundred prisoners who, during the year had been in Sing Sing, four hundred had been there before. In a house of correction in the country, where during a certain reach of time there had been five thousand people, more than three thousand had been there before. So, in one case the prison, and in the other case the house of correction, left them just as bad as they were before. The secretary of one of the benevolent societies of New York saw a lad fifteen years of age who had spent three years of his life in prison, and he said to the lad, "What have they done for you to make you better?" "Well," replied the lad, "the first time I was brought up before the judge he said, 'You ought to be ashamed of yourself.' And then I committed a crime again, and I was brought up before the same judge, and he said, 'You rascal!' And after a while I committed some other crime, and I was brought before the same judge, and he said, 'You ought to be hanged.'" That is all they had done for him in the way of reformation and salvation. "Oh," you say, "these people are incorrigible." I suppose there are hundreds of persons this day lying in the prison bunks who would leap up at the prospect of reformation, if society would only allow them a way into decency and respectability. "Oh," you say, "I have no patience with these rogues." I ask you in reply, how much better would you have been under the same circumstances? Suppose your mother had been a blasphemer and your father a sot, and you had started life with a body stuffed with evil proclivities, and you had spent much of your time in a cellar amid obscenities and cursing, and if at ten years of age you had been compelled to go out and steal, battered and banged at night if you came in without any spoils; and suppose your early manhood and womanhood had been covered with rags and filth, and decent society had turned its back upon you and left you to consort with vagabonds and wharf-rats—how much better would you have been? I have no sympathy with that executive clemency which would let crime run loose, or which would sit in the gallery of a court-room weeping because some hard-hearted wretch is brought to justice; but I do say that the safety and life of the community demand more potential influences in behalf of these offenders.

I stepped into one of the prisons of one of our great cities, and the air was like that of the Black Hole of Calcutta. As the air swept through the wicket it almost knocked me down. No sunlight. Young men who had committed their first crime crowded in among old offenders. I saw there one woman, with a child almost blind, who had been arrested for the crime of poverty, who was waiting until the slow law could take her to the almshouse, where she rightfully belonged; but she was thrust in there with her child, amid the most abandoned wretches of the town. Many of the offenders in that prison sleeping on the floor, with nothing but a vermin-covered blanket over them. Those people, crowded, and wan, and wasted, and half-suffocated, and infuriated. I said to the men, "How do you stand it here?" "God knows," said one man; "we have to stand it." Oh, they will pay you when they get out! Where they burned down one house, they will burn three. They will strike deeper the assassin's knife. They are this minute plotting worse burglaries. Many of the jails are the best places I know of to manufacture footpads, vagabonds and cut-throats. Yale College is not so well calculated to make scholars, nor Harvard so well calculated to make scientists, nor Princeton so well calculated to make theologians, as the American jail is calculated to make criminals. All that these men do not know of crime after they have been in that style of dungeon for some time, satanic machination cannot teach them. Every hour these jails stand, they challenge the Lord Almighty to smite the cities. I call upon the people to rise in their wrath and demand a reformation. I call upon the judges of our courts to expose the infamy. I demand, in behalf of those incarcerated prisoners, fresh air and clear sunlight, and, in the name of him who had not where to lay his head, a couch to rest on at night. In the insufferable stench and sickening surroundings of some of the prisons, there is nothing but disease for the body, idiocy for the mind, and death to the soul. Stifled air and darkness and vermin never turned a thief into an honest man. We want men like John Howard and Sir William Blackstone, and women like Elizabeth Fry, to do for the prisons of the United States what those people did in other days for the prisons of England. I thank God for what Isaac T. Hopper and Doctor Wines and Mr. Harris and scores of others have done in the way of prison reform; but we want something more radical before upon our cities will come the blessing of him who said: "I was in prison and ye came unto me."

In this class of uprooting and devouring population and untrustworthy officials, "Woe unto thee, O land, when thy king is a child, and thy princes drink in the morning!' It is a great calamity to a city when bad men get into public authority. Why was it that in New York there was such unparalleled crime between 1866 and 1871? It was because the judges of police in that city, for the most part, were as corrupt as the vagabonds that came before them for trial. These were the days of high carnival for election frauds, assassination and forgery. We had the "Whisky Ring," and the "Tammany Ring," and the "Erie Ring." There was one man during those years that got one hundred and twenty-eight thousand dollars in one year for serving the public. In a few years it was estimated that there were fifty millions of public treasure squandered. In those times the criminal had only to wink at the judge, or his lawyer would wink for him, and the question was decided for the defendant. Of the eight thousand people arrested in that city in one year, only three thousand were punished. These little matters were "fixed up," while the interests of society were "fixed down." You know as well as I that a criminal who escapes only opens the door of other criminalities. It is no compliment to public authority when we have in all the cities of the country, walking abroad, men and women notorious for criminality, unwhipped of justice. They are pointed out to you in the street by day. There you find what are called the "fences," the men who stand between the thief and the honest man, sheltering the thief, and at great price handing over the goods to the owner to whom they belong. There you will find those who are called the "skinners," the men who hover around Wall street and State street and Third street with great sleight of hand in bonds and stocks. There you find the funeral thieves, the people who go and sit down and mourn with families and pick their pockets. And there you find the "confidence men," who borrow money of you because they have a dead child in the house, and want to bury it, when they never had a house nor a family, or they want to go to England and get a large property there and they want you to pay their way, and they will send the money back by the very next mail. There are the "harbor thieves," the "shoplifters," the "pickpockets," famous all over the cities. Hundreds of them with their faces in the "Rogues gallery," yet doing nothing for the last five or ten years but defraud society and escape justice. When these people go unarrested and unpunished, it is putting a high premium upon vice, and saying to the young criminals of this country, "What a safe thing it is to be a great criminal." Let the law swoop upon them! Let it be known in this country that crime will have no quarter, that the detectives are after it, that the police club is being brandished, that the iron door of the prison is being opened, that the judge is ready to call the case! Too great leniency to criminals is too great severity to society. * * *

In these American cities, whose cry of want I interpret, there are hundreds and thousands of honest poor who are dependent upon individual, city and state charities. If all their voices could come up at once, it would be a groan that would shake the foundations of the city, and bring all earth and heaven to the rescue. But for the most part it suffers unexpressed. It sits in silence, gnashing its teeth and sucking the blood of its own arteries, waiting for the judgment day. Oh, I should not wonder if on that day it would be found out that some of us had some things that belonged to them; some extra garment which might have made them comfortable on cold days; some bread thrust into the ash barrel that might have appeased their hunger for a little while; some wasted candle or gas jet that might have kindled up their darkness; some fresco on the ceiling that would have given them a roof; some jewel which, brought to that orphan girl in time, might have kept her from being crowded off the precipices of an unclean life; some New Testament that would have told them of him who "came to seek and to save that which was lost!" Oh, this wave of vagrancy and hunger and nakedness that dashes against our front doorstep, I wonder if you hear it and see it as much as I hear and see it! I have been almost frenzied with the perpetual cry for help from all classes and from all nations, knocking, knocking, ringing, ringing. If the roofs of all the houses of destitution could be lifted so we could look down into them just as God looks, whose nerves would be strong enough to stand it? And yet there they are. The sewing women, some of them in hunger and cold, working night after night, until sometimes the blood spurts from nostril and lip. How well their grief was voiced by that despairing woman who stood by her invalid husband and invalid child, and said to the city missionary, "I am downhearted. Everything's against us; and then there are other things." "What other things?" said the city missionary. "Oh," she replied, "my sin." "What do you mean by that?" "Well," she said, "I never hear or see anything good. It's work from Monday morning to Saturday night, and then when Sunday comes I can't go out, and I walk the floor, and it makes me tremble to think that I have got to meet God. Oh, sir, it's so hard for us. We have to work so, and then we have so much trouble, and then we are getting along so poorly, and see this wee little thing growing weaker and weaker; and then to think we are getting no nearer to God, but floating away from him—oh, sir, I do wish I was ready to die!"

* * *

I want you to appreciate how very kindly God has dealt with you in your comfortable homes, at your well-filled tables, and at the warm registers, and to have you look at the round faces of your children, and then, at the review of God's goodness to you, go to your room, and lock the door, and kneel down and say, "O Lord, I have been an ingrate; make me thy child, O Lord, there are so many hungry and unclad and unsheltered today, I thank Thee that all my life thou has taken such good care of me. O Lord, there are so many sick and crippled children today, I thank Thee mine are well, some of them on earth, some of them in heaven. Thy goodness, O Lord, breaks me down. Take me once and forever. Sprinkled as I was many years ago at the altar, while my mother held me, now I consecrate my soul to Thee in a holier baptism of repenting tears.

"'For sinners, Lord, thou cam'st to bleed,
And I'm a sinner vile indeed;
Lord, I believe Thy grace is free;
O magnify that grace in me!'"

SHAW IS GOVERNOR

RETURNS INDICATE HIS ELECTION BY 30,000.

Ohio Is Claimed By Republicans and Democrats—Greater New York Goes Democratic.

DES MOINES, Nov. 5.—The Register says: "The republican state ticket in Iowa is elected by a plurality of not less than 30,000, probably 31,000, and possibly the plurality will go above that figure. Complete returns are in hand. Figures on gain or loss for half of them indicated a plurality of more than 36,000. Actual plurality estimates on three-fourths of them indicated a plurality exceeding 30,000." Chairman McMillan of the state central committee insists that Shaw's plurality will exceed 30,000.

The Register claims that the senate will stand 40 republicans and 10 democrats and the house 63 republicans and 37 democrats. A hard fight was made against Senator Waterman, of Wapello, and he was defeated. Senator Gorrell, elected four years ago as a republican, is returned as a representative of the silver forces.

The Leader makes the following estimate of the total vote: Leslie M. Shaw, 222,695; Fred E. White, 192,223; Charles A. Lloyd, 5,709; John Cliggett, 6,148; S. P. Leland, 8,248.

The same paper also claims that the senate will stand, republicans 39, democrats 11, and the house, republicans 61 and democrats 39.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 4.—Unofficial but complete returns show republican plurality of 26,520 in Ohio. Both sides still claim a majority of the legislature, the republicans by 5, the democrats by 3. It will take the official count in several counties to find the result. Already it is asserted that several republican members of the legislature have refused to vote for Hanna for senator and that an effort will be made to bring Bushnell out for the place.

COLUMBUS, Nov. 6.—The Ohio legislature stands 74 republicans, 70 democrats and one doubtful on the official returns received. With a dozen or more of the eighty-eight counties very close there have been no material changes except in Wood county, which will be claimed by both parties till the courts pass on the action of the supervisors.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Nov. 4.—The complete vote of Pennsylvania is as follows: For state treasurer, Beacom, rep., 364,597; Brown, dem., 240,216; Swallow, prohib., 116,153; Thompson, indpt., 13,203. Beacom's plurality, 124,381.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov 4.—Returns give democrats all the senators elected and 94 and perhaps 95 members in the house. The republicans get four, perhaps five, members of the house and the independents one.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—Following is the grand total of the votes received by the three leading candidates for mayor in Greater New York, complete returns having been received from all the districts: Van Wyck, 235,181; Low, 148,513; Tracy, 101,823; Van Wyck's plurality over Low, 86,668.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 4.—It is estimated that the plurality of Parker, democratic candidate for chief judge of the court of appeals, will be about 58,000. Governor Black's plurality last year was over 200,000. The legislature will contain 85 republicans and 68 democrats.

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—Wolcott, rep., is elected governor by a plurality of probably 85,000.

DETROIT, Nov. 3.—Maybury, dem., is elected mayor by 21,000 plurality.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Nov. 4.—Of 8 judicial circuits the republicans captured 5, the democrats 1 and the populists the 2 Black Hills circuits.

LOUISVILLE, Nov. 4.—Sam J. Shackelford, silver democratic candidate for appellate court clerk, will have 25,000 to 30,000 majority, and the silver democrats have a majority of over twenty in the general assembly. Louisville, that had not gone democratic for three elections, gives Weaver, democrat, for mayor, 2,300 majority.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5.—The official count shows that the republicans have a majority in the legislature and will be enabled to elect a successor to Senator Gorman.

TOPEKA, Nov. 5.—The republicans elect nine of the thirteen judges chosen in Kansas.

LINCOLN, Neb. 6.—Complete official and unofficial returns from seventy counties and estimates for the remainder, give Sullivan (fusion) for supreme judge, 12,615 plurality.

The steamship Milwaukee recently sailed from New Orleans for Liverpool with the largest cargo of cotton, if not the largest general cargo, ever floated. It consisted of 23,850 bales of cotton, 30,200 bushels of grain, 38,818 pieces of staves and 2,300 oars. Her entire cargo being equal to 26,000 bales of cotton, it would take 500 freight cars to carry her cargo, and the train would measure three and a quarter miles in length.

UNION PACIFIC IS SOLD.

Reorganization Committee Secured the Property for $53,528,532.

Omaha, Neb., dispatch: The interest of the United States government in the Union Pacific railroad terminated when, at the foreclosure sale of the mortgage held by the United States, the road was purchased by the committee of eastern capitalists formed for its reorganization. The full amount accruing to the United States from the sale cannot be given exactly, but it is estimated to be $58,065,748.40. It was impossible to determine the full amount at the time of sale for the reason that the monthly statement made by the secretary of the treasury to the management of the Union Pacific on the first of every month was not available, and it was found necessary to estimate some items, although it is admitted by both sides that the estimates are approximately correct. The amount due to the government is $58,448,928.45. Against this are credits amounting to $18,565,640.74. Balance and amount bid by reorganization committee, $39,883,281.87. The sinking fund bonds sold for $13,645,250.76.

BIMETALLISTS DOWNED HIM.

Candidate for British Parliament Defeated by Them.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—A parliamentary bye election was held in the Middleton division of Southeast Lancashire to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Thomas Field of the conservatives. The result of the polling is the victory of the liberal and radical candidate, Alderman Buckworth, by a majority of 300 over the unionist and conservative candidate, Mr. Mitchell. The bimetallist question played a considerable part in the contest. No part of Lancashire is more ardently bimetallist than the southeast. The refusal of the government to take any definite step to meet the proposals of the American and French governments was used against Mr. Mitchell, although at all his meetings he expressed himself as strongly in favor of bimetallism, and advanced the opinion that the prevailing bad condition of the cotton trade is largely due to the depreciation of silver, which, he said had handicapped Lancashire trade to the extent of 30 per cent.

ASSASSINATION IN BRAZIL.

Unsuccessful Attempt on Life of President —One Minister Killed.

LONDON, Nov. 6.—A dispatch to the Times from Rio Janeiro says: A soldier of the Tenth batallion, which constitutes part of the local garrison, attempted to shoot President Morets with a pistol. The president was just talking at the marine arsenal, after visiting the steamer on which General Barbosa, minister of marine, had returned from Bahia. The bystanders frustrated the attempt, but Colonel Morets, the president's nephew, was slightly wounded in disarming the soldier. General Betancourt, minister of war, then interfered, and was himself stabbed. The wound was so serious that he died soon afterward. The attack caused the greatest agitation throughout the city.

Spain and Cuba.

MADRID, Nov. 5.—Owing to the fact that the Carlists are known to be importing arms into Spain, Premier Sagasta and Minister of War Correa are considering the adoption of repressive measures.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Nov. 5.—A special from Key West says: The Dauntless landed two expeditions from the Silver Heels, one in Camaguey and one in Santa Clara province. J. E. Cartaya landed at Key West from the Dauntless and will remain here. Dr. Juan Castillo and Charles Silva landed at Camaguey with important messages for the Cuban government. Both expeditions landed safely and have gone to the interior. The Silver Heels left for the north.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address

MRS. PETERSON'S STORY.

I have suffered with womb trouble over fifteen years. I had inflammation, enlargement and displacement of the womb.

The doctor wanted me to take treatments, but I had just begun taking Mrs. Pinkham's Compound, and my husband said I had better wait and see how much good that would do me. I was so sick when I began with her medicine, I could hardly be on my feet. I had the backache constantly, also headache, and was so dizzy. I had heart trouble, it seemed as though my heart was in my throat at times choking me. I could not walk around and I could not lie down, for then my heart would beat so fast I would feel as though I was smothering. I had to sit up in bed nights in order to breathe. I was so weak I could not do anything.

I have now taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and used three packages of Sanative Wash, and can say I am perfectly cured. I do not think I could have lived long if Mrs. Pinkham's medicine had not helped me.—MRS. JOSEPH PETERSON, 513 East St., Warren, Pa.

What it has already done to relieve suffering humanity is told in letters of grateful praise from thousands of hearts once sickened and heavy with pain, now painless and happy.

Gentlemen:—I can hardly find words to express my gratitude for what your "5 DROPS" has done for me. I have taken but one bottle of the medicine, and I feel like a new person. I have taken all kinds of medicines, but all together did not do me as much good as the first dose of your "5 DROPS." I recommended your medicine to one of my neighbors and it helped him right away. He had been using medicines and doctoring but nothing seemed to do him any good. I believe the Lord has sent your medicine, and if they will only have faith, it will cure them of their rheumatism. I almost believe it would bring a dead man to life again; such is my faith in the medicine. I am now 96 years of age. Very respectfully yours, C. H. L. CROSBY, Bowers Hill, Va.

The Klemme Times.

KLEMME - - IOWA.

They say the Japanese call us a nation of dogs. The little wretches know how to fight, but their statistics are abominably incorrect.

Queen Liliuokalani denies that she has abdicated her throne in favor of her niece. In fact she has not seen her throne for a term of years.

It is a fact that a German lover made a bet that he could kiss his sweetehart ten thousand times in ten hours, that he kissed her nearly four thousand times in three hours, and that then his lips became paralyzed and he lost the bet. Foolish extravagance like this ought to be severely rebuked; and yet it is likewise a fact that the girl was in prime condition at the close of the contest and felt hurt when the referee called off the match.

Posthumous fame, or notoriety, sometimes depends more upon an incident than upon a life-work. A public man of good ability, upright, respected by all and beloved by his friends, a holder of high official positions and a faithful officer in each of them, was recently called from this life. In the newspaper accounts of his death he was universally designated as the man who, in a moment of impatience, kicked his way through a closed door in the hall of the national house of representatives.

The Kentucky Bankers' Association, recently in session at Frankfort, voted that at its future banquets ladies should sit at the tables, and no wine should be served. One of the relics of semi-barbarism is the prevalent custom of admitting ladies to balconies in time to hear after-dinner speeches while inspecting the remnants of the feast and inhaling the cigar smoke of the well-fed men. Ladies cannot attend public dinners where wines, liquors and cigars are served, and the Kentucky bankers have made a wise and manly choice in voting that they will henceforth have the ladies "as the only stimulant."

English law provides for the punishment of any person who publishes "any proposal or scheme for the sale of any ticket or tickets, chance or chances, in a lottery." Under this law the printer of a London newspaper was recently prosecuted and fined, as being "a rogue and vagabond," because he published the advertisement of a medicine in such a form as to make it a missing word contest. The prize offered for supplying two omitted words needed to perfect the sense was divided among six persons guessing the missing part of the advertisement. Of course the trial of the offender advertised the medicine, but it served the purpose of showing that the law against lotteries was to be construed so as to shut out schemes wearing an innocent look but really involving an illegal principle.

"Nothing but Fun," is the queer heading under which a great newspaper describes a "jubilee day," when thirty thousand school children of a Pennsylvania city attended a "Wild West" show. One of the features of this performance was a "realistic lynching." A colored fellow pretended to steal a horse, was lassoed, dragged a quarter of a mile over the ground, and hanged on the gallows; and then "the cowboys amused themselves firing at the struggling body, while the band played 'Nearer, My God, to Thee.'" It is to be regretted, but hardly to be wondered at, that the press generally has refrained from commenting on this brutal travesty of law and religion. Journalists probably feel that words are powerless to characterize the persons who would put before children such a degrading exhibition.

The women of Cuba have now taken up the fight, and propose to carry it on by means of the boycott, so far as they can. A report from Havana says: A proclamation issued by the Revolutionary club of Cuban women is largely circulating in Havana city and the rest of the island, and has caused a sensation among Cubans and Spaniards alike. The Cuban women desire the Spaniards in Cuba to be boycotted by every sympathizer with the Cuban cause. "It is a shame for us," the document says, "to buy our commodities in Spanish stores, thereby enriching our enemies. These volunteers who form the cowardly mob which has assassinated so many of our fathers, brothers and sisters, are the merchants who provide us with all we need in our homes, from the bread we eat to the clothes we wear. A boycott upon these Spaniards is the best thing we can do in the cities to help the patriots." The Spanish merchants in Havana are concerned over this document which has made a great impression among the Cuban families. The blow will certainly be a severe one.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

OIL INSPECTORSHIP.

Change Not to Be Made Until July Next.

DES MOINES, Nov. 13.—Another important defect in the new code has been discovered. The last legislature abolished the office of state oil inspector, or thought it did, leaving the present fifteen deputies to perform their present duties with the full title of inspector, making their report to the executive council. They are to be appointed by the governor for two years, commencing July 1. The legislature, however, did not provide who should do the inspecting between October 1, 1897, when the old system was to have been abolished, and July 1, 1888, when the governor is to appoint the new inspectors. The law requires the inspection, and Attorney General Remley has given an opinion that inasmuch as inspection is required and the new inspectors are not to be appointed until July 1, 1898, the old system continues until that time. Luther A. Brewer, of Cedar Rapids, is the present state oil inspector, who raised this question and convinced the attorney general and Governor Drake that he should hold over. His term of office expires in March, 1898, but he will doubtless be left to finish the time unless the legislature takes some action this winter.

TOOK LINCOLN'S DAUGHTER.

Mount Pleasant Youth Induced Her to Elope With Him.

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Miss Jessie Lincoln, daughter of Robert T., Lincoln, and Warren Beckwith, a young business man of Mount Pleasant, Iowa, were married at Milwaukee. A year ago young Beckwith and Miss Lincoln became sweethearts while the young woman was visiting at Mount Pleasant, the former home of her mother, daughter of James Harlan. Captain Beckwith, father of the groom, is a warm friend of the Lincoln family, but the young man, it is said, was objected to strongly. The affair, it was thought, was then broken up. Mrs. Beckwith returned from Milwaukee to her home on the Lake Shore drive and upon being questioned admitted her marriage.

STORES ROBBED AND BURNED.

Jerome Suffers from Burglars and Arson—Keokuk Fire.

CENTERVILLE, Nov. 13.—Fire destroyed $12,000 worth of property at Jerome. The stores and almost the entire contents belonging to D. M. Brazeale, clothiers; Donald Forsythe, druggist; John Shelton, general merchandise dealer. were burned. Little insurance was carried. A kit of burglar's tools was found in the street, and these signs indicated the Brazeale store had been robbed and then fired.

KEOKUK, Nov. 13.—The barrel factory of Fred Hilpert & Son was destroyed by incendiary fire. Loss, $7,000.

WILSON GIVEN A DEGREE.

Honor Conferred by the State Agricultural College Board.

DES MOINES, Nov. 13.—"Tama Jim" Wilson, secretary of agriculture, has been honored with the degree of master of agriculture by the board of trustees of the Ames Agricultural College. The board met for the purpose of graduating the fifty-five seniors and at this meeting conferred the degree. Few persons have ever been honored by the college with the degree of master, and it is regarded as a high mark of the esteem in which Mr. Wilson is held by the college in which he served so many years as a professor.

PRINTED IN RED INK.

Des Moines Paper's Sixteenth Anniversary.

DES MOINES, Nov. 9.—The Des Moines Daily News celebrated its sixteenth birthday by printing its edition in brilliant red ink, with beautiful illustrations. The Daily News is making wonderful strides in circulation and business since it reduced its price to $1 a year, the lowest price of any daily paper in the world. It is also greatly improved as a newspaper, giving the full Associated Press dispatches and markets.

THIEVES HOLD UP A MARSHAL.

Creston Has An Exciting and Costly Time of It.

CRESTON, Nov. 12.—Jones's dry goods store was entered by robbers and $600 worth of silks were stolen. Bivens & Helfenstine's grocery was broken into and Officer Johnson entered during the progress of the burglary. The thieves held him up and escaped. A bold foot-pad slugged Ed. Vandewalker and relieved him of $178.

Novak On Trial.

VINTON, Nov. 13.—Frank Novak is on trial in the district court for the murder of Edward Murray. A jury has been secured and testimony is now being taken. The case is exciting much interest.

SUFFRAGE HEADQUARTERS.

To Be Opened Soon at Des Moines—Miss Hay Will Come.

DES MOINES, Nov. 11.—In a few days the Equal Suffrage Association will open headquarters in the Equitable block. The offices will be in charge of Mrs. Callanan, but she will probably have the assistance of several other workers. Among those spoken of for active labor throughout the state is Miss Mary G. Hay, the noted Californian, who has been in the national work for several years. Miss Hay will have charge of the county organization work and Mrs. W. S. Belden, of Sioux City, will take up the petition work. The national organizers have decided that Iowa shall be won for equal suffrage this winter and will have the best talent in the field. The legislature will be snowed under by petitions and no stone will be left unturned by the advocates of this principle.

WATCH WOUNDS BURGLARS.

Good Work of a Watchman in a Marathon Store.

MARATHON, Nov. 15.—Four thieves attempted to burglarize the Ross Drug Company's store. They effected an entrance through the front door. A man sleeps in the store, and being aroused by the noise and discovering the thieves, he leveled a gun and spoke. The thieves rushed for the door and the watchman fired two charges of shot into the crowd. Several shots were fired in return. At hour afterward a man was found on the street seriously wounded in the left side and arm. The escaping thieves stole three horses.

IOWA CONDENSED.

A great school—Highland Park College, Des Moines, Iowa. Send to President Rearick for free catalogue.

Burglars entered the store of the Iowa Fur company, of Des Moines, recently and carried away with them merchandise to the approximate value of $1,000. Many valuable sealskins and other furs were taken.

At Sioux City recently the Missouri river steamer Castalia, just returned from Charles Mix county, South Dakota, with a cargo of grain and live stock, collided with sunken piling off the river front and went down in deep water. The crew escaped in the boats. The owners are local business men. They estimate the loss on boat and cargo at $12,000.

Mrs. Clara Crane, of Webster City, it is announced, has filed suit in the district court of Hamilton county against Jacob M. Funk, of the same place, for $10,000 for alleged malicious assault, claiming the assault took place October 1 in her rooms in Webster City. Mr. Funk is the wealthiest man in Hamilton county, his estate being estimated at half a million.

Dr. Eli Grimes, state bacteriologist, says diphtheria is prevalent in the state just now. He says the epidemic is now reaching a stage where it becomes serious. Oskaloosa and Blockton are both afflicted with it and in many parts of the state there are a large number of cases. Des Moines also has a number of cases and new cases are being reported to the board of health each day.

Judgments aggregating $46,000 against the stockholders in the defunct Iowa Savings Bank, of Sioux City, have been entered on the court records. The money is to be paid in to the receiver in thirty days and a dividend will be paid the depositors. This is about the first glimmer of hope the depositors of the bank have had for recovery of their money since the failure in 1896.

Carl Yates, of Oskaloosa, the man who shot his wife on the street near the postoffice on August 4, and who last week pleaded guilty, has been sentenced to four years at hard labor at the Fort Madison penitentiary. Mrs. Yates is still living though one bullet is imbeded in her kidneys and may prove fatal at any time. She pleaded for leniency for her husband because he is in bad health.

When William Altenberger, of Des Moines, broke loose with a big ax a month ago, tried to kill his wife, and failed in an effort to drown himself in six inches of water, he did not know what he was doing. He was insane. So the commissioners of insanity determined after an examination of two hours' duration. The man was taken, not to the penitentiary, as had been expected, but to the state asylum at Mt. Pleasant.

ALL OVER THE WORLD

WILL GO THROUGH.

Sixty Senators Are For the Annexation of Hawaii.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The Herald's Washington special says: Ratification of the Hawaiian annexation treaty by the United States senate is assured. The administration has made a poll of that body, and President McKinley is satisfied that more than two-thirds of the members will vote for ratification. When the treaty was submitted to the senate June 16 last, fifty-seven senators could be depended upon to vote in favor of the instrument. Eleven senators were given as doubtful and twenty-one as opposed to ratification. The administration has ascertained the views of the men who were then in doubt and McKinley is now depending on sixty-one senators to vote for the treaty, with prospects of the addition of several votes to this number.

NEW LAW IN PERU.

Congress Passes a Bill Legalizing Non-Catholic Marriages.

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 13.—The bill which legalizes non-Catholic marriages in Peru and which makes legal all civil ceremonies performed by mayors of towns in presence of two witnesses was sanctioned by congress just before adjournment. There was great excitement when the measure was taken up for final action. The clericals tried to sustain a motion to postpone consideration, but on vote the motion was lost. The president put a motion to close the debate and this was done amid much applause. During a scene of great excitement and while protests were being made the measure was sanctioned. The passage of the measure is a great triumph for liberal ideas and for the government.

SOVEREIGN RELIEVED.

No Longer at Head of the Knights of Labor Order.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 13.—James R. Sovereign, who has been general master workman of the Knights of Labor for several years, was relieved of his office by the general assembly. Under ordinary conditions, Mr. Sovereign's term of office would not expire until next meeting. This, however, it is said, makes no difference with the order, whose general officers during a meeting are always in the hands of the assembly and can be chosen and deposed at the will of the majority. Henry A. Hicks, of New York, District 253, New York city, was chosen to fill Mr. Sovereign's place, and I. D. Chamberlain, of Pueblo, Colo., was selected as general worthy foreman.

PARDON FOR COMPETITOR MEN.

Fortunate Ending of a Sensational Cuban Affair.

HAVANA, Nov. 14.—Dispatches from Madrid confirm the reports that the prisoners captured on the Competitor, in April, 1896, will be included in the amnesty decree soon to be issued.

HAVANA, Nov. 14.—The Spanish cavalry came upon the insurgents under General Alejandro Rodriques, in the province of Havana and in the engagement killed twenty insurgents, capturing a quantity of arms, together with the accoutrements of General Rodriguez, a quantity of baggage and letters.

DURRANT REPRIEVED.

Supreme Court of California Grants Him a New Lease of Life.

SACREMENTO, Nov. 12.—In the case of Theodore Durrant, who had been sentenced to hang to-day for the murder of Blanche Lamont, the supreme court granted a stay of execution on the ground that no official information of the action of the United States supreme court had yet been received and that the supreme court had acted too hastily.

Richard Folsome Cleveland.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 11.—The Princeton collegians were badly disappointed when it became known that Grover Cleveland's son is to be Richard Folsome Cleveland. They had given the young man the name of Grover Cleveland, Jr., on the day of his birth and hoped it would stick to him. The name decided upon is given in honor of Mrs. Cleveland's father.

Sieze Rifles for the Carlists.

BARCELONA, Spain, Nov. 14.—The police have seized 300 rifles intended for the Carlists. These were found on board the ship St. Phillips, which took shelter in Barcelona under stress of weather. The vessel came from Antwerp and it was intended to unload her on the coast of Valencia.

Russia and Turkey Cemented.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 14.—The sultan has conferred upon Count Muravieff, the Russian minister for foreign affairs, the grand cordon of the Osmanli order, for his services in "consolidating the friendship existing between the two countries."

DURRANT MAY NEVER HANG.

Cannot Die Before Next March in Any Event, Now.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—In view of the fact that the supreme court will not convene until the second Monday in January, it is not considered probable that Durrant, the condemned murderer of Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams, will expiate the crime for which he was sentenced to be hanged in December, 1895, before the latter part of February or the beginning of March next, if at all. The matter cannot come up for hearing upon the points involved in the order granting the certificates of probable cause, to which the murderer owes his second lease of life, until the middle of January. After the case has been decided another thirty days at least must intervene before the remittitur from the supreme court can reach the trial court and Durrant be re-sentenced for the second time. Meantime, Durrant has been removed from the condemned cell and returned to his old cell, No. 21, in murderers' row, at San Quentin.

PROUD ENGLAND BENDS.

Losing Prestige as a Leader in the Industrial World.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—A series of articles which are attracting much attention headed, "Marching Backwards," have been appearing in the Daily Mail. The writer has shown that Great Britain is failing behind in the great industrial race, and demonstrated how the United States, France and Germany can show increased exports to the amount of £25,000,000 in twelve years, extending from 1883 to 1895. It is further proved that the exports in the United Kingdom in the same period have decreased £9,000,000 ($45,000,000). Commenting on this showing the Daily Mail expresses the opinion that the main reasons for this falling off is that British traders want business instinct and some genuine patriotism, as evidenced by ship owners carrying foreigners' goods at lower rates than the British.

South Carolina Liquor Law.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 15.—Judge Pardee and Newman of the United States Court handed down a decision in the famous dispensary case. The judges decided that liquors and wines in bottles packed in boxes and shipped in carload lots, were, under the law of South Carolina, clearly admissible, and should be handled by any railroad.

The Insurgents Use Dynamite.

HAVANA, Nov. 15.—The insurgents dynamited a train between Neuvtas and the city of Puerto Principe. An engine and several cars were wrecked.

BREVITIES.

It is stated that owing to the fact that the Carlists are known to be importing arms into Spain, Premier Sagasta and Minister of War Correa are considering the adoption of repressive measures.

The dispatches state that a terrible famine is ravaging the province of Archangel, a government of European Russia, in the extreme north. Many have already died of starvation. The people wander about reduced almost to skeletons, their heads swollen to the size of baskets. Tea is the only means of subsistence.

Washington advices say the president has appointed W. Godfrey Hunter minister to Guatemala and Honduras. Hunter was one of the leading republicans of Kentucky, and a member of congress in the last house. He was a candidate for the United States senate, but after a long struggle was defeated by a few republicans refusing to support him.

Philadelphia dispatch: There are twenty-seven steamships in port or under charter to load grain for European ports. Most of the grain will be shipped during the next few weeks. They will carry an aggregate of three million bushels of corn and wheat. So far this year shipments of corn have aggregated nearly twenty-two million bushels, against less than seven million last year.

It is announced that Former Judge Vincent, who conducted the defense in the first trial of Adolph L. Luetgert, has withdrawn from the case. Private business affairs was given as the cause of his withdrawal. Attorney Phalen, who was associated with Judge Vincent during the famous trial and who announced the latter's withdrawal, will conduct the defense at the second hearing which, however, will not be called within six weeks.

The Spanish cabinet is said to have approved measures for the giving to the inhabitants of the islands of Cuba and Porto Rica the same constitutional rights as are enjoyed by Spaniards, for the bestowal of the right of suffrage upon all who have attained the age of 25 years and for the same census basis in municipal, provincial and parliamentary elections. The chambers of the islands will be permitted to modify the scheme if they shall deem it advisable.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

THE POMOLOGY OF THE HOLY BIBLE.

God Among the Orchards—"The Fruit Tree Yielding Fruit After His Kind"—Genesis; Chapter I., Verse II.—Why Was the Orchard First?

IT IS Wednesday morning in Paradise, The birds did not sing their opening piece, nor the fish take their first swim until the following Friday. The solar and lunar lights did not break through the thick, chaotic fog of the world's manufacture until Thursday. Before that there was light, but it was electric light or phosphorescent light, not the light of sun or moon. But the botanical and pomological productions came on Wednesday—first the flowers, and then the fruits. The veil of fog is lifted, and there stand the orchards. Watch the sudden maturity of the fruit! In our time pear trees must have two years before they bear fruit, and peach trees three years, and apple trees five years; but here, instantly, a complete orchard springs into life, all the branches bearing fruit. The insectile forces, which have been doing their worst to destroy the fruits for six thousand years, had not yet begun their invasion. The curculio had not yet stung the plum, nor the caterpillar hurt the apple, nor had the phylloxera plague, which has devastated the vineyards of America and France, assailed the grapes, nor the borer perforated the wood, nor the aphides ruined the cherry, nor the grub punctured the nectarine, nor the blight struck the pear. There stood the first orchard, with a perfection of rind, and an exquisiteness of color, and a lusciousness of taste, and an affluence of production which it may take thousands of years more of study of the science of fruits to reproduce.

Why was the orchard created two days before the fish and birds, and three days before the cattle? Among other things, to impress the world with a lesson it is too stupid to learn—that fruit diet is healthier than meat diet, and that the former must precede the latter. The reason there are in the world so many of the imbruted and sensual is that they have not improved by the mighty, unnoticed fact that the orchards of paradise preceded the herds and aviaries, and fish-ponds. Oh, those fruit-bearing trees on the banks of the Euphrates, and the Gihon, and the Hiddekel! I wonder not that the ancient Romans, ignorant of our God, adored Pomona, the Goddess of Fruits, and that all the sylvan deities were said to worship her, and that groves were set apart as her temples. You have thanked God for bread a thousand times. Have you thanked him for the fruits which he made the first course of food in the menu of the world's table? The acids of those fruits to keep the world's table from being insipid, and their sweets to keep it from being too sour?

At this autumnal season how the orchards breathe and glow, the leaves removed, that the crimson, or pink, or saffron, or the yellow, or brown may the better appear, while the aromatics fill the air with invitation and reminiscence. As you pass through the orchard on these autumnal days and look up through the arms of the trees laden with fruit, you hear thumping on the ground that which is fully ripe, and, throwing your arms around the trunk, you give a shake that sends down a shower of gold and fire on all sides of you. Pile up in baskets and barrels and bins and on shelves and tables the divine supply. But these orchards have been under the assault of at least sixty centuries—the storm, the droughts, the winters, the insectivora. What must the first orchard have been? And yet it is the explorer's evidence that on the site of that orchard there is not an apricot, or an apple, or an olive—nothing but desert and desolation. There is not enough to forage the explorer's horse, much less to feed his own hunger. In other words, that first orchard is a lost orchard. How did the proprietor and the proprietress of all that intercolumniation of fruitage, let the rich splendor slip their possession? It was as now most of the orchards are lost; namely, by wanting more. Access they had to all the fig-trees, apricots, walnuts, almonds, apples—bushels on bushels,—and were forbidden the use of only one tree in the orchard. Not satisfied with all but one, they reached for that, and lost the whole orchard. Go right down through the business marts of the great cities and find among the weighers and clerks and subordinates, men who once commanded the commercial world. They had a whole orchard of successes, but they wanted just one more thing—one more house, or one more country-seat, or one more store, or one more railroad, or one more million. They clutched for that, and lost all they had gained. For one more tree they lost a whole orchard. There are business men all around us worried nearly to death. The doctor tells them they ought to stop. Insomnia or indigestion or aching at the base of the brain or ungovernable nerves tell them they ought to stop. They really have enough for themselves and their families. Talk with them about their overwork, and urge more prudence and longer rest, and they say: "Yes, you are right; after I have accomplished one more thing that I have on my mind, I will hand over my business to my sons and go to Europe, and quit the kind of exhausting life I have been living for the last thirty years." Some morning you open your paper, and, looking at the death column, you find he suddenly departed this life. In trying to win just one more tree, he lost the whole orchard.

Yonder is a man with many styles of innocent entertainment and amusement. He walks, he rides, he plays ten-pins in private alleys, he has books on his table, pictures on his wall and occasional outings, concerts, lectures, baseball tickets, and the innumerable delights of friendship. But he wants a key to the place of dissolute convocation. He wants association with some member of a high family as reckless as he is affluent. He wants instead of a quiet sabbath, one of carousal. He wants the stimulus of strong drinks. He wants the permissions of a profligate life. The one membership, the one bad habit, the one carousal robs him of all the possibilities and innocent enjoyments and noble inspirations of a lifetime.

You see what an expensive thing is sin. It costs a thousand times more than it is worth. As some of all kinds of quadrupeds and all kinds of winged creatures passed before our progenitor that he might announce a name, from eagle to bat, and from lion to mole, so I suppose there were in paradise specimens of every kind of fruit tree. And in that enormous orchard there was not only enough for the original family of two, but enough fruit fell ripe to the ground, and was never picked up, to supply whole towns and villages, if they had existed. But the infatuated couple turned away from all these other trees and faced this tree; and fruit of that they will have though it cost them all paradise.

This story of Eden is rejected by some as an improbability, if not an impossibility, but nothing on earth is easier for me to believe than the truth of this Edenic story, for I have seen the same thing in this year of our Lord 1897. I could call them by name, if it were politic and righteous to do so, the men who have sacrificed a paradise on earth and a paradise in heaven for one sin. Their house went. Their library went. Their good name went. Their field of usefulness went. Their health went. Their immortal soul went. My friends! there is just one sin that will turn you out of paradise if you do not quit it. You know what it is, and God knows, and you had better drop the hand and arm lifted toward that bending bough before you pluck your own ruin. When Adam stood on tiptoe and took in his right hand that one round peach, or apricot, or apple Satan reached up and pulled down the round, beautiful world of our present residence. Overworked artist, overwrought merchant, ambitious politician, avaricious speculator, better take that warning from Adam's orchard and stop before you put out for that one thing more.

But I turn from Adam's orchard to Solomon's orchard. With his own hand he writes: "I made me gardens and orchards." Not depending on the natural fall of rain, he irrigated those orchards. Pieces of the aqueduct that watered those gardens I have seen, and the reservoirs are as perfect as when thousands of years ago the mason's trowel smoothed the mortar over their gray surfaces. No orchard of olden or modern time, probably, ever had its thirst so well slaked. The largest of these reservoirs is 582 feet long, 207 feet wide, and 50 feet deep. These reservoirs Solomon refers to when he says: "I made me pools of water, to water therewith the wood that bringeth forth trees." Solomon used to ride out to that orchard before breakfast. It gave him an appetite and something to think about all the day. Josephus, the historian, represents him as going out "early in the morning from Jerusalem to the famed rocks of Etam, a fertile region, delightful with paradises and running springs. Thither the king, in robes of white, rode in his chariot, escorted by a troop of mounted archers chosen for their youth and stature, and clad in Tyrian purple, whose long hair, powdered with gold dust, sparkled in the sun." After Solomon had taken his morning ride in these luxuriant orchards he would sit down and write those wonderful things in the Bible, drawing his illustrations from the fruits he had that very morning plucked or ridden under. And, wishing to praise the coming Christ, he says: "As the apple tree among the trees of the wood, so is my beloved." And wishing to describe the love of the church for her Lord, he writes: "Comfort me with apples, for I am sick of love," and desiring to make reference to the white hair of the octogenarian, and just before having noticed that the blossoms of the almond tree were white, he says of the aged man: "The almond tree shall flourish." The walnuts and the pomegranates, and the mandrakes, and the figs make Solomon's writings a divinely arranged fruit basket.

What mean Solomon's orchards and Solomon's gardens? for they seem to mingle, the two into one, flowers under foot, and pomegranates over head. To me they suggest that religion is a luxury. All along, the world has looked upon religion chiefly as a dire necessity—a lifeboat from the shipwreck, a ladder from the conflagration, a soft landing-place after we have been shoved off the precipice of this planet. As a consequence so many have said: "We will await preparation for the future until the crash of the shipwreck, until the conflagration is in full blaze, until we reach the brink of the precipice." No doubt religion is inexpressibly important for the last exigency. But what do the apples, and the figs, and the melons, and the pomegranates, and the citron, and the olives of Solomon's orchard mean? Luxury! They mean that our religion is the luscious, the aromatic, the pungent, the arborescent, the efflorescent, the foliaged, the umbrageous. They mean what Edward Payson meant when he declared: "If my happiness continues to increase I cannot support it much longer." It means what Bapa Padmanji, a Hindoo convert, meant when he said: "I long for my bed, not that I may sleep—I lie awake often and long—but to hold communion with my God." It means what the old colored man said, when he was accosted by the colporteur, "Uncle Jack, how are you?" "I is very painful in my knee, but, thank my heavenly Master, I'm cause to be thankful. My good Master just gib me nuf to make me humble." "And do you enjoy religion as much now, Uncle Jack, as when you could go to church and class-meetings?" "Yes, I 'joys him more. Den I truss to de people, to de meetings, to de sarment; and when I hear de hymn sing, and de pray I feels glad. But all dis ain't like de good Lord in de heart, God's love here." It means sunrise instead of sundown. It means the Memnon statue made to sing at the stroke of the morning light. It means Christ at the wedding in Cana. It means the "time of the singing of birds is come." It means Jeremiah's "well-watered garden." It means David's oil of gladness." It means Isaiah's "bride and bridegroom." It means Luke's bad boy come home to a father's house. Worldly joy killed Leo X. when he heard that Milan was captured. Talva died of joy when the Roman senate honored him. Diagora died of joy because his three sons were crowned at the Olympian games. Sophocles died of joy over his literary successes. And religious joy has been too much for many a Christian, and his soul has sped away on the wing of hosannas.

While there is enough of the pomp of the city about heaven for those who like the city best, I thank God there is enough in the Bible about country scenery in heaven to please those of us who were born in the country and never got over it. Now you may have streets of gold in heaven; give me the orchards, with twelve manner of fruits and yielding their fruit every month; and the leaves of the trees are for "the healing of the nations; and there shall be no more curse, but the throne of God and of the Lamb shall be in it, and his servants shall serve him; and they shall see his face, and his name shall be in their foreheads; and there shall be no night there, and they need no candle, neither light of the sun, for the Lord God giveth them light; and they shall reign for ever and ever." But just think of a place so brilliant that the noonday sun shall be removed from the mantle of the sky because it is too feeble a taper! Yet, most of all, am I impressed with the fact that I am not yet fit for that place, nor you, either. By the reconstructing and sanctifying grace of Christ we need to be made all over. And let us be getting our passports ready if we want to get into that country. An earthly passport is a personal matter, telling our height, our girth, the color of our hair, our features, our complexion, and our age. I cannot get into a foreign port on your passport, nor can you get in on mine. Each one of us for himself needs a divine signature, written by the wounded hand of the Son of God, to get into the heavenly orchard, under the laden branches of which, in God's good time, we may meet the Adam of the first orchard, and the Solomon of the second orchard, and the St. John of the last orchard, to sit down under the tree of which the church in the Book of Canticles speaks when it says: "As the apple tree among the trees of the wood, so is my beloved among the sons. I sat down under his shadow with great delight, and his fruit was sweet to my taste;" and there it may be found that today we learned the danger of hankering after one thing more, and that religion is a luxury, and that there is a Divine antidote for all poisons, and that we had created in us an appetite for heaven, and that it was a wholesome and saving thing for us to have discoursed on the pomology of the Bible; or God Among the Orchards.

NATIONAL CROP STATISTICS

Average Yield of Corn is 23.7 Bushels Per Acre—Other Crops.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The November report of the statistician of the department of agriculture gives 23.7 bushels as the average yield per acre of corn according to the preliminary returns of the department's correspondents. The corresponding preliminary estimate last year was 27.3 bushels, and that of 1895 was 26.2 bushels.

The average yield in the principal corn states is as follows:

New York, 32.5; Pennsylvania, 36; Ohio, 32.5; Indiana, 28; Illinois, 31.5; Iowa, 29; Missouri, 25; Kansas, 19; Nebraska, 29.

The average per cent of quality is 86.3, as compared with 88.4 in 1896, and 92.3 in 1895.

The preliminary estimate of the average yield of buckwheat is 20.7 bushels per acre, as compared with 18.7 bushels last year and 20.1 bushels in 1895.

The average yield per acre of tobacco is 646 pounds, against 679 pounds per acre last year.

MANY DYING OF HUNGER.

Starvation Proves to Be Spain's Most Effective Weapon.

A Havana dispatch says: Weyler has gone, but his purpose to "exterminate the breed" of Cuban patriots is being fulfilled. Starvation is killing "concentrados" by tens of thousands. Hunger is doing what Spain's 200,000 soldiers cannot accomplish. Women and children are weak, the old are dying like sheep, the rural population has been "concentrated" in the towns and has filled the graveyards, and its dead now lie unburied. Frightful are the sufferings of those who survive and cry out for mercy to the civilized world. Physicians of Havana are now forbidden to give starvation ("inanicion") as a cause of death. A correspondent in San Domingo writes in the Diario de La Marinako: "The multitude of sick fall, dying upon the garbage in the streets here, and there they lie until, after having served as ignominious spectacles for some hours, they are collected and hauled away in ox carts used for carrying garbage to the dumping grounds. If bodies are admitted to the cemetery, they reach there only in this unseemly manner. The church cemeteries are full, so most of these dead bodies are thrown into the fields to be eaten by birds and dogs."

BUSHNELL OR HANNA, WHICH?

Governor Said to Be Inclined to Run for United States Senate.

Columbus dispatch: T. E. Harwood, publisher of the Springfield Gazette, the organ of Governor Bushnell, confirms the report that the governor will be a candidate to succeed Senator Hanna. It now transpires that the contemplated action of Bushnell was taken after Secretary Dick had interviewed every republican member-elect of the general assembly by telegraph, asking them to pledge themselves anew to Senator Hanna, and found that thirty men had refused to say that they would support Hanna. A conference of a number of democratic leaders was held at the Great Southern Hotel. The meeting was a select one, but it is understood they pledged the vote of the democratic members of the house and senate, or at least such as could be controlled, to Governor Bushnell for the senate.

South Dakota Klondike.

DEADWOOD, S. D., Nov. 12.—At a depth of 150 feet in the new workings of the Hawkeye mine, situated at Plum Gulch, two miles from Deadwood, a body of free milling gold was struck which showed an assay value of $1,966 in gold per ton. The ore body is a continuation of that struck six weeks ago, which caused intense excitement in the west and caused a stampede to the district in which the mine is situated.

Salisbury Will Divy Honors.

LONDON, Nov. 11.—The Financial Post professes to know that the Marquis of Salisbury, premier and secretary of foreign affairs, is about to resign the foreign secretaryship in favor of the Marquis of Landsdowne, retaining, however, the premiership.

Burn 3,000 Sheep and 20,000 Cattle.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Nov. 11.—Three thousand sheep and 20,000 cattle were burned to death in Crosby county by fire which is sweeping over Panhandle country ranges. The damage to ranches is enormous. Fall crops are being badly damaged.

MERCY TO THE REBELS.

Proclamation of Pardons Issued at Havana by Blanco.

Captain-General Blanco, of Cuba, has issued the following edict, officially described as "expressing the magnanimous sentiments of the queen regent and the firm determination of the national government": "I pardon in full all those who have been prosecuted for the crime of rebellion. Rebels prosecuted for common crimes, independent of rebellion, such as spoliation, immorality and the like, will be pardoned as rebels, but judged for other offenses committed by them. Those suffering sentences imposed prior to the date of this edict will have their sentence commuted to a certain extent, and perhaps in some cases in full. Persons pardoned should appear before the civil and military authorities at their respective places of residence, which they will designate and which will be communicated to me. Should they designate places of residence outside the principal towns, they will be advised of the necessity of residing within the military zone of cultivation. The military authorities will be careful not to invade the jurisdiction of the civil authorities. Therefore, those pardoned cannot change their residence without obtaining the permission of both civil and military authorities."

AROUSES BRAZILIAN SENATE.

Virtual Charge That the Opposition Plotted the President's Death.

BUENOS AYRES, Nov. 12.—Senator Viera, one of the government's supporters in the Brazilian senate, declared, in an open session of that body, that the opposition had predicted the death of President Moraes before November 9. This statement, taken in connection with the alleged plot which led to the recent attempt to kill the president, caused a sensation. Senator Barcelos, of the opposition, protested vigorously against this charge. In the chamber of deputies, Seabia, in an attack on the opposition, declared that the party was made up of anarchists. This aroused a hot discussion in that body. The many charges made have caused the opposition to publish a manifesto denying any responsibility for the attempt on President Moraes's life. This manifesto, which sets forth that the attempt grew out of discontent in the army, was not well received. Comparative quiet reigns in Rio Janeiro, though troops are still quartered all over the city, and an armed patrol surrounds the city.

TO GIVE THANKS.

Gov. Drake's Proclamation is Marked by Its Brevity.

DES MOINES, Nov. 12.—Governor Drake has issued his Thanksgiving proclamation, calling upon the people of Iowa to give worshipful thanks November 25. It is as follows:

Following an ancient custom of our country, I, Francis M. Drake, governor of the state of Iowa, do hereby recommend that Thursday, November 25, 1897, the day named therefor by the president of the United States, be set apart by the people of this favored commonwealth and observed as a day of thanksgiving and praise to the Giver of all good for the blessings and bounties of another fruitful year.

At that time in our accustomed places of worship and in the family circle, let us raise grateful voices of praise to the All Father for life and home and brightening material prospects, for the gracious gifts the rolling seasons have brought us, and for preservation from famine, pestilence and elemental havoc. Let us also emphasize our gratitude by generous and substantial remembrance of the needy, the suffering and the afflicted among us. Thus, and in all other righteous ways, may ours be the happiness of "the people whose God is the Lord."

Nebraska's State Treasury Was a Real Klondike.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 12.—Otto Helbig, the expert who has been engaged for several months in examining the books and accounts of ex-State Treasurer Bartley, submitted his report to the legislative investigating committee, showing Bartley's shortage to be $870,000. The amount of the defalcation had been variously estimated at from $700,000 to $1,000,000. Bartley is now in Douglas county jail under a twenty-year sentence to the penitentiary. An appeal has been taken to the supreme court and argument on a motion for a new trial will soon be made.

Many Greeks Were Killed.

VIENNA, Nov. 13.—A Constantinople dispatch says a number of Greek bands which crossed the Thessalian frontier, were repulsed by the Turks, who killed many of the invaders and captured a large number of prisoners.

-Texas Stockman and Farmer-

Hon. Hiram C. Wheeler, of Ia. is now a full fledged citizen of Texas and he is preparing to start an 8,000-acre dairy farm in the coast country. Mr. Wheeler will have 1,000 dairy cows in his herd, all heifers, and they will be milked by machinery, using what is known as the Cushman process. It is expected to have the dairy doing business by Jan. 1st. All the feed necessary for the cows will be produced on the place, and every convenience necessary for the successful operation of the business will be supplied, even to the erection of an ice plant. Mr. Wheeler is a successful farmer recently from one of the best agricultural states of the North, and he located his proposed big dairy in Texes because, he says, good milk and butter in his opinion can be produced cheaper in Texas than any other state. what Texas needs is more men like Mr. wheeler to aid in the development of industries yet in their infancy.

CHAPTER XVIII.—(CONTINUED.)

"I can't tell you," he said. "I can't get the wash of the sea out of my ears. I can't get the shining stars all night, and the burning sun all day, out of my brain. When was I wrecked? When was I first adrift in the boat? When did I get the tiller in my hand and fight against hunger and sleep? When did the gnawing in my breast, and the burning in my head, first begin? I have lost all reckoning of it; I can't think; I can't sleep; I can't get the wash of the sea out of my ears. What are you baiting me with questions for? Let me eat!"

Even the sailors pitied him. The sailors asked leave of their officer to add a little drink to his meal.

"We've got a drop of grog with us, sir, in a bottle. May we give it to him?"

"Certainly."

He took the bottle fiercely, as he had taken the food—drank a little—stopped—and considered with himself again. He held up the bottle to the light, and, marking how much liquor it contained, carefully drank half of it only. This done, he put the bottle in his wallet, along with the food.

"Are you saving it up for another time?" said Steventon.

"I'm saving it up," the man answered. "Never mind what for."

He looked round the boat-house as he made that reply, and noticed Mrs. Crayford for the first time.

"A woman among you!" he said. "Is she English? Is she young? Let me look closer at her?"

He advanced a few steps toward the table. "Don't be afraid, Mrs. Crayford," said Steventon.

"I'm not afraid," Mrs. Crayford replied. "He frightened me at first—he interests me now. Let him speak to me if he wishes it."

He never spoke. He stood, in dead silence, looking long and anxiously at the beautiful English woman.

"Well?" said Steventon.

He shook his head sadly, and drew back again with a heavy sigh. "No!" he said to himself; "that's not her face. No! not found yet."

Mrs. Crayford's interest was strongly excited. She ventured to speak to him. "Who is it you want to find?" she asked. "Your wife?"

He shook his head again.

"Who then? What is she like?"

He answered that question in words. His hoarse, hollow voice softened little by little into sorrowful and gentle tones.

"Young," he said; "with a fair, sad face—with kind, tender eyes—with a soft clear voice. Young, and loving and merciful. I keep her face in my mind, though I can keep nothing else. I must wander, wander, wander—restless, sleepless, homeless—till I find her! Over the ice and over the snow; tossing on the sea, tramping over the land; awake all night, awake all day; wander, wander, wander till I find her."

He waved his hand with a gesture of farewell, and turned wearily to go out. At the same moment, Crayford opened the yard door.

"I think you had better come to Clara," he began—and checked himself, noticing the stranger. "Who is that?"

The shipwrecked man, hearing another voice in the room, looked round slowly over his shoulder. Struck by his appearance, Crayford advanced a little nearer to him. Mrs. Crayford spoke to her husband as he passed her. "It's only a poor mad creature, William," she whispered; "shipwrecked and starving."

"Mad!" Crayford repeated, approaching nearer and nearer to the man. "Am I in my right senses?" He suddenly sprang on the outcast, and seized him by the throat. "Richard Wardour!" he cried, in a voice of fury. "Alive! Alive to answer for Frank!" The man struggled. Crayford held him.

"Where is Frank?" he said. "You villain, where is Frank?"

The man resisted no longer. He repeated vacantly—"Villain?" and "Where is Frank?"

As the name escaped his lips, Clara appeared at the open yard door, and hurried into the room.

"I heard Richard's name!" she said. "I heard Frank's name! What does it mean?"

At the sound of her voice the outcast renewed the struggle to free himself, with a sudden frenzy of strength which Crayford was not able to resist. He broke away before the sailors could come to their officer's assistance. Half way down the length of the room he and Clara met one another face to face. A new light sparkled in the poor wretch's eyes; a cry of recognition burst from his lips. He flung one hand up wildly in the air. "Found!" he shouted, and rushed out to the beach before any of the men present could stop him.

Mrs. Crayford put her arms round Clara and held her up. She had not made a movement; she had not spoken a word. The sight of Wardour's face had petrified her.

The minutes passed, and there rose a sudden burst of cheering from the sailors on the beach, near the spot where the fishermen's boats were drawn up. Every man left his work. Every man waved his cap in the air. The passengers, near at hand, caught the infection of enthusiasm, and joined the crew. A moment more, and Richard Wardour appeared again in the doorway, carrying a man in his arms. He staggered, breathless with the effort that he was making, to the place where Clara stood, held up in Mrs. Crayford's arms.

"Saved, Clara!" he cried. "Saved for you!"

He released the man, and placed him in Clara's arms. Frank! Footsore and weary, but living! Saved—saved for her! "Now, Clara," cried Mrs. Crayford, "which of us is right? I, who believed in the mercy of God—or you, who believed in a dream?"

She never answered; she clung to Frank in speechless ecstasy. She never even looked at the man who had preserved him—in the first absorbing joy of seeing her lover alive. Step by step, slower and slower, Richard Wardour drew back and left them by themselves.

"I may rest now," he said faintly. "I may sleep at last. The task is done. The struggle is over."

His last reserves of strength had been given to Frank. He stopped, he staggered, his hands wavered feebly in search of support. But for one faithful friend he would have fallen. Crayford caught him. Crayford laid his old comrade gently on some sails strewed in a corner, and pillowed Wardour's weary head on his own breast. The tears streamed over his face. "Richard! Dear Richard!" he said. "Remember—and forgive me."

Richard neither heeded nor heard him. His dim eyes still looked across the room at Clara and Frank.

"I have made her happy!" he murmured. "I may lay down my weary head now on the mother earth that hushes all her children to rest at last. Sink, heart! sink, sink to rest! Oh, look at them!" he said to Crayford, with a burst of grief. "They have forgotten me already."

It was true! The interest was all with the two lovers. Frank was young, and handsome, and popular. Officers, passengers, and sailors, they all crowded round Frank. They all forgot the martyred man who had saved him—the man who was dying in Crayford's arms.

Crayford tried once more to attract his attention—to win his recognition while there was yet time.

"Richard, speak to me! Speak to your old friend!"

He looked round; he vacantly repeated Crayford's last word.

"Friend?" he said. "My eyes are dim, friend; my mind is dull. I have lost all memories but the memory of her. Dead thoughts—all dead thoughts but that one! And yet you look at me kindly! Why has your face gone down with the wreck of all the rest?"

He paused. His face changed; his thoughts drifted back from present to past. He looked at Crayford vacantly; lost in the terrible remembrances that were rising in him, as the shadows rise with the coming night.

"Hark ye, friend!" he whispered. "Never let Frank know it. There was a time when the fiend within me hungered for his life. I had my hands on the boat. I heard the voice of the Tempter speaking to me: 'Launch it, and leave him to die!' I waited, with my hands on the boat and my eyes on the place where he slept. 'Leave him! leave him!' the Voice whispered. 'Love him!' the lad's voice answered, moaning and murmuring in his sleep. 'Love him, Clara, for helping me!' I heard the morning wind come up in the silence over the great deep. Far and near, I heard the groaning of the floating ice, floating, floating, to the clear water and the balmy air. And the wicked Voice floated away with it—away, away, away, forever! 'Love him! love him, Clara, for helping me.' No wind could float that away. 'Love him, Clara——'"

His voice sank into silence; his head dropped on Crayford's breast. Frank saw it. Frank struggled up on his bleeding feet, and parted the friendly throng round him. Frank had not forgotten the man who had saved him.

"Let me go to him!" he cried. "I must, and will, go to him! Clara, come with me."

Clara and Steventon supported him between them. He fell on his knees at Wardour's side; he put his hand on Wardour's bosom. "Richard!"

The weary eyes opened again. The sinking voice was heard feebly once more.

"Ah! poor Frank. I didn't forget you, Frank, when I came here to beg. I remembered you, lying down outside in the shadows of the boats. I saved you your share of the food and drink. Too weak to get at it now! A little rest, Frank! I shall soon be strong enough to carry you down to the ship."

The end was near. They all saw it now. The men reverently uncovered their heads in the presence of Death. In an agony of despair, Frank appealed to the friends round him.

"Get something to strengthen him, for God's sake! Oh, men! men! I should never have been here but for him! He has given all his strength to my weakness; and now, see how strong I am, and how weak he is! Clara! I held by his arm all over the ice and snow. He kept watch when I was senseless in the open boat. His hand dragged me out of the waves, when we were wrecked. Speak to him, Clara! speak to him." His voice failed him, and his head dropped on Wardour's breast.

She spoke, as well as her tears would let her. "Richard! have you forgotten me?"

He rallied at the sound of that beloved voice. He looked up at her, as she knelt at his head.

"Forgotten you?" Still looking at her, he lifted his hand with an effort, and laid it on Frank. "Should I have been strong enough to save him, if I could have forgotten you?" He waited a moment, and turned his face feebly toward Crayford. "Stay!" he said. "Some one was here and spoke to me." A faint light of recognition glimmered in his eyes. "Ah, Crayford! I recollect now. Dear Crayford! Come nearer! My mind clears; but my eyes grow dim. You will remember me kindly for Frank's sake? Poor Frank! why does he hide his face? Is he crying? Nearer, Clara—I want to look my last at you. My sister Clara! Kiss me, sister, kiss me before I die!"

She stooped and kissed his forehead. A faint smile trembled on his lips. It passed away; and stillness possessed the face—the stillness of Death.

Crayford's voice was heard in the silence.

"The loss is ours," he said. "The gain is his. He has won the greatest of all conquests—the conquest of himself. And he has died in the moment of victory. Not one of us here but may live to envy his glorious death."

The distant report of a gun came from the ship in the offing, and signaled the return to England and to home.

THE END.

Thomas Cooper, the Chartist.

The autobiography of Thomas Cooper, the English chartist, is, as Carlyle would say, "altogether human and worthy," and one of the most fascinating records of a strange and often stormy career that can be read in any language. With a vividness that even Carlyle might envy, it describes the hard struggle of Cooper's early years—how his poor widowed mother was tempted to sell her boy to the village sweep for money with which to pay the rent of their little cottage; how he got a smattering of the three R's, and at 15 was apprenticed to a shoemaker; how he learned by hook and crook to read four languages, and acquired, besides, as much history, mathematics and science as made him a prodigy even in the eyes of educated men; how he became a schoolmaster, then a journalist, and at last, in 1840, flung himself heart and soul into the Chartist agitation. It cost him two years in Stafford gaol. Through the kind offices of Charles Kingsley he was provided with writing materials. Mixing them "with brains," he speedily produced a number of short poems and stories, a "History of Mind," and, most important of all, a vigorous and imaginative poem in the Spenserian stanza, "The Purgatory of Suicides," which has gone through several editions. It is just about four years since Thomas Cooper died, at the age of 87. He had outlived his fame, as he had outlived his Chartism. Indeed, we might say of him what an American critic said of Beecher, that, had he died sooner he would have lived longer."

Would Have One Soon.

A freak museum manager wrote a party in Kentucky naming an offer for a rope with which any man had been lynched. The party replied: "We have none on hand now, but have placed your order on file, and you are likely to hear from us soon."

LIFE IN ROYAL COURT

MARIE-ANTOINETTE DESCRIBES DAILY OCCUPATIONS.

A Letter to Her Mother in Which She Draws an Interesting Picture of Royal Pleasure and Duties—An Interesting Letter.

MISS Anna L. Bicknell, author of "Life in Tuileries Under the Second Empire," contributes an article to the current Century on "Marie-Antoinette as Dauphine." Miss Bicknell has availed herself of new material from the state papers in Vienna. An interesting document from this source is the following letter written by Marie-Antoinette to her mother, Maria Theresa, Empress of Austria:

"Choisy, 12th July.—Madame my very dear Mother: I cannot express how much I am affected by your Majesty's kindness, and I protest that I have not yet received one of your dear letters without tears of regret filling my eyes at being parted from such a kind and tender mother; and although I am very happy here, I should earnestly wish to return to see my dear, very dear family, if only for a short time. . . .

"We have been here since yesterday, and from one o'clock in the afternoon, when we dine, till one in the morning, we cannot return to our own apartments, which is very disagreeable to me. After dinner we have cards till six o'clock; then we go to the play till half-past nine; then supper; then cards again till one o'clock, sometimes even half-past one; only yesterday the King, seeing that I was tired out, kindly dismissed me at eleven, to my very great satisfaction, and I slept very well till half-past ten.

"Your Majesty is very kind to show so much interest in me, even to the extent of wishing for an account of how I spend my time habitually. I will say, therefore, that I rise at ten o'clock, or nine, or half-past nine, and after dressing I say my prayers; then I breakfast, after which I go to my aunts', where I usually meet the King. This lasts till half-past ten. At eleven I go to have my hair dressed. At noon the 'Chambre' is called, and any one of sufficient rank may come in. I put on my rouge and I wash my hands before everybody; then the gentlemen go out; the ladies stay, and I dress before them. At twelve is mass; when the King is at Versailles I go to mass with him and my husband and my aunts; if he is not there I go with Monsieur the Dauphin, but always at the same hour. After mass we dine together before everybody, but it is over by half-past one, as we both eat quickly. I then go to Monsieur the Dauphin; if he is busy, I return to my own apartments, where I read, I write, or I work; for I am embroidering a vest for the King, which does not get on quickly; but I trust that, with God's help, it will be finished in a few years (!). At three I go to my aunts', where the King usually comes at that time. At four the Abbe comes to me; at five the master for the harpsichord, or the singing-master, till six. At half-past six I generally go to my aunts' when I do not go out. You must know that my husband almost always comes with me to my aunts'. At seven, card-playing till nine; but when the weather is fine I go out, and then the card-playing takes place in my aunts' apartments instead of mine. At nine, supper; when the King is absent my aunts come to take supper with us; if the King is there, we go to them after supper, and we wait for the King, who comes usually at a quarter before eleven; but I lie on a large sofa and sleep till his arrival; when he is not expected we go to bed at eleven. Such is my day.

"I entreat you, my dear mother, to forgive me if my letter is too long; but my greatest pleasure is to be thus in communication with your Majesty. I ask pardon also for the blotted letter, but I have had to write two days running at my toilet, having no other time at my disposal; and if I do not answer all questions exactly, I trust that your Majesty will make allowances for my having too obediently burned your letter. I must finish this, as I have to dress and to go to the King's mass. I have the honor to be your Majesty's most submissive daughter,

"MARIE-ANTOINETTE."

Strange Swiss Landslide.

A curious landslip occurred a few days ago in the village of Sattel, in Canton Schwyz. An inn situated by the side of a hill was carried, without sustaining any injury, thirty-five feet down the hillside, stopping just short of being precipitated into the River Steinen. The road in front of the house, the garden, and all the immediate surroundings of the inn are intact. By the house were two large elms, and even these have in no way suffered.

CURES RHEUMATISM, ETC.

A Recent Discovery That Is Working Wonders.

The most prevailing afflictions that for a century have been engaging the most scientific skill of the medical world are rheumatism, neuralgia, catarrh, asthma, la grippe and their kindred ailments. The country is full of sufferers from these complaints. Although the most learned experts of the medical profession have labored for a century to produce a curative, until quite recently no positive results were effected. To the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Co., 167-69 Dearborn street, Chicago, belongs the credit for having produced the new remedy. It is being extensively advertised under the trade mark of "Five Drops." The trade mark is self-explantory. Five drops make a dose. The effect is magical. In days gone by other alleged cures have been marketed with the promise to take effect in thirty days or more. Five Drops begins to cure at once. Immediate relief is felt. In order to more effectively advertise its merits the company will for the next thirty days send out 100,000 of their sample bottles of this positive cure for 25 cents a bottle by mail prepaid. Large bottle, 300 doses, $1 (for thirty days 3 bottles $2.50.) Those suffering should take immediate advantage of this generous offer and write them to-day.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

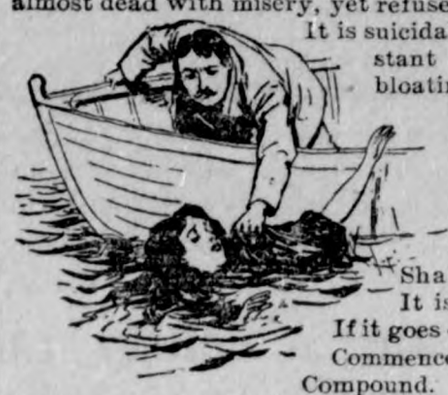
NEGLECT IS SUICIDE.

Plain Words From Mrs. Pinkham, Corroborated by Mrs. Charles Dunmore, That Ought to Bring Suffering Women to Their Senses.

If you were drowning and friendly hands shoved a plank to you, and you refused it, you would be committing suicide!

Yet that is precisely what women are doing if they go about their homes almost dead with misery, yet refuse to grasp the kindly hand held out to them!



It is suicidal to go day after day with that dull, constant pain in the region of the womb and that bloating heat and tenderness of the abdomen, which make the weight of your clothes an almost intolerable burden to you. It is not natural to suffer so in merely emptying the bladder. Does not that special form of suffering tell you that there is inflammation somewhere?

Shall I tell you what it is?

It is inflammation of the womb!

If it goes on, polypus, or tumor, or cancer will set in.

Commence the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands of women in this condition have been cured by it. Keep your bowels open with Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and if you want further advice, write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., stating freely all your symptoms—she stands ready and willing to give you the very best advice. She has given the helping hand to thousands suffering just like yourself, many of whom lived miles away from a physician. Her marvelous Vegetable Compound has cured many thousands of women. It can be found at any respectable drug store.

MRS. CHARLES DUNMORE, 102 Fremont St., Winter Hill, Somerville, Mass., says: "I was in pain day and night; my doctor did not seem to help me. I could not seem to find any relief until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had inflammation of the womb, a bearing-down pain, and the whites very badly. The pain was so intense that I could not sleep at night. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for eight months, and am now all right. Before that I took morphine pills for my pain; that was a great mistake, for the relief was only momentary and the effect vile. I am so thankful to be relieved of my sufferings, for the pains I had were something terrible. I am, indeed, very grateful for the good Mrs. Pinkham's remedies have done me."

KLEMME - - IOWA.

Sam Jones having the first mansion in Georgia, it would seem that he is more successful in saving money than in saving souls.

Bismarck is not right in the declaration that the Monroe doctrine is insolence to Europe. It is rather a means of natural protection, and its purpose is to prevent insolence from abroad. It is likewise a guarantee of peace without the undemocratic maintenance of a great army. The effort of Louis Napoleon to make an empire of Mexico must never be forgotten.

The Kaiser wanted to telegraph the Spanish government his congratulations because of what he called its firmness in its relation with Mr. Woodford. He intended a slap at this government after the manner of his rebuke of England through congratulations to Uncle Paul of the Transvaal. Happily his advisers talked him out of it; but his desire to burn his fingers will be gratified some day. It is kings, we believe, that rush in where angels fear to tread.

Every time we raise the pen in behalf of bleeding Cuba, we hesitate, thinking that perhaps before our humble protest has been read by the people, the government at Washington will have raised its hand in the cause of humanity. There seems, however, to be long delays, and the patience of the American people is being severely tried. If the "comity of nations," or whatever the anti-Cuban liberty junta call it, will not permit the administration to act, then the sooner that this country discards "comity" the better. Our hands are becoming stained with the blood of Cuba. Look at them.

The attempt to keep young children in ignorance of stories about ghosts, fairies, giants and gypsies would certainly prove futile. If they are of a nervous and imaginative temperament they will invent new terrors for themselves instead of the old traditional ones. A little girl of six, who had been jealously guarded against any acquaintance with nursery bogies and superstitions, suffered from night terrors of a severe kind, in which she always screamed out that she was being chased by robbers. But while it may be impracticable to protect children from a knowledge of the supernatural and mysterious, it is inexcusable to frighten them with hideous stories or to leave them a prey to the terrors of the solitude and darkness.

Considerable opposition is being manifested toward the postal savings bank bill fathered by the Chicago Record newspaper. Quite unexpectedly this opposition comes from those from whom hearty support was expected. And what would seem more remarkable still, the bankers, as a class, favor the proposition. It may therefore be inferred that the bill contains some provisions favorable to the men who deal in money, as against those who produce the things for which money exchanges. Every sensible person must favor postal savings banks. It is not likely, however, that congress will authorize that kind of a postal savings institution that will be nothing more than a colecting agency for the national banks. The Record's bill has several bad features. We hope that these will be amended. We believe, nevertheless, that the bill has been drawn up in good faith. Thousands have thoughtlessly signed petitions favoring the bill. These petitions, of course, will have no weight in congress.

The dictum that, while civilized man cannot live without dining, he might live a good deal longer without so much dining—or, rather, without dining so extensively—may be accepted without any reservation. A celebrated physician once said that he had been convinced by circumstances that had come under his notice in the course of his experience that more mischief in the form of disease has accrued to civilized man from erroneous habits in eating than from alcoholic drink. He also declared himself in doubt whether improper and inordinate eating were not as great evils as inordinate drinking. Many of our best-known medical men say that the habit of over-eating is at the bottom of most troublesome diseases. There is no doubt that the habit is most often contracted in childhood. There are many mothers who feed their babies as often as they cry, taking it for granted that the baby cries for food, when more often the helpless little creature is crying because they already had too much food. When the stomach once becomes accustomed to being crowded with food, if the supply is cut short, there is at first a gnawing sensation that is frequently mistaken for hunger. If people who experience this will only persevere a little longer in their abstinence, they will find themselves greatly benefited by it.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

WILL SAVE THE STATE $20,000

Few if Any of the County Fairs Will Receive State Support.

DES MOINES, Nov. 19.—Attorney General Remley has just submitted an important opinion to the auditor of state which will result in a saving to the state of something like $20,000 each year. The opinion is in regard to the state support of the different county agricultural fairs. The law provides that each county shall receive $200 per year, provided that a similar or greater sum has been received by the society during the year in the form of annual dues from the members. In the past, the counties have been given the $200 each year, as the law was misinterpreted. Auditor of State McCarthy thought that the law was not being interpreted properly and he wrote to the attorney general for an opinion on the matter. In his reply Mr. Remley expresses the opinion that the counties are not entitled to the $200 unless a similar sum has been received by them as annual dues from members. As few if any of them receive such a sum the $20,000 spent for this purpose each year by the state will be saved.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

The Court's Decision On the Iowa Peddlers' License Law.

DES MOINES, Nov. 19.—Judge Conrad, of the district court of Polk county, has given the new code its first black eye. It was administered in the case of the state against Isaac Sunberg. He sustained a demurrer to an indictment against Sunberg, and holds that the new peddling license statute is unconstitutional. Under the statute, peddlers carrying a pack are required to pay a fee of $25 in each county; those driving one-horse conveyances, a license of $50; those using two-horse conveyances, $75. It also provided that old soldiers and sailors of the United States and persons unable to perform manual labor, shall be exempt from the tax. The court held that the exemption makes it class legislation.

HOLDS THREE TROPHIES.

Fred Gilbert, of Spirit Lake, a Wonderful Shot.

DES MOINES, Nov. 18.—Fred Gilbert, the "Phantom of Spirit Lake," holds three of the four recognized trap shooting trophies in the country. They are the Dupont championship trophy and the Kansas City Star cup for live birds, and the E. C. cup, emblematic of the championship of the United States at inanimate targets. Gilbert will be called upon to defend the possession of two of them against a challenger during the great trap shooting week to be held at Watson's Park, Chicago, in December. Both matches will be against the same expert, J. A. R. Elliott, of Kansas City. They are for the Dupont trophy and the Kansas City Star cup. Each match will be at 100 live birds.

WOMAN'S TERRIBLE LEAP.

Clarinda Woman Fell or Jumped From a Train.

VILLISCA, Nov. 20.—Miss Callicotte, a sister of J. W. Callicotte, of Clarinda, on her way from Denver, leaped from the closet window of the Villisca and St. Joseph passenger a few miles north of St. Joseph, and was picked up nearly dead in a partly nude state. No cause can be assigned for the attempt at suicide.

Child Scalded to Death.

WATERLOO, Nov. 20.—Walton Wade, the 1-year-old child of Mrs. John Wade, of Norfolk, Neb., was accidentally scalded at the home of his mother's parents near Raymond. The child was playing on the floor near a stove when in some way a kettle of boiling water was accidentally upset and the steaming contents fell on the boy's head. The skull was so young and tender that it offered no protection to the heat, and the brain of the little one was literally cooked. Death from inflammation has since followed.

Will Contest the Election.

DES MOINES, Nov. 20.—F. C. Hartshorn, who was one of the candidates for representative in the celebrated Hancock-Wright county squabble, has filed a notice of contest with the secretary of state notifying him that he will contest the election of John Christie, Jr., to the legislature. The notice means that Christie, who was declared elected by the board of supervisors when the official canvass of the vote was made, will have to defend his right to a seat in the house.

Judge Spurrier Resigns.

DES MOINES, Nov. 18.—Judge W. A. Spurrier has forwarded to Gov. Drake his resignation as judge of the district court of Polk county. He will enter the practice of law. The governor appointed C. A. Bishop to fill the vacancy.

Snow in Iowa.

DUBUQUE, Nov. 16.—The first snow of the season fell last night and it was general throughout northern Iowa.

NOVAK SPRINGS A SURPRISE.

One Statement of a State Witness Flatly Contradicted.

VINTON, Nov. 17.—The defense in the Novak trial sprung a surprise, when Joseph Stusak, an old employe of Novak's, testified that on the night following the fire he and John Dusil turned the valves in the gas pipes in the boiler room, which the witness for the state claimed they found welded together by the heat so they could not be turned. Mr. and Mrs. Zabortsky testified that the stock in the store was worth $6,000 to $7,000, and that they carried insurance on only $3,500; that the building was worth $4,000 and the insurance was $2,000. They also testified that just above the sleeping room were a number of caskets, indicating that in falling they might have struck Murray and fractured the skull.

VINTON, Nov. 21.—The line of defense in the Novak murder trial has been fully developed. His attorneys will contend that when Novak awoke the night of the fire he was overcome by gases, that his mind was temporarily deranged, and that he wandered away before it resumed its normal condition, and when he was too far gone to turn back; that the fracture in the head of Edward Murray was caused by his falling from the sleeping room to the basement below and striking a sharp object. Drs. Andrews and Carroll, of the Iowa State University, were on the stand as experts to show that these things could be possible.

VINTON, Nov. 20.—In the Novak murder trial it was expected that Frank Novak would go on the stand himself to testify on his own behalf, but he did not. The counsel held a consultation and decided not to place Novak on the stand, although it had been their intention so to do. They then announced that the defense would rest its case. The announcement came as a great surprise. After the state had introduced four witnesses in rebuttal County Attorney Tobin began the opening argument to the jury.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 22.—Charles Wood, formerly of Vinton, Iowa, says he met Edward Murray, whom, it is alleged, was murdered by Frank Novak, in this city a few nights since; that he knew Murray well while in Vinton and was acquainted with all of the particulars of the Wolford affair. Murray excused himself for a moment and disappeared. Wood after a few days informed the police.

BRIGHT IOWA WOMEN.

Writing a Composite Story for a Daily Newspaper.

DES MOINES, Nov. 16.—The Des Moines Daily News, which has made a great hit by reducing its price to $1 a year, has made arrangements with the twelve literary clubs of the city, whereby each club has chosen a representative to write one chapter of a composite story to appear in the Daily News after the holidays. The Women's club will write the first chapter and pass it on from club to club, the Review club writing the last chapter. The ladies of the state are much interested in the novel scheme.

SHE GOT THE POLICY.

Evidence Introduced in the Davenport Murder Trial.

DAVENPORT, Nov. 21.—In the trial of Mrs. Claus Behrens for the murder of her husband last July, evidence was introduced by the state to show that Behrens was deserted by his wife last December for one Henry Bendt, of Rock Island, Ill.; that in July last Mrs. Behrens returned to her husband upon his promise to transfer his insurance policy of $2,000 from his daughter to her; that he immediately did so, and died with paris green in his stomach in less than ten days.

Hoover Guilty of Arson.

WATERLOO, Nov. 22.—The jury in the case of the state vs. Sylvester Hoover, brought to Waterloo from Buchanan county, on change of venue, returned a verdict of guilty against the prisoner. Hoover is about 19 years old. The crime charged is arson. The costs in the case amount in all to $1,302.

IOWA CONDENSED.

At Ottumwa recently F. G. Randall, a retired druggist and one of the city's oldest and most prominent citizens, was run down and killed by an electric car almost in front of his residence. He was deaf and was standing on the crossing and when the car was within six feet of him he stepped in front of it and was ground to pieces. He was 75 years old.

In an interview published a few days ago in the Denison Review Governor-elect Shaw says that he will retain Major W. H. Fleming as private secretary and William Coalson as messenger in the executive office. He also states that it is his intention to consult with the state library trustees and to appoint a man as state librarian. Old employes will have preference, other things being equal.

ALL OVER THE WORLD

A $25,000,000 FIRE IN LONDON.

At Least 150 Warehouses Destroyed by Fire.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—One of the most disastrous fires in London's history since the great holacaust in 1666 broke out in a large block of buildings lying eastward of Aldersgate street and between that thoroughfare and Red Cross Street, just after 1 o'clock yesterday destroying property valued at $15,000,000. Late estimates place it at $25,000,000. There was considerable delay in sending in the alarm and the district which was filled with warehouses was soon the scene of great excitement. A hundred fire engines were called to the scene. The fire continued to rage all night, though its spread had been stayed. The district ravaged by the fire is bounded by Aldesgate street, Red Cross, Maiden Head Court and Bradford Avenue, and includes the intermediate streets, Jewin, Hansell, Well and Edwin, and Jewin Crescent, and includes part of Australian Avenue, Paul's alley, Cripple Gate church yard, Wood Street Square, Monkwell street, Nicholl Square and Fore street. It is officially reported that 150 warehouses have been gutted. Nearly all the British fire insurance companies are involved, and fire insurance shares were practically unsaleable on the stock exchange after the fire was well under way.

TAYLOR PREDICTS A CRISIS.

He Insists That Public Men Cannot Ignore Sentiment for Cuba.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Hannis Taylor, ex-United States minister to Spain, delivered an address before a large crowd at Cornell. Mr. Taylor said in part: "Events are moving fast and no man, not even the president, can stop them. No real statesman ever tried to avoid a crisis by turning his back upon it or by self-deception. If the president makes the fatal mistake of attempting longer to muzzle congress by putting his imprimatur upon false hopes and empty illusions, before the ink is dry upon his message events will discredit all his predictions. Let congress but speak the final and emphatic word—recognition—and in ninety days the long and bloody tragedy will be over, the whole Christian world will rejoice and say amen. Spain will be rescued from an impossible situation and there will be no war with the United States, and Cuba will be free."

BLANCO IS OUT OF MONEY.

The Captain-General Can't Even Buy Food for His Army.

HAVANA, Nov. 20.—The following is a copy of the official intendente militair to General Blanco: "Your Excellency: The chief officer in charge of provisions for this garrison notifies me that the amount of $1,200,000 is owed by the government to furnishers of provisions, consisting principally of flour and biscuits, and that there is no possibility of the furnishers continuing furnishing provisions unless three-tenths of the debt is paid, in order to enable them to purchase articles in the market and send a corresponding draft. The manufacturing of biscuits has been stopped for some cause, and as this is of the greatest importance, I apply to your respectable authority and ask you to induce Intendente De Hacienda, director of finances of the island, to please pay the bill already presented to him, avoiding by this above mentioned conflict."

Scott Cited for Contempt.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 19.—District Judge Cunningham R. Scott, of Omaha, was this evening cited by the supreme court to appear before the tribunal on December 7 and plead to the charge of contempt. The contempt charge is the alleged refusal of Judge Scott to enforce a mandate issued by the supreme court last January in an Omaha receivership case.

Georgia is Anti-Football.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 20.—Representative Cole's foot ball bill, providing for the prohibition of the playing of match or exhibition games where admission is charged, passed the senate. The bill has already passed the lower branch of the legislature, and now awaits the approval of the governor. There is no doubt but that he will sign it.

Got a Big Verdict.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—Fred R. Ketcham, conductor on the Northwestern railroad, who took part in the Debs A. R. U. strike, was awarded a verdict for $21,000 in his suit against that company for blacklisting him and preventing him from securing work on other roads. He sued for $25,000.

Philippinians Subjugated.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—A Madrid special says: All the important insurgent chiefs of the Philippine islands have surrendered. Captain General Rivera announces a complete pacification of that country.

DICTATORSHIP IN URUGUAY.

The President Making an Effort to Establish One.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Nov. 22.—It is rumored, and the rumor can be easily traced to high sources, that the president ad interim, Senor Cuestas, intends to establish a dictatorship. He has taken upon himself extraordinary powers to prevent a rebellion and Montevideo is practically under martial law. Under the president's orders troops have occupied all the strategic positions of the city and the excitement is intense. Cannon have been run into positions overlooking the Plaza de Armas to prevent the gathering of crowds there, and troops are now on guard all over the city. In the meantime President Cuestas has placed a strong guard around the block in which is situated the home of Julio Herrera, and Herrera is a prisoner. He was Cuestas's principal opponent in the race for the presidency, and it is believed he is at the head of the movement which has for its purpose the overthrowing of Cuestas by force, and it is to prevent such a movement that Cuestas has taken such radical steps. Cuestas was formerly president of the senate, and when President Borda was assassinated took the presidency ad interim.

ASKS $200,000 OF HAWAII.

Japan Demands Large Indemnity for Immigration Troubles.

VICTORIA, B. C., Nov. 19.—The steamship Empress of China has arrived from the orient. The Japanese government has demanded the sum of $200,000 in gold from Hawaii by way of indemnity in connection with the immigration affair. The sum includes the losses suffered by immigrants to whom admission was denied, as well as by the companies which sent them, and the expense of sending a man-of-war to Honolulu. The Japanese papers consider the demand moderate.

London Fire.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—Insurance agents say that their losses will be between $1,500,000 and $4,000,000. Much of the burned property was uninsured, being refused on account of location. The streets for a quarter of a mile in length, involving 160 great warehouses, were destroyed, 300 important firms and 100 minor ones were burned out and damaged, and the loss is estimated at close upon $25,000,000.

BREVITIES.

A Havana dispatch says Blanco has undertaken a bigger task than he can accomplish. His first decree urging protection for the cultivation of the fields leaves the country in the hands of the insurgents and furnishes them food. Weyler had them well starved. The insurgent army dropped from 100,000 to 40,000 men. Blanco is playing into the insurgents' hands by his policy of pacification, and his policy is known as the Spanish suicide. However, the Spanish army is worse off, having dwindled to 30,000 from 90,000, on account of fevers, etc.

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

"COMING LESSONS" LAST SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

From the Following Text: "Go Thou and Preach the Kingdom of God"—Luke; Chapter IX., Verse 60—The Regnant Gospel.

THE Gospel is to be regnant over all hearts, all circles, all governments, and all lands. The kingdom of God spoken of in the text is to be a universal kingdom, and just as wide as that will be the realm sermonic, "Go thou and preach the kingdom of God." We hear a great deal in these days about the coming man, and the coming woman, and the coming time. Some one ought to tell of the coming sermon. It is a simple fact that everybody knows that most of the sermons of today do not reach the world. The vast majority of the people of our great cities never enter church.

The sermon of today carries along with it the deadwood of all ages. Hundreds of years ago it was decided what a sermon ought to be, and it is the attempt of many theological seminaries and doctors of divinity to hew the modern pulpit utterances into the same old-style proportions. Booksellers will tell you they dispose of a hundred histories, a hundred novels, a hundred poems, to one book of sermons. What is the matter? Some say the age is the worst of all ages. It is better. Some say religion is wearing out, when it is wearing in. Some say there are so many who despise the Christian religion. I answer, there never was an age when there were so many Christians, or so many friends of Christianity as this age has—our age; as to others a hundred to one. What is the matter, then? It is simply because our sermon of today is not suited to the age. It is the canal boat in an age of locomotive and electric telegraph. The sermon will have to be shaken out of the old grooves or it will not be heard and it will not be read.

Before the world is converted, the sermon will have to be converted. You might as well go into a modern Sedan or Gettysburg with bows and arrows instead of rifles and bombshells and parks of artillery as to expect to conquer this world for God by the old styles of sermonology. Jonathan Edwards preached the sermons best adapted to the age in which he lived, but if those sermons were preached now they would divide an audience into two classes; those sound asleep and those wanting to go home.

But there is a coming sermon—who will preach it I have no idea; in what part of the earth it will be born I have no idea; in which denomination of Christians it will be delivered, I can not guess. That coming sermon may be born in the country meeting house or on the banks of the St. Lawrence, or the Oregon, or the Ohio, or the Tombigbee, or the Alabama. The person who may deliver it may this moment lie in a cradle under the shadow of the Sierra Nevadas, or in a New England farmhouse, or amid the rice fields of Southern savannas. Or this moment there may be some young man in some of our theological seminaries, in the junior, or middle, or senior class, shaping that weapon of power. Or there may be coming some new baptisms of the Holy Ghost on the churches, so that some of us who now stand in the watch towers of Zion, waking to the realization of our present inefficiency, may preach it ourselves. That coming sermon may not be twenty years off. And let us pray God that its arrival may be hastened, while I announce to you what I think will be the chief characteristics of that sermon when it does arrive; and I want to make the remarks appropriate and suggestive to all classes of Christian workers.

First of all, I remark that the coming sermon will be full of a living Christ, in contradistinction to didactic technicalities. A sermon may be full of Christ, though hardly mentioning his name, and a sermon may be empty of Christ while every sentence is repetitious of his titles. The world wants a living Christ, not a Christ standing at the head of a formal system of theology, but a Christ who means pardon and sympathy and condolence and brotherhood and life and heaven. A poor man's Christ. An over-worked man's Christ. An invalid's Christ. A farmer's Christ. A merchant's Christ. An artisan's Christ. An every man's Christ.

A symmetrical and finely worded system of theology is well enough for theological classes, but it has no more business in a pulpit than have the technical phrases of an anatomist, or a physician, in the sick room of a patient. The world wants help, immediate and world uplifting, and it will come through a sermon in which Christ shall walk right down into the immortal soul and take everlasting possession of it, filling it as full of light as is the noonday firmament. That sermon of the future will not deal with men in the threadbare illustrations of Jesus Christ. In that coming sermon there will be instances of vicarious sacrifice taken right out of every-day life, for there is not a day somebody is not dying for others. As the physician, saving his diphtheric patient by sacrificing his own life; as the ship-captain going down with his vessel, while he is getting his passengers into the lifeboat; as the fireman, consuming in the burning building, while he is taking a child out of a fourth-story window; as last summer the strong swimmer at Long Branch, or Cape May, or Lake George, himself perished trying to rescue the drowning; as the newspaper boy not long ago, supporting his mother for some years, his invalid mother, when offered by a gentleman fifty cents to get some especial paper, and he got it and rushed up in his anxiety to deliver it, and was crushed under the wheels of the train, and lay on the grass with only strength enough to say, "Oh, what will become of my poor, sick mother now?"

Vicarious suffering? The world is full of it. An engineer said to me on a locomotive in Dakota: "We men seem to be coming to better appreciation than we used to. Did you see that account the other day of an engineer, who to save his passengers, stuck to his place, and when he was found dead in the locomotive, which was found upside down, he was found still smiling, the hand on the air brake?" And as the engineer said it to me, he put his hand on the air brake to illustrate his meaning, and I looked at him and thought, "You would be just as much of a hero in the same crisis."

Paul preached until midnight, and Eutychus got sound asleep, and fell out of a window and broke his neck. Some would say, "Good for him." I would rather be sympathetic like Paul, and resuscitate him. That accident is often quoted now in religious circles as a warning against somnolence in church. It is just as much a warning to ministers against prolixity. Eutychus was wrong in his somnolence, but Paul made a mistake when he kept on until midnight. He ought to have stopped at 11 o'clock and there would have been no accident. If Paul might have gone on until too great length, let all those of us who are now preaching the gospel remember that there is a limit to religious discourse, or ought to be, and that in our time we have no apostolic power or miracles. Napoleon, in an address of seven minutes, thrilled his army and thrilled Europe. Christ's sermon on the mount—the model sermon—was less than eighteen minutes long at ordinary mode of delivery. It is not electricity scattered all over the sky that strikes, but electricity gathered into a thunderbolt and hurled; and it is not religious truths scattered over, spread out over a vast reach of time, but religious truth projected in compact form that flashes light upon the soul and rives its indifference.

When the coming sermon arrives in this land and in the Christian church—the sermon which is to arouse the world and startle the nations and usher in the kingdom—it will be a brief sermon. Hear it, all theological students, all ye just entering upon religious work, all ye men and women who in Sabbath schools and other departments are toiling for Christ and the salvation of immortals. Brevity! Brevity!

But I remark also that the coming sermon of which I speak will be a popular sermon. There are those in these times who speak of a popular sermon as though there must be something wrong about it. As these critics are dull themselves, the world gets the impression that a sermon is good in proportion as it is stupid. Christ was the most popular preacher the world ever saw, and, considering the small number of the world's population, had the largest audiences ever gathered. He never preached anywhere without making a great sensation. People rushed out in the wilderness to hear him, reckless of their physical necessities. So great was their anxiety to hear Christ, that, taking no food with them, they would have fainted and starved had not Christ performed a miracle and fed them. Why did so many people take the truth at Christ's hands? Because they all understood it. He illustrated his subject by a hen and her chickens, by a bushel measure, by a handful of salt, by a bird's flight and by a lily's aroma. All the people knew what he meant, and they flocked to him. And when the coming sermon of the Christian church appears, it will not be Princetonian, not Rochesterian, not Andoverian, not Middletonian, but Olivetic—plain, practical, unique, earnest, comprehensive of all the woes, wants, sins, sorrows and necessities of an auditory.

We hear a great deal of discussion now all over the land about why people do not go to church. Some say it is because Christianity is dying out, and because people do not believe in the truth of God's word, and all that. They are false reasons. The reason is because our sermons are not interesting and practical, and sympathetic and helpful. Some one might as well tell the whole truth on this subject, and so I will tell it. The sermon of the future—the Gospel sermon to come forth and shake the nations, and lift people out of darkness—will be a popular sermon just for the simple reason that it will meet the woes and the wants and the anxieties of the people. There are in all our denominations ecclesiastical mummies, sitting around to frown upon the fresh young pulpits of America, to try to awe them down, to cry out, "Tut, tut, tut! sensational!" They stand today, preaching in churches that hold a thousand people and there are a hundred persons present, and if they cannot have the world saved in their way it seems as if they do not want it saved at all. I do not know but the old way of making ministers of the Gospel is better. A collegiate education and an apprenticeship under the care and home attention of some earnest, aged Christian minister, the young man getting the patriarch's spirit and assisting him in his religious service. Young lawyers study with old lawyers, young physicians study with old physicians, and I believe it would be a great help if every young man studying for the Gospel ministry could put himself in the home and heart and sympathy and under the benediction and perpetual presence of a Christian minister.

That sermon of the future will be an every-day sermon, going right down into every man's life, and it will teach him to vote, how to bargain, how to plough, how to do any work he is called to, how to wield trowel and pen and pencil and yardstick and plane. And it will teach women how to preside over their households, and how to educate their children, and how to imitate Miriam and Esther and Vashti, and Eunice, the mother of Timothy; and Mary, the mother of Christ; and those women who on Northern and Southern battlefields were mistaken by the wounded for angels of mercy fresh from the throne of God.

Do you exhort in prayer-meeting? Be short and be spirited. Do you teach in Bible class? Though you have to study every night, be interesting. Do you accost people on the subject of religion in their homes or in public places? Study adroitness and use common sense. The most graceful, the most beautiful thing on earth in the religion of Jesus Christ, and if you awkwardly present it, it is defamation. We must do our work rapidly and we must do it effectively. Soon our time for work will be gone. A dying Christian took out his watch and gave it to a friend and said: "Take that watch, I have no more use for it; time is ended for me; eternity begins." O my friends, when our watch has ticked away for us for the last moment, and our clock has struck for us the last hour, may it be found we did our work well, that we did it in the very best way; and whether we preached the Gospel in pulpits, or taught Sabbath classes, or administered to the sick as physicians, or bargained as merchants, or pleaded the law as attorneys, or were busy as artisans, or as husbandmen, or as mechanics, or were like Martha called to give a meal to a hungry Christ, or like Hannah to make a coat for a prophet, or like Deborah to rouse the courage of some timid Barak in the Lord's conflict, we did our work in such a way that it will stand the test of the judgment. And in the long procession of the redeemed that march round the throne, may it be found there are many there brought to God through our instrumentality and in whose rescue we are exultant. But, O you unsaved! wait not for that coming sermon. It may come after your obsequies. It may come after the stonecutter has chiseled our name on the slab fifty years before. Do not wait for a great steamer of the Cunard or White Star line to take you off the wreck, but hail the first craft with however low a mast, and however small a bulk, and however poor a rudder, and however weak a captain. Better a disabled schooner that comes up in time than a full-rigged brig that comes up after you have sunken. Instead of waiting for that coming sermon—it may be twenty, fifty years off—take this plain invitation of a man who, to have given you spiritual eyesight, would be glad to be called the spittle by the hand of Christ put on the eyes of a blind man, and who would consider the highest compliment of this service, if at the close five hundred men should start from these doors saying, "Whether he be a sinner or no, I know not. This one thing I know, whereas I was blind, now I see." Swifter than shadows over the plain, quicker than birds in their autumnal flight, hastier than eagles to their prey, hie you to a sympathetic Christ. The orchestras of heaven have already strung their instruments to celebrate your rescue.

And many were the voices around the throne;
Rejoice, for the Lord brings back his own.

FOREIGNERS IN CHINA.

Ten Thousand, of Whom 13 Per Cent Are Americans.

There are over 10,000 Europeans and Americans resident in China, says the New York Herald. The English head the list with 4,000; the Americans number 1,325: Germans, 882; Norwegians, 375; Russians, 116; Italians, 108, etc There are 669 Japanese. Twenty-two ports are open to foreign residents—that is to say, Europeans are allowed to acquire conditional title to certain lands, on which they live, govern thmselves and have special privileges in judicial matters. These ports are Mengtz, Lung Chow, Pakhoi, King Chow, Lappa, Canton, Kowloon, Swatow, Amoy, Fuchau, Winshow, Ningpo, Shanghai, Chinkiag, Wuhu, Kiukiank, Hankow, Ichang, Chunging, Cheefoo, Tientsin and Niouchwang. It is to be noted that Pekin does not appear on this list, although the embassies and legations are established there. The Chinese who find themselves under foreign jurisdiction appear more than contented with the situation, because, although taxes are high, they are fixed. Two hundred thousand natives live in the European settlements of Shanghai. Besides the foreign residents of China, a large number live in ports that have been ceded to other nations. For instance, Hongkong comprises in its civil population 4,195 Europeans and Americans. With the troops and sailors, this number is raised to 8,545. Hongkong is the actual capital of foregin industry in the far east. More than 3,000 vessels, with a tonnage of nearly 4,000,000, touch there annually. The same spirit which caused the development of Singapore, Colombo and Hongkong is to be found in the foreign settlements of the open ports of China.

CO-OPERATIVE HOUSEKEEPING

Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, advocating co-operative housekeeping in the Boston "Cooking School Magazine," says: "The general care of the house means more than it once did. It involves a scrupulous cleanliness, which will prohibit the engendering of 'dirt diseases,' like diphtheria, scarlet fever, smallpox, and similar pestilences. It calls for some knowledge of the laws of ventilation, drainage and sewerage, that the housekeeper may know when there is anything amiss, and so preserve the hygiene of the home as perfect as possible. If it is conceded that there must always remain domestic employments, is there any reason why the cooking and laundering should continue to be performed in the home at great waste and disadvantage by the mother of the family, and such assistance as she may be able to procure? Why not take cooking and laundering out of the family by co-operative housekeeping?

"How must co-operative housekeeping begin? The very first step in co-operative housekeeping is co-operation in buying. If twenty-five families would unite in the purchase of articles by the wholesale which are indispensable to all, and which each buys at retail, such as fuel, flour, tea, coffee, sugar, etc., they would save from twelve to fifteen dollars in every hundred of their expenditures. Experience has demonstrated this to be the gain of the combination in buying. If, now, these twenty-five families would go one step farther and combine their separate bills of fare into one, and then have this one cooked over one fire, they would save two-thirds of the fuel consumed in the separate cooking of the twenty-five families.

"Who can estimate," Mrs. Livermore sums up, "the great gain that will enrich housekeepers who are mothers of families when cooking and laundering are eliminated from household industries, and are performed outside the home by economical co-operation? As a rule, they are greatly overtaxed, and suffer from the daily consciousness that the physical strength and moral vigor they should give to the training of their children go, instead, into the daily cooking and the weekly laundering. With more time, more bodily power, keener moral insight, and increased power of organization, how easily they could combine for the study of enlightened motherhood. * * * What might not be hoped of children born of happier, healthier and less anxious mothers, who would approach maternity happily and intelligently, and with strength and courage adequate to its perils and exhausting duties?"

Education in Southern States.

New Orleans Times-Democrat: The example of Mississippi in providing a first-class common school education for every child in the state is one that can be profitably copied in Louisiana. The Mississippians, having resolved at every hazard to eliminate from the polls the dangers of an ignorant suffrage, coupled with the election provisions in their new constitution such a sufficient provision for education as has commanded the admiration of the whole country.

Mr Chambers must feel under great obligation to the patriotic republicans of Hancock county for their loyal (?) support for representative. He now doubtless realizes he was a mere cats paw for a small ring of rule or ruin politicians in his county, Mr. Shaw the republican dandidate for governor recieved 1394 votes in Hancock county while Mr. Chambers the Hancock county candidate for representative recieved 403, revealing the fact that 991 republians in Hancock county did not vote for Mr. Chambers. Mr. White democratic candidate for governor, received 1062 votes while Mr. Christie the democratic candidate for representative received 1189 votes showing that 127 republicans in that county voted for Mr. Christie; guiless souls, voting for a principle, you know. Mr. Christle on the face of the returns has a plurality of 93, in the 75th representative district, thus clearly owing his election to republican vates in Hancock County who profressed to beleive the election of a republican from Hancock county was so important they would not go into a convention in Wright county only upon a basis that would enable them to name the nominee or prevent one being named. Just what the ring has gained by the result is difficult for a good republican to concleve.—Eagle Grove Eagle.

WHY THEY LAUGHED.

BESSIE opened her eyes first on Thanksgiving morn and pulled her sister Sophy's sleeve to waken her.

"Sophy," she whispered, "is it so very wrong not to feel thankful on a Thanksgiving Day?"

"I suppose so," said Sophy.

"Well, I can't be," said Bessie, 'cause papa and mamma are away, and they've been away so long, and I don't know when they'll come back. And the ocean is so wide, and sometimes there are storms, and if they should get drowned I could never be thankful again."

"I couldn't either," said Sophy.

"Come, come, don't you mean to get up at all this morning?" asked a cheery voice. Aunt Rosy had come into the room and was looking over the headboard. "Don't you know it is Thanksgiving Day?"

"Yes," said Bessie, "but we're not thankful, 'cause papa and mamma are away."

"My! my! But you'll be glad when they come back," said Aunt Rosy. "But get up now and have your bath and your breakfast, and then I'll tell you something nice—a surprise."

"I wonder what Aunt is going to do?" Sophy whispered.

"Let us make taffy, maybe," said Bessie. "That is fun, or maybe she has new dresses for our dolls."

"I don't care for taffy, or dolls or anything," said Sophy. "I'm homesick. Well, of course I am at home, but it isn't home without mamma and papa."

They went down stairs with long faces, and neither of the children had much appetite for their nice milk-toast and baked apples.

"Well, now, how solemn you look!" said Aunt Rosy. "Thanksgiving Day, when you ought to be thinking of all your blessings; and you don't even ask me what the surprise is. We're going to grandma's to spend the day; there, now."

"But papa and mamma won't be there," said Bessie.

"And we can't be happy even there," said Sophy, sobbing.

Really, it was dreadful for Aunt Rosy to laugh at them just then, but she did.

"I don't believe she loves us one bit," said Sophy, in a whisper.

"I don't, either; she's dreadful," said Bessie.

And all through the journey to grandpa's house not a smile did they give. And when the train reached grandpa's place, and Uncle Jeff came in the wagon to meet them, and said,

"WELL, NOW, DARLINGS."

"Hullo, chickens! How are you?" they both answered together:

"We know it's wicked, but we can't help it. Though it is Thanksgiving Day we can't be thankful, for we don't know that we'll ever see papa and mamma again."

Then Aunt Rosy looked at Uncle Jeff, and both laughed ha! ha! ha! and ho! ho! ho!

"What cruel creatures!" said Bessie to Sophy. "I don't love them a bit. But grandpa and grandma won't laugh at us."

"Oh," said Uncle Jeff, "I bet you'll be jolly and thankful this evening."

"Indeed, we shan't," said Bessie. "We won't have papa and mamma."

And then those grownups laughed again in that cruel way.

"Nasty things," whispered Bessie.

"I think so, too," whispered Sophy.

But here they were at last at grandpa's house, and out came grandpa and grandma and Aunt Jennie and Aunt Eliza and Uncle William, Aunt Eliza's husband, and their boy.

"Well, now, darlings," cried grandma, holding out her arms, "how do you do?"

"They are not a bit thankful, ma," said Aunt Rosy. "They won't even smile."

"Because papa and mamma are away," said Uncle Jeff. "I told them all about the turkey and pie, and the candy and magic-lantern in the evening, but they don't chirk up a bit."

"No, indeed," said Bessie, "we don't mean to. It's so dreadful for papa and mamma to be away Thanksgiving Day."

"So it is, darling," said grandma.

But she did not look a bit solemn, and grandpa winked at Uncle William, and Aunt Jennie pinched Aunt Eliza, and black Lucinda, the cook, who had come out to say "Howdy," showed all her white teeth, and laughed "ki, yi, yi," and Uncle Jeff roared "ha, ha, ha," and all the aunts laughed "tee, tee, hee," and grandpa gave a great "ho, ho, ho," and the poor children felt as if their hearts would break to be laughed at like that.

"None of them love us," they whispered to each other. "And we won't love any of them."

Oh, what a dreadful thing to feel and say on Thanksgiving Day! And then, all of a sudden, some one back in the hall began to laugh also.

"Company laughing at us, too," sobbed Bessie. "We want to go home."

Then the unseen person cried out: "Don't tease them any more!" and some one came running and took them both in her arms. Some one, indeed! It was their own mamma, and behind her came their papa; and it was so wonderful they could not believe it.

"My darlings, no one was laughing at you," said mamma. "Every one knew we were here but you. I asked them not to tell you in order to give you a happy surprise; and when you said you did not know when you would see us, how could they help laughing when they knew you would eat dinner with us at grandpa's house?"

"Then they did love us all the time?" said Bessie.

"That was the reason they laughed," said Sophy, "because it was going to be our very thankfulest Thanksgiving after all!"

And then every one laughed again, and Bessie and Sophy laughed with them this time.

THANKSGIVING AS AN ART.

An Accomplishment in Which Our Mothers Excelled the Girls of Today.

In an article entitled "An Old-Time Accomplishment," in the Woman's Home Companion, Edward L. Pell says: "The girl who has cultivated the spirit of thankfulness does not gush over at the gift of a daisy, and snap an indifferent 'Thanks!' at the man who has lost a day from the office to gratify her little whim. Of course, those mothers of ours had their whims, and exercised the priceless privileges of thoughtlessness and snapping now and then, as girls, and other than girls, have always done; but I think it cannot be denied that the girl of a generation ago had a conscience on the subject of debts of gratitude such as few have had since her day.

"I have said that I am afraid that with many of us today it is a lost art. I am sure that it is not given that prominence which it once had, and that it is not cultivated with the enthusiasm with which it once was. Girls are taught what etiquette says about it, but etiquette deals only from the lips outward, and the result is that even our language tells the story of the decadence of thanksgiving. A traveler from Mars might hear our 'Thanks!' a million times and never suspect that it was meant as an acknowledgment of a favor. I am sure that up to, say a dozen years ago, in those parts of our country where gallantry has held out longest, one could not give up a seat in a car without being sure of a full return in an acknowledgment that meant to acknowledge something; and that today the average man is utterly upset and undone when his ears catch the old sweet sound. Of course, this does not justify nor account for the current lack of gallantry among men, but I am not engaged in the hopeless task of restoring men to the old paths, but in the hopeful one of pointing out a neglected talent which the most charming of girls may cultivate with good results. I am not grumbling. I do not mean to say that the girl of the period is one whit behind the girl of the past. I do not believe in the decadence of women. I believe that the girl of today is equal to the girl her mother used to be; but I do not believe that it is enough to say of our girls that they are equal to the girls of the past, any more than it is enough to say of a flower that has had the best attention of the best florists for a generation, that it is as beautiful today as it was thirty years ago. * * * If we have done wisely, the girl of today ought to have not only something which her mother lacked, but she ought to have all her mother's graces as well. But it is a serious question whether, in pressing her development, we have not cultivated some qualities at the expense of others, just as in pressing the development of a certain flower we have increased its size and beauty at the expense of its fragrance."

A Nice Prospect.

Gobbler—"Oh, you feel very tickled over Thanksgiving coming, don't you?"

Boy—"Yes, and when it gets here you'll feel very much cut up over it."

Railroad Economy.

The Baltimore and Ohio South Western Railway has been experimenting with electric motors on turn-tables. Turning locomotives at divisional points and terminals is a service of much annoyance and no little expense to railroad companies. It generally takes four men to turn a locomotive, and while they are doing so their regular work is abandoned.

Experiments were made with an electric motor on the 60-foot turn-table at Chillicothe with such success that the Park Street turn-table in Cincinnati was similarly equipped. The result has been rather astonishing in the matter of expense. The current was purchased from the power plant, and it cost on an average of less than one-half a cent for each time the table was turned. When this same table was operated by hand it cost 12 cents for each engine. The yearly saving is about $709.

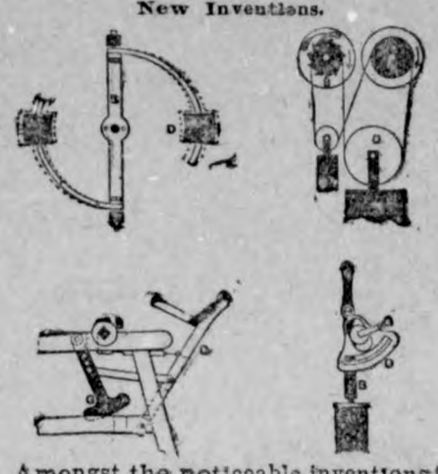
A Big Regular Army.

The mightiest host of this sort is the army of invalids whose bowels, livers and stomachs have been regulated by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. A regular habit of body is brought about through using the Bitters, not violently agitating and griping the intestines, but by reinforcing their energy and causing a flow of bile into its proper channels. Malaria, la grippe, dyspepsia, and a tendency to inactivity of the kidneys are conquered by the Bitters.

Nearly a half a million English people get married each year, and the average annual number of applications for divorce is only 575.

New Inventions.



Amongst the noticeable inventions issued last week to inventors of the United States, is one for a pnuematic bicycle tire, in which the tire is cast in sections, which can be removed when one of them is injured, an automatic fire alarm; an abdominal douche-bath; a ballot box; a metallic fabric for fences; a snow locomotive, adapted to glide on sled runners, and a simple motion converter for windmills. Four copyrighted cuts of mechanical movements are further shown relating to a balance for clocks and watches, a balancing counterpoise, a simple feed mechanism for rotary saws, and a converting motion. SOVEREIGN'S AMBITION.

Wants the Democratic Presidential Nomination in 1900.

The Louisville Courier-Journal in a recent issue says: J. R. Sovereign, retiring general master workman of the Knights of Labor, resigned his position in order that he might push his candidacy for president of the United States in 1900. Being free now from all the responsiblities of general master workman, and having none of the former difficulties to contend with. Sovereign has a clear field before him, and the delegates to the general assembly acknowledged last night that Sovereign is the avowed candidate for the presidency of the United States when McKinley's term expires. The convention making him "field worker" is the initial step of the Knights of Labor to launch Sovereign's boom. While it is said that Sovereign and Hon. W. J. Bryan are the warmest friends, the supporters of Sovereign say he will make every effort for the prize which Bryan seeks to secure. He spends all his spare time disseminating his views and in general agitation of all the principles which the Knights of Labor advance.

PLOT OF GREAT MAGNITUDE.

Police Make New Discoveries in the Attempt to Kill Morales.

RIO JANEIRO, Nov. 19.—The police, through a confession made to them, have learned that the plot to kill President Morales is of far greater magnitude than at first thought. As a result of this confession many new arrests were made. The relations between Italy and Brazil are daily becoming more complicated. The legation insists upon the degradation of Spiritu Santo, who is accused of connivance in the recent Italian outrages. The government has so far evaded a reply to this demand.

IOWA WILL BE ACCEPTED.

Final Trial of the Big Battleship Proves Satisfactory.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—The United States battleship Iowa arrived at the Brooklyn navy yard after concluding her final trial trip. The report of the inspection board will be sent by telegraph to Washington and it is said that the performance of the Iowa during the trip was in every way satisfactory and that the board will recommend that the government finally accept the war vessel. Under natural draught the Iowa attained about 85 per cent of her maximum speed, which was about thirteen and one-half knots.

New Bullet Proof Armor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 20.—About a hundred military men witnessed the first exhibition in New York of Foote's bullet proof armor, which the inventor hopes will work a revolution in the methods of modern warfare. The trial was a success. Mr. Foote expects shortly to exhibit the material at Washington, where he will request the naval authorities to prove its nonmagnetic as well as its bullet resisting powers.

CAPTURE CHINESE FORT.

German Gunboats Land Troops at Kiao-Chao.

LONDON, Nov. 19.—A dispatch from Shanghai says four German ships landed 600 troops at the port of Kiao-Chao, which was held by 1,500 Chinese, who, under threat of bombardment, surrendered without firing a shot. Thereupon the Germans hoisted the German flag and the guns of the battleships fired a salute. The action is believed to be the result of the recent killing of two German missionaries.

LONDON, Nov. 20.—According to a special dispatch from Shanghai, Admiral Von Diedrich, commander of the German cruiser Division, before landing marines at Kiao-Chao, notified the British, French and Russian admirals of his intention, and it is said that the Russian admiral expressed approval. The Chinese do not appear to be much distressed over the matter, declaring that Russia, Germany and France are preparing to attack Japan and will use Kiao-Chao bay as a naval base.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—China has sent diplomatic protests to Great Britain, Russia and France against the occupation by Germany of Kiao-Chao bay and island. The affair is proving the greatest sensation in diplomatic circles since the famous declaration of the alliance between Russia and France. Already the British foreign office has taken up the matter, and Count Muravieff, at St. Petersburg, is said to have made a remarkable display of temper when the information reached him of the full scope of the German invasion. Latest dispatches indicate that territory and trade, not a desire to avenge murdered missionaries, are the chief motives of the German government.

DIVIDE NEW YORK.

Boss Croker Will Have a Bill Introduced This Winter.

New York dispatch: According to a local paper it is Richard Croker's ambition to extend Tammany's domain beyond the confines of greater New York. The proposal to create a new state by divorcing 16 counties of the state of New York and incorporating them as the state of Manhatten is defined in a bill which is to be introduced at the coming session of the legislature by Assemblyman Patrick Trainor, of the Thirtieth district. Mr. Trainor, who is a member of Tammany hall, presented a similar bill in the assembly last year, but it did not get beyond a committee. The plan is to create a new democratic state and add two sure democratic United States senators, to secure control of the legislature of what would be the greatest and richest state in the union, to divide the electoral vote of the pivotal state, to send to the lower house of congress, a solid delegation from the state of Manhattan, and to get absolute legislative control over the second greatest city on earth.

TAMMANY RAISES $40,000.

$20,000 for Cuba and $20,000 for New York Poor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—The executive committee of Tammany Hall met and arranged for the annual organization next month. After the transaction of this business, Richard Croker made a speech in which he asked the committee to subscribe $20,000 for the starving people of Cuba, and a like sum for the poor of New York city. The suggestion was promptly acted upon. The Cuban check was handed to Senor Tomas Estrada Palma and other members of the junta who had called to seek the aid of Tammany in behalf of their starving countrymen.

RUSSIA SENDS A NOTE.

Asks Turkey to Pay Arrears in War Indemnity.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 22.—The officials of the Russian embassy sent a second note to the Turkish minister, pointing out in other times of difficulty Russia has abstained from urging payment of war debts due her from Turkey, but now that Turkey has decided upon fresh armaments not warranted by the present situation, Russia demands the portion in arrears. The porte informed the Russian charge d'affairs that nothing has been decided upon concerning the armaments.

Employes Must Pay Debts.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20.—The secretary of the treasury has issued a circular to employes to the effect that clerks receiving a stated salary who neglect to pay their debts contracted for the necessary support of themselves and their families without presenting satisfactory reasons therefor, will not be retained in office.

Competitor Men Free.

HAVANA, Nov. 19.—The Competitor prisoners have at last been released from Cabanas fortress by order of Captain General Blanco, acting in accordance with orders from Spain. The men all sailed yesterday direct for New York on the steamship Yumuri, which is due there November 21.

ABOUT THE KLONDIKE KING.

Joseph Ladue at His Office, His Appearance, and a Short Interview with Him.

When Joseph Ladue, the Klondike king and founder of Dawson City, returned to his Chicago office in the Chamber of Commerce building last week from the East, he found an immense accumulation of mail awaiting him. From all parts of the country came thousands of inquiries of every sort and nature. The crank who is going to walk to Alaska would like to know if the walking is good; the man with the all-but-finished airship wants but a few millions to complete it; a well-meaning spinster would like several thousand dollars, that she may protect the Chicago youth from the evil influences of cigarettes, and so on without end, while the man who wants to be taken to Alaska is so numerous that he requires the services of two extra mail carriers. Unlike most millionaires and busy men of affairs, "Joe" Ladue, with the hearty good fellowship which characterizes the Western pioneer, insists that each letter so received shall have a reply, and in most instances the worthy "begging" ones get fat enclosures, too.

"I'm a very busy man these days," he said to the newspaper man. "Since coming back from the Klondike I have been compelled to cross the continent four times on business in connection with my company, and now I have to go again. I shall, however, be most of the winter in Chicago, as I propose to take with me on my return to Dawson City everything needed in the way of modern mining machinery, so that commencing next spring, notwithstanding the inexhaustible resources of our mines, not an iota of gold will be lost through lack of proper facilities for mining it. I shall return to Dawson about March 15."

"No," he continued," the wealth of the Klondike has in no way been exaggerated."

In personal appearance the Klondike king is a rugged, well-proportioned man of medium height, with hair and mustache of almost raven black. He has a mild, conservative method of speech, but when interested, his honest, gray eyes snap of the fire and determination which marks the successful pioneer. He is temperate in his statements and every word he utters concerning the new Eldorado he has given to the world carries with it a conviction of truth.

THE TURN OF LIFE

Is the most important period in a woman's existence. Owing to modern methods of living, not one woman in a thousand approaches this perfectly natural change without experiencing a train of very annoying and sometimes painful symptoms.

Those dreadful hot flashes, sending the blood surging to the heart until it seems ready to burst, and the faint feeling that follows, sometimes with chills, as if the heart were going to stop for good, are symptoms of a dangerous nervous trouble. Those hot flashes are just so many calls from nature for help. The nerves are crying out for assistance. The cry should be heeded in time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was prepared to meet the needs of woman's system at this trying period of her life.

The Vegetable Compound is an invigorating strengthener of the female organism. It builds up the weakened nervous system and enables a woman to pass that grand change triumphantly.

It does not seem necessary for us to prove the honesty of our statements, but it is a pleasure to publish such grateful words as the following:

"I have been using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time during the change of life and it has been a saviour of life unto me. I can cheerfully recommend your medicine to all women, and I know it will give permanent relief. I would be glad to relate my experience to any sufferer."—MRS. DELLA WATSON, 524 West 5th St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Their Marvelous CURE BY 5 DROPS [TRADE MARK.]
RHEUMATISM, NEURALGIA, CATARRH, ASTHMA, LA GRIPPE

"5 DROPS" is the most concentrated and powerful specific known. Free from opiates and perfectly harmless. Relief is usually felt the very first night. We have letters of grateful praise from thousands who have been cured by "5 DROPS," and who recommend sufferers from Rheumatism and kindred diseases to use it.

Gentlemen: I write to let you know that your medicine has in my case proven all you claim for it, and more, for it did for me what no other medicine had done before. I could not move without help, and the doctors made fun of me for sending to you for medicine. They said I was past medicine help, but I have been for three months enjoying as good health as ever I did in my life. Enclosed herewith find one dollar for which please send me another bottle of "5 DROPS," for I know of lots of people that suffer with Rheumatism, and I wish to try this on the worst of them, and perhaps they will believe me. FRANK COPELAND, Necedah, Wis., Oct. 12, 1897.

For Forty-Two Years.

Gentlemen: I feel it my duty to let you know what "5 DROPS" has done for me. I have had Asthma for forty-two years and Hay Fever for fifteen years. I do not know how long I suffered with Catarrh, but I think about twenty years. Towards the last of July I began taking "5 DROPS." When I had used it about a week the Asthma began to leave me and in two weeks it was gone. I am sure "5 DROPS" through the help of God did cure me, for I took no other medicine in that time. I have not had the Hay Fever since I commenced taking the "5 DROPS," and I am in good hopes that with the help of the Inhaler and Special Preparation, it will also cure my Catarrh. SUSAN E. PERSINGER, Stanberry, Mo., Oct. 26, 1897.

As a positive cure for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Backache, Asthma, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, Swelling, La Grippe, Malaria, Creeping, Numbness, etc., etc., "FIVE DROPS" has never been equalled.

"5 DROPS" taken but once a day is a dose of this great remedy and to enable all sufferers to make a trial of its wonderful curative properties, we will send out during the next thirty days, 100,000 sample bottles, 25c each, prepaid by mail. Even a sample bottle will convince you of its merit. Best and cheapest medicine on earth. Large bottles (300 doses) $1.00, for 30 days 3 bottles for $2.50. Not sold by druggists, only by us and our agents. Agents wanted in new territory. Write us to-day.

Why not send out a tracer and try to locate Coxey?

It now begins to look as though the late Mr. Ketcham of Chicago died in self-defense.

It isn't at all remarkable that Greece should hand Thessaly over to Turkey. Greece has been going to cede for many years.

Labouchere does not admire Rudyard Kipling's poetry, declaring that "it hardly rises above the music-hall level." Rudyard Kipling's opinion of Labby's editorials would make mighty interesting reading.

Tribute to a Departed Georgian.—Jack Powell pays this tribute to a deceased friend: "A Terrell county man died last week, and has gone to join six wives 'on that beautiful shore.' This scribe knew him well in life; also two or three of his wives. He declared he would not live without a wife and a pocketknife. After burying six good women he could not find another 'taker,' and in the neighborhood of three score and ten he died, of a broken heart, no doubt."

It is a typical Massachusetts town of which one of the veteran officials states a suggestive fact—that the aggregate values of the pianos, organs, sewing-machines, carpets and similar articles of luxury now owned therein exceed the whole valuation of the town as it was forty years ago. In 1857 only a fraction of the so-called rich possessed such luxuries, which in 1897 are found in every household—so many concrete proofs that, for all the loose talk of the discontented, the American standard of life and comfort tends constantly to rise.

A company of workingmen in England lately listened to a speaker who called himself a fellow-workman. In his time, he said, he had experienced many privations. He had known what it was to be cold because he could not afford a fire. He had worn patched clothes and shoes. He had lived upon poor fare. When he was young he learned to plow as straight a furrow as any man in the parish, and no one could thrash better than he. The speaker was a man who in the table of precedency comes next after the princes of the royal blood—the Archbishop of Canterbury.

One of the most interesting features of the great strike of engineers in England has been pointed out by Professor Bryce, the distinguished author of "The American Commonwealth." Professor Bryce has been looking into the matter, and says he finds that several branches of British engineering have come to the United States as a result of the paralysis of industry caused by the strike. This, of course, is a good thing for us and an exceedingly bad thing for Great Britian. When losses of all kinds come to be reckoned up it wil be found that the engineers' strike has been one of the most disastrous in history.

Child labor in factories is generally defended—when it is defended—on the ground that it helps to support families. To this claim a writer in the Charities Review interposes the sound objection that the wages of young children are seldom large enough to make the difference between pauperism and independence. When a family relies on these wages, it is pretty sure to depend also on help from public or private agencies. Therefore, since child labor too often undermines both health and morals, why not increase the charity fund, and put the child to school? Viewing the problem merely as a matter of arithmetic, it would be cheaper to support a good many unfortunate people than it will be, later on, to defend society against their ignorant or vicious children.

In these days of the "higher criticism" it is rarely that a clergyman is found who sticks to the Bible in its literal sense without undertaking to put his own interpretation upon it. Rev. Mr. Torrey, however, declares his belief in the old-fashioned orthodox hell, and the liberal preachers will have some difficulty in attacking his position. It has become fashionable to insist that any particularly unpleasant passage in the Bible has a "figurative meaning" altogether different and much more agreeable. It is this contention which Mr. Torrey attacks, and from an orthodox standpoint he is entirely right. If men may interpret the Bible to suit themselves it loses its authority as a divine inspiration. It must be accepted or rejected just as it is. Many people do not believe in the fire and brimstone doctrine, but if pinned down it would be found that most of them don't believe in the Bible either, although they may think they do.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

WANTS LARGE APPROPRIATION

Fish Commissioner Delavan in His Biennial Report Asks It.

DES MOINES, Nov. 26.—Fish Commissioner Delavan has filed his biennial report with Governor Drake. Mr. Delavan explains the need of a larger appropriation for carrying on the work of the department, and gives figures showing how meagre is the sum appropriated by Iowa when compared with the large sums expended by neighboring states. He asks for an appropriation of $16,000, of which $5,000 is wanted for gathering fish at Sabula and restocking the rivers and lakes of the state, $500 for the improvement of the fish ponds at Sabula, $600 for an assistant's salary, $10,000 for the protection, distribution and reproduction of fish during the coming two years, and $500 for the protection of game and the payment of deputies. Commissioner Delavan reports that during the biennial period over 500 poachers have been arrested and fines aggregating $6,458 have been collected and turned over to the school funds of the different counties. He calls attention to the fact that the fines collected by the department have aggregated $458 more than the entire sum paid by the state during the two years for the maintenance of the department.

COLLINS FIRESWEPT.

A Loss of $50,000 Visited Upon Her Merchants.

COLLINS, Nov. 26.—Flames destroyed $50,000 worth of property and swept away half the business houses of Collins. The fire was first discovered at the implement store of John B. Jones and was then burning furiously. The entire shed, sixty feet in length, was in flames. The fire swept north from here and consumed the entire lumber yard of Jones & Anson. Fish's meat market, Deter's restaurant, Bothera's wagon shop, a vacant building belonging to John Thompson, Crosby's blacksmith shop, Appell's jewelry store and Angelo's furniture store were destroyed in turn. The contents of some of them were saved, but the loss falls heavily on most of those mentioned. East of where the fire originated corn cribs containing 1,000 bushels of corn, held for two years by Frank Day, were a total loss.

A BOLD ROBBERY.

Mt. Carmel Merchant Held Up and Robbed of $500 in Cash.

CARROLL, Nov. 26.—A cool robbery was committed at Mt. Carmel. A stranger entered the store of George Pappe and asked for a plug of tobacco, tendering in payment a $20 bill. When the clerk handed him the change he thrust a revolver in his face and demanded the contents of the till, which was handed to him, amounting to $500 in cash, besides several checks for small amounts. The stranger quietly took his departure and no clue is left.

JUDITH JORGENSON.

Plans of Iowa's Most Popular Lady Writer.

DES MOINES, Nov. 23.—The Des Moines Daily News follows up its reduction to $1 a year with the announcement that Mrs. Ella Hamilton Durley (Judith Jorgenson) will continue her popular "Around the Evening Lamp" papers in the News during 1898. Mrs. Durley is unquestionably the most popular lady writer on the Iowa press. The News has numerous other attractions on its program for the next year.

CHILD BURNED TO DEATH.

Lyons Mother Leaves Her Two Children Alone in the House.

LYONS, Nov, 26.—Mrs. F. Zarstraw left her 4-year-old daughter, Agnes, and a younger child at home alone for a few minutes. When she returned she found the house full of smoke and and heard feeble cries. Rushing in, she rescued the baby, severely burned, and came back again to find the other child had been burned to death. The dead child's clothing caught while she was trying to light a fire in the stove.

Detectives After Him.

DES MOINES, Nov. 27.—George F. Smith has not yet been found by his relatives. His sister, Mrs. Mary Cutler, has started detectives to looking for him. The young man disappeared on the 23d when he was to have been married to Miss Mary Sullivan. Miss Sullivan says she knows why he went off and declares he will return safely.

McGarraugh to Be Custodian.

DES MOINES, Nov. 26.—Governor-elect Shaw has appointed Colonel Joseph D. McGarraugh, of Des Moines, custodian of the state capitol building succeeding the inaugural of Mr. Shaw on January 13, 1898.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.

Arm Literally Torn Out of a Man's Mangled Body.

GLIDDEN, Nov. 27.—A serious if not fatal accident occurred at Glidden. Edward Cuthbertson, oldest son of P. Cuthbertson, while feeding a corn crusher on his father's farm, in some way caught his arm in the crusher and before the machine could be stopped his arm had been ground through the powerful rollers to the shoulder and completely torn from the body. The large muscles of the shoulder, back and side were also torn or crushed off along with the arm. The shoulder blade was so badly broken that only small pieces of it could be found. After pulling him as far into the machine as possible, the dividing bar caught him just below the ear and cut a gash in his neck about three inches deep and four inches long. The crushing of the large arteries of the neck and arm are probably all that saved him from bleeding to death before medical aid could be procured. At last accounts he was still alive, although it was necessary to amputate almost all of one side of the body to get at the broken bones and torn muscles.

TO BE TRIED IN STATE COURT.

The $125,000 Fire Case From Council Bluffs Remanded.

DUBUQUE, Nov. 28.—Judge Shiras, of the federal court, sustained a motion to remand the case of Deere, Wells & Co. vs. the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad company and Section Foreman Peterson to the state court. About a year ago Peterson started a fire along the right of way at Council Bluffs, and, getting beyond his control, the fire destroyed property to the amount of $125,000. The petition charges that the section foreman was engaged in the discharge of a duty for the company and was negligent. The judge says a corporation acts through its agents, and the negligence of its agent while acting for the corporation is the negligence of the corporation. The question whether the foreman was negligent will be decided by the court which tries the case on its merits.

Boy Hunter Shot to Death.

CEDAR FALLS, Nov. 29.—Roy Chapple, while returning from hunting was shot through the abdomen by an accidental discharge of a shotgun which he was removing from the wagon. As a result of the wound he died. He was 21 years of age and resided near New Hartford.

Hunt Ends Fatally.

Boone Youth's Narrow Escape.

BOONE, Nov. 27.—De Witt Frampton, a young man near Boone, placed a cartridge shell full of lead in the fire to melt and while watching it the shell exploded, filling his face with molten lead, nearly destroying his eyes.

Boy Blew His Head Off.

NEW LONDON, Nov. 27.—Dan Teague aged 17, who lives two miles from Lowell, was in the act of putting away a shotgun when it exploded, the load striking him in the jaw and blowing his head off.

IOWA CONDENSED.

Nashua, N. J., dispatch: The Nashua stockholders of the Sioux City Stock Yards Bank, of Sioux City, have been notified by the receiver that the assessment made to liquidate the debts of the institution has been reduced from 75 to 50 per cent. The stockholders are directed to pay the assessment on or before December 5, or suit will be instituted against them to recover the amount. Stock aggregating about $60,000 is held in Nashua.

Charles Lucas, of Des Moines, aged 18 or 19 years, was shot and instantly killed by Officer Donahue. Lucas was caught in the act of burglarizing a saloon at East First and Locust streets and was arrested by the police officer. He attempted to escape from the policeman and struck the officer's gun a blow with the intention of knocking it out of his hand. The gun was discharged and the bullet passed into Lucas's brain, killing him instantly.

At Vinton recently the jury in the case of Frank Novak, charged with the murder of Edward Murray, at Walford, returned the verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree, and recommended that his punishment be fixed at ten years of imprisonment at hard labor in the penitentiary. Frank Novak received the verdict without emotion and said: "I will have to stand it, but I am innocent of the things charged against me." Attorney Milner stated that the case would be appealed to the supreme court, stating that the record was full of errors.

ALL OVER THE WORLD

MORE THAN 6,000 DROWN.

A Flood and Typhoon Destroy Lives in Philippine Islands.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 29.—The typhoon which swept over the Philippine islands on October 6 was the cause of one of the worst disasters that has been reported from the southern ocean in many years, if not in the history of that section of the world. Thousands of lives were lost, including many Europeans, and the damage to property was something appalling. Telegraphic advices concerning the calamity have been very meager. The steamer Gaelic from the orient brought letters and papers which contain accounts of the ravages of the tidal wave and the winds. Several of the towns were swept and blown away. Fully 400 Europeans were drowned, and it is estimated that 6,000 natives perished. The hurricane struck the island at the bay of Santa Paula, in the province of Samar. It devastated the entire southern portion of the island and cut off communication with the rest of the world for two days. On the 17th the hurricane reached Leyte and struck the capital of Tacloban with great fury. In less than half an hour the town was a mass of ruins, and 400 of the natives were buried beneath the debris of the wrecked buildings. One hundred and twenty-six corpses of Europeans were recovered from the ruins. Reports from the southern coast were received which claimed that a score of small trading vessels and two Sydney traders were blown ashore and the crews drowned. The sea at Samoa swept inland nearly a mile destroying property valued at several million dollars and causing wholesale deaths among the natives.

MAY WANT AN ARMOR PLANT.

Plans for a $3,000,000 One Are Prepared for Congress.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—The special naval board appointed to examine into the cost of armor making will present to congress details of a plant which it has designed. It will cost more than $3,000,000, and will have a capacity of 6,000 tons of armor per annum, which is about the combined capacity of the two armor plates now supplying the navy. The processes of manufacture will include the very latest developments in the art of metallurgy. The plans are said to be perfect in every detail, having been drawn under one of the leading experts of the country. The board has prepared the form of advertisement calling for bids for erecting this plant. Secretary Long will soon issue the advertisement, and it is hoped that within three months at the latest congress will have before it full information as to the cost of an armor plant as well as offers from existing plants to sell out to the government.

CANADA WON'T STOP SEALING

Refuses to Abandon Pelagic Sealing for a Year, But Proposes Alternative.

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 26.—A reply has been prepared by the Dominion government and forwarded to Washington in respect to the negotiations which are now going on between the two countries. The government will not say what the reply is until it reaches Washington, but it is understood that it is a refusal to stop pelagic sealing for a year, as the United States requested. The whole question depended on this, and therefore it would appear that the negotiations are to fail in their object. However, there is a report that the Canadian government has proposed an alternative proposition for the consideration of the United States, which should be laid before congress at its next sitting and passed in time to deal with pelagic sealing and the questions under dispute next season.

PLEASE KEEP STILL.

That is the Way McKinley Will Speak Regarding Cuba.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—It is understood the president in his message will suggest to congress that it would be inadvisable at present to take any action that would complicate the Cuban situation. It is said that he will suggest the passage of resolutions recognizing belligerency or independence would be inexpedient while measures of reform proposed by Spain, and to be carried out by General Blanco, are being introduced. The release of the Competitor crew and other American prisoners will be referred to as gratifying and as relieving the United States from the necessity of intervention for the protection of American life and property.

Powers After Turkey Again.

ROME, Nov. 26.—The report is confirmed that the powers have decided to blockade Constantinople in case Turkey refuses to withdraw her troops from Crete and to accept an European governor of the island.

WERE IN A FIGHT.

English Police Whipped by French in a Hinterland Skirmish.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The rumor has been received at the British colonial office that there has been a collision between British and French forces at Nitki, which is said to have been captured by the French. Officials of the colonial office, however, regard the report as highly improbable, as, they explain, the British police in Hinterland, who are in very limited numbers, have had strict orders to avoid any collision with the French. It is also understood the French forces have been instructed not to come in conflict with the British. The British forces in Hinterland, it is further stated, are being reinforced considerably. While the accuracy of the reported conflict is doubted, the papers point out the imminent danger resulting from the proximity of the two forces in the contested territory. In fact, the conflict has been anticipated for some time. Both countries have been hurrying troops to the disputed territory. This trouble is of about thirty years' standing.

ACTUAL PAYMENT IS BEGUN.

Eighteen Million Dollars On the Union Pacific Purchase.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Assistant Secretary Vanderlip has signed what is known as a pay warrant, directing the treasurer of the United States to deposit in the treasury the sum of $18,194,618, representing the proceeds of the sale of the Union Pacific sinking fund bonds and the invested cash in that fund which have been transferred to the treasury as part payment of the settlement of the reorganization committee of the Union Pacific road. This operation is but a book transaction in the treasury, and while it does not of itself result in formally taking up the amount as a treasury receipt, it is an important step which leads to placing the sum in the treasury cash, where it is beyond recall and cannot be withdrawn, except in consequence of an appropriation made by law. The full transaction will not appear in the statement of treasury receipts until the close of the present month.

Illinois Coal Strike Ended.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Twelve thousand miners have gone back to work in Coal City, Braidwood, Carbon Hill, Spring Valley, Lodi, Seatonville, La-Salle. One thousand men remain out at Streator. A settlement there is expected within a week. Victory is with the miners. Their chief demand was for a "mine run" price, that is, a rate per ton as the coal comes from the mine, unscreened. This has been conceded in some places. Where the rate remains fixed on the price per net ton of screened coal a substantial advance has been won. The increase in wages is 10 cents a ton over the scale made last May. The strike had been on since last July. The 30,000 miners of Illinois refused to ratify the terms of the agreement made at Columbus.

Turkey Pacifies Austria.

VIENNA, Nov. 27.—Dispatches from Mersina, Asia Minor, announce that, as a result of the decision of the Turkish government to grant the demands of Austria for redress in consequence of the ill treatment of Herr Brazafoil and the subsequent insults complained of by the Austrian consul, the flag of Austria was duly saluted at Mersina by the Turkish guns, with all the ceremonial demanded by the government of Austria.

BREVITIES.

It is stated that the will of the late Henry George leaves his entire estate, consisting of the home at Fort Hamilton, worth about $8,000, and the copyright of his books, to his widow.

General Pando, according to an official announcement, left Havana recently to take charge of a campaign against the insurgents. But, it is stated on the best authority that instead of going out to fight the rebels, he is commissioned by Marshal Blanco to enter into communication with the leaders with a view of arranging for peace.

The Turkish government, says a dispatch, announces the postponement until spring of its naval reorganization plans. This undoubtedly is due to the representations of Russia to the effect that the arrears in the Turkish Russian war indemnity are still due and that if Turkey resists in the reconstruction of her navy Russia will insist upon payment of the arrears.

The steamer Saratoga, from Havana, having on board the released members of the Competitor filibustering expedition, arrived in New York a few days ago. The men are Captain Alfredo Laborde, Wm. Bildea, Ona Melton, Wm. Leavitt, and Chas. Barnett, an Englishmen. The five men were in fairly good health. Capt. Laborde suffers somewhat from paralysis, which he contracted during his long confinement in the Caban fortress.

George Caulfield's Journey

By Miss M. E. Braddon.

CHAPTER I.

THERE were but five minutes left before the time for starting of the night mail from the great central terminus in the busy commercial city of Grandchester, and the Rev. George Caulfield, with a traveling bag in his hand, and a comfortable railway rug over his arm, was walking slowly along the platform, peering into the first-class carriages as he went by, in quest of ease and solitude. He was a man of reserved temper, bookish beyond his years, and he had a horror of finding himself imprisoned among five noisy spirits, cottony, horsey, and of that boisterous and coarsely-spoken temperament, which the refined and gentle parson would have characterized as rowdy. The Reverend George was a Christian gentleman, but so far as it was possible for his mild nature to hate any one, he hated fast young men. He was not fond of strangers in a general way. He endured them, but he did not love them. He had lingered on the platform till the train was within three minutes of starting, in the hope of securing for himself the luxury of privacy, but as the long hand of the station clock marked the third minute before 11, he espied an empty carriage, and was in the act of entering it, when a hand was laid very gently on his sleeve.

"Pardon me, sir," said a somewhat agitated voice, "are you a medical man?"

Mr. Caulfield turned, and confronted a man of slight figure and middle height, some years younger than himself—a man with a pale face, delicate features, and soft black eyes; a very interesting countenance, thought the curate. The stranger looked anxious and hurried.

"No," answered Mr. Caulfield, "I am a clergyman."

"That is almost as good. My dear sir, will you do me a great favor? My sister, an invalid, is traveling by this train, alone, but she will be met by friends at Milldale Junction. She is very ill—nothing infectious; chest complaint, poor girl. If you will afford her the privilege of your protection, only as far as Milldale, you will oblige me enormously."

There was no time for hesitation, the bell was ringing clamorously, people were hurrying to their seats.

"With pleasure," said the good-natured curate, sorry to lose the delight of loneliness, embarrassed at the idea of an unknown invalid, but far too kind to shrink from doing an act of mercy.

The young man ran to the second-class waiting room, the door of which was just opposite, and returned almost immediately carrying a muffled figure in his arms—a small, fragile form, which he carried as easily as if it had been that of a child. This slender figure, half buried in a large Rob Roy shawl, he placed with infinite care in one of the seats farthest from the door; then he ran back to the waiting-room for more wraps, a pillow, and a foot-warmer. He administered with womanly tenderness to the comfort of the invalid, who reclined motionless and silent in her corner, and then, hurried and agitated in the imminent departure of the mail, he stood at the door of the carriage talking to Mr. Caulfield, who had taken his seat in the opposite corner to that occupied by the invalid.

"You are more than good," said the stranger. "Don't talk to her; she is low and nervous, and you will agitate her painfully if you force her to talk. I dare say she will doze all the way. It is only an hour from here to Milldale, and no stoppage till you get there. Oh, by the way, kindly take this bottle, and if she should turn faint or giddy on the way, give her a few drops of the contents. There goes the flag. Will you allow me to offer you my card? I am deeply indebted. Good night."

All this had been said hurriedly. George Caulfield had hardly time to take the proffered card when the engine puffed itself laboriously out of the great, ghastly terminus, a wilderness of iron work, a labyrinth of tunnels and sidings and incomprehensible platforms, very gloomy on this cold winter night.

For the first few minutes Mr. Caulfield felt so confused and disturbed by the suddenness of the charge that had been forced upon him that he hardly knew what he was doing. Then he glanced at the lady, and saw with a feeling of relief that her head was reposing comfortably against the padded division of the carriage, and that her face was hidden by a blue gauze veil, which she wore over a small brown straw hat. She was breathing somewhat heavily, he thought, but that was to be expected in a sufferer from chest complaint.

"I hope her heart is all right," thought George, with a sudden sense of the awfulness of his position were his invalid charge to expire while in his care.

He looked at the stranger's card:

MR. ELSDEN,
Briargate.

The address looked well. Briargate was one of the most respectable business streets in Grandchester. Doubtless it had once been a rustic lane, where briars and roses grew abundantly, and the bees and butterflies, and village lads and lassies, made merry amidst odors of new-mown hay. Nowadays Briargate was a narrow street of lofty warehouses, tall enough to shut out the sun, a street that smelled of machine oil.

The express had cleared Grandchester by this time, tearing along a viaduct above a forest of tall chimneys, and then, with a sweeping curve, away to the windy open country, a land as wild and fresh and free as if there were no such things as factories and smoky chimneys in the world. Mr. Caulfield had, for the first ten minutes or so, felt revived by his inability to see his companion's face. It had been a comfort to him to behold her placidly asleep yonder, requiring no attention, leaving him free to dip in Tennyson's latest idyl, which he carried uncut in his traveling bag. But so variable is the human mind, so fanciful and altogether irrational at times, that now Mr. Caulfield began to feel vaguely curious about the face hidden under the blue gauze veil. He began to wonder about it. Was it so very pale, so deadly white, as it seemed to him under that gauze veil, in the dim light of the oil lamp? No, it was the blue gauze, no doubt, which gave that ghastly pallor to the sharply-cut features, the sunken cheeks.

The young lady's eyes were altogether hidden by the shadow of her hat, but Mr. Caulfield felt sure that she was asleep. She was breathing so quietly that he could scarcely see any indication of the faint breath that must be stirring her breast in gentle undulations. Sometimes he fancied he saw the folds of the Rob Roy shawl rise and fall in regular pulsations. Sometimes it seemed to him that nothing stirred save the shadows moved by the flickering flame of the wind-blown flame.

He sat and watched that quiet figure in the corner, only taking his eyes away now and then to look out at the dark land through which they were speeding, to see a cosy village, lit by half a dozen farthing rush-lights flit by like a phantom, or a town that made a patch of angry glare on the edge of the horizon. Useless to think of enjoying Tennyson by the sickly gleam of that wretched lamp! He stretched himself up in his warm rug; he closed his eyes, and tried to sleep. In vain. He was thinking of the face under the blue veil. He was broad awake—hopelessly awake. He could do nothing but sit and contemplate the figure reposing so quietly in the opposite corner. How he longed for Milldale Junction! He looked at his watch. The inexorable dial told him that it was only half an hour since he left Grandchester. His own sensations told him that it was a long night of agony.

Naturally a nervous man, to-night his nerves were getting the mastery over him.

"I never took such a miserable journey," he said to himself. "If she would only throw back that veil—if she would only speak to me—if she would only stir, or make some little sign of life! It is like traveling with Death personified. Were she to lift that veil this instant, I should expect to see a grinning skull underneath."

He had been told not to speak to her, but the inclination to disobey that injunction was every moment intensifying. Yet, if she were sleeping as placidly as she seemed to sleep, it would be cruel to disturb her; and he was a man overflowing with the milk of human kindness.

He took out his Tennyson, cut the leaves, puzzling out a few lines here and there by the uncertain lamp-light. This helped him to while away a quarter of an hour. He looked at his watch. God be praised! fifteen minutes more and the train was due at Milldale. What bliss to deliver that poor creature into the keeping of her friends—to have done with that muffled figure and that unseen face forever!

The train was fast approaching the junction; seven minutes more alone remained of the hour, and this night mail was famed for its punctuality.

Just at the last that feeling of morbid curiosity, which had been tormenting the curate for the greater part of the journey became an irresistible impulse. He changed his seat to that directly opposite his silent companion. Here he could see the form of the delicate features under the blue veil! How cruelly illness had sharpened the outline. The girl's ungloved hand hung listlessly over the morocco-covered arm, which divided her seat from the next. Such a pallid hand, so nerveless in its attitude! Something, he knew not what, prompted Mr. Caulfield to touch those pale fingers. He bent over and laid his hand lightly upon them.

Great God, what an icy hand! He had felt the touch of death on many a sad occasion in the path of duty, but this was colder than death itself. A cry of horror burst from his lips. He snatched aside the gauze veil, and saw a face purpled by the awful shadow of death.

"Milldale Junction! Change here for Broughborough, Mudford, Middlebridge, Sloughcombe—" and a string of names that dwindled into silence far away along the platform.

George Caulfield sprang out of the railway carriage like a man distraught. He seized upon the nearest guard.

"For God's sake, tell me what to do!" he cried. "There is a lady in that carriage dead or dying. Indeed, I fear she is actually dead. She was placed in my charge by a stranger at Grandchester. She is to be met by friends here. It will be an awful shock to them—near relatives, perhaps. How am I to find them? How am I to break the sad news to them?"

He was pale to the lips, cold drops of sweat were on his brow. All the pent-up excitement of the last hour burst from him now with uncontrollable force. The guard was as calm as a man of iron.

"Fetch the station-master here, will you?" he said to a passing porter. "Sad thing, sir," he said, to the agitated curate; "but you'd better keep yourself quiet. Such misfortunes will happen. We'll get a medical man here presently. I dare say there's one in the train. Perhaps the lady has only fainted. Hadn't you better step inside and sit with her?"

They were standing at the door of the carriage. George Caulfield glanced with a shudder at that muffled figure in that farthest corner.

"No," he answered, profoundly agitated, "I could do no good. I fear there is no hope. I fear she is dead."

"No relation of yours, sir, the lady?" asked the guard, scrutinizing the curate rather curiously.

"I never saw her till to-night;" and then, in flurried accents, Mr. Caulfield related the circumstances of his departure from Grandchester.

"Here comes the station-master," said the guard, without vouchsafing any comment on the curate's story.

The station-master was a business-like man, of commanding presence, and Mr. Caulfield turned to him as for protection.

"What am I to do?" he asked, when the guard had briefly stated the case.

"Nothing, I should think," answered the station-master, shortly; "but you'd better stay to see the upshot of the business. Where are the lady's friends, I wonder? They ought to have turned up by this time. Johnson, just you go along the platform to inquire for anybody waiting to meet a lady from Grandchester, and send some one else along the line to inquire for a doctor."

The guard departed on his errand; the station-master staid. In three minutes the porter came, followed by an elderly man, bearded and spectacled. "Medical gentleman, sir," said the porter.

The doctor got into the carriage and looked at the lady.

"Bring me a better light," he asked, and a lamp was brought.

A crowd was collecting by this time, travelers who scented some excitement, and thought they could not make a better use of their remaining five minutes than in finding out all about it.

"You'd better send for the police," exclaimed the doctor, reappearing at the door of the carriage. "This is a bad case."

"How do you mean?" inquired the station-master.

"I mean that this poor creature has died from the effects of narcotic poison."

"Great Heaven!" cried the curate; "I had a presentiment that there was something wrong."

The doctor and a porter lifted the muffled figure out of the carriage, and conveyed it to the nearest waiting-room. Three minutes more and the train would be moving.

A police-constable appeared as if by magic, and planted himself at the curate's side.

The guard came back.

"Nobody here to meet the lady," he said. "There must be a mistake somewhere."

"What am I to do?" demanded George Caulfield looking helplessly from the station-master to the doctor.

"Keep yourself as quiet as you can, I should say," answered the station-master.

"But, good heavens! I may be suspected of being concerned in this poor creature's death, unless her friends appear to verify my statement. Ah, by-the-bye, her brother gave me his card. I can tell you her name at any rate."

CHINA ASKS FOR HELP.

Wants Russia to Oust Germany From the Shantung Promontory.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—China has appealed to Russia to oust Germany from her territory. According to information which has reached Washington this is the development of the occupation by a German force of a portion of the Shantung peninsula. It is hoped by the Chinese that the influence exerted by Russia which prevented the rehabilitation of the Turkish navy, will be exercised upon Germany with equal success in the matter of her withdrawal from the territory of their government.

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Prince Henry is to take command of the second German squadron, consisting of the Kaiserin Augusta, the Deutcheland and the Gefion, which will probably start for Kiao-Chau bay about December 10 next. Admiral Von Diederich will still command the combined squadrons. It is thought that the government is determined to retain possession of Kiao-Chau bay as a guarantee against the recurrence of attacks upon German missionaries.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—A dispatch to the Times from Hong Kong says it is reported there from Canton that the viceroy of the province of Quang Tong, with the Chinese admiral and general, is preparing defenses and river forts on the Canton river as the result of "telegrams received from the north."

URGES MORE SOLDIERS.

General Miles Recommends Enlargement of the Army.

A Washington dispatch says: General Nelson A. Miles wants Uncle Sam to hurry up in getting ready for war and thereby avoid it. He asks congress for more than $15,000,000 for coast defense work next year. He also wants two more regiments of artillery properly to man the harbor fortifications already constructed. He urges the addition of at least 10,000 men to the strength of the army and he would give the president power to increase the standing army to 70,000. He asks for five more regiments of infantry at once, and would send men to Alaska to occupy three new forts. These are among the recommendations in the report of General Miles to General Russell A. Alger, secretary of war. The secretary heartily favors the plan to add two regiments to the artillery service and thinks troops ought to be sent to Alaska to maintain law and order. General Miles' recommendation of $15,000,000 for coast defenses is significant in the light of the fact that the government has appropriated $26,000,000 for such fortifications during the last ten years. From an average of $2,600,000 a year to $15,000,000 is a big bound.

PEACE OFFERS SIGNED.

Three Cuban Decrees Given Formal Indorsement on Behalf of Spain.

MADRID, Nov. 28.—Two of the three decrees relating to Cuba have been signed by the queen regent and published in the Official Gaceta. The first establishes colonial residents in the two Antilles upon exactly the same footing as those on the peninsula. The second extends the electoral law of June, 1890, with certain modifications necessitated by the circumstances, to the islands of Cuba and Porto Rico. The third decree, dealing with the question of political and commercial autonomy, has been signed but not yet made public. Its provisions, however, have been ascertained. The government of the colonies will be in the hands of a parliament, consisting of two chambers, the supreme authority being exercised by the governor general, in the name of the mother country, of which he is the representative. The senate will be formed of thirty-five members, eighteen elective and seventeen appointed for life by the governor general, in the name of the king. The chamber of representives will be composed of one deputy for every 25,000 inhabitants.

PARAGUAY DEFIES BOLIVIA.

Plants Its Flag On the Disputed Bahia Negro Country.

BUENOS AYRES, Nov. 27.—The correspondent in Asuncion, Paraguay, advises that Colonel Horomoso has planted the Paraguayan flag in Bahia Negro territory, which is in dispute with Bolivia. Two forts, armed by 200 men and two batteries, have been erected to hold the territory. Advices from the correspondent in Montevideo, Uruguay, state that Senor Julio Herrera has requested the police to guard him, fearing that his political enemies are at work to murder him.

Relief for Suffering Peasants.

HAVANA, Nov. 26.—Marshal Blanco has been authorized by the government at Madrid to sign a credit for $100,000 to be devoted to the immediate relief of the suffering peasants who have been gathered in the vicinity of the towns held by the Spanish troops.

WHAT CONGRESS WILL DO.

Burrows Thinks Money Talk Will Run Session Into August.

Washington dispatch: Senator Burrows, of Michigan, expresses the opinion that there will be a protracted discussion of the currency question during the approaching session of congress and that in all probability congress will be in session until August. "In addition to the routine business of congress, appropriations, etc.," he said, "the Hawaiian question will be disposed of and consideration will be given to the currency question, immigration and a few other things. As to the Cuban question the situation is very peculiar. There appears to be a great deal of confusion with relation to the disposition of new policy by Spain and I don't think congress ought to act until an opportunity has been had to determine what will be the result from Blanco's undertaking. I think," he added, "that the most perplexing thing that confronts us is how to handle the currency question. It is obvious that this question is going to come up for discussion, and it is equally obvious that it will lead to a protracted debate. I am very uncertain what it will result in."

Revolt in Turkey.

VIENNA, Nov. 26.—A Belgrade dispatch announces that 5,000 Albanians, belonging to the district of Ipek and Diakova, are in open revolt against Turkey. A fight occurred between the Ottoman troops, dispatched to Uskub from Salonica and Monastir, and Albanians. Both sides lost heavily. Large bodies of Bulgarian and Servian troops have been ordered to proceed to the disaffected district.

LITERARY NOTES.

Few people are able to buy as many books as they would like, yet it is possible without them to keep in touch with all the leaders of literature, as well as to follow the world's progress in every department of science and industry. The Youth's Companion already provides the means for more than half a million households—at an expense to each of $1.75 a year. Every issue of the Companion gives as much reading matter as a 12mo book of 175 pages, and the Companion comes every week. The quality of its contents is shown by the announcement for 1898, which promises contributions next year from the Rt. Hon. W. T. Gladstone, Rudyard Kipling, Speaker Reed, Capt. A. T. Mahan, Mary E. Wilkins, W. D. Howells, Lieutenant Peary, the Marquis of Dufferin, Senator Hoar, Justin McCarthy and more than two hundred other eminent men and women.

The Christmas Ladies' Home Journal tells how the German emperor, with the empress and the royal family, spend Christmas Day with their children. The article is written by Mr. Nagel Von Brawe, an attache of the court, who was permitted to be present at the celebration last Christmas in order to write this article. The pictures were made "on the spot," and approved by the emperor.

In the Midland Monthly for December the "Life of Grant" describes the thwarted conspiracy to take Missouri, out of the Union. In January will begin the story of Grant's campaign in the west, bringing it down to where Gen. Porter's book begins. Col. F. D. Grant in a letter to the editor pronounces the Midland life of his father as "intensely interesting" and "valuable," and the "most accurate" that has yet appeared.

The apparatus and methods used in the production of animated photographs, in the cinematograph, biograph, etc., will be fully described and pictured by J. Miller Barr, in Appleton's Popular Science Monthly for December.

John Muir will contribute to early numbers of the Atlantic Monthly a series of articles which are likely to become the classic descriptions of, first, the great government reservation; second, the Yellowstone park; third, the Yosemite park, and fourth, the Sequoia parks.

How to Cure Phneumonia.

At this time of the year a cold is very easily contracted, and if left to run its course without the aid of some reliable cough medicine is liable to result in that dread disease, phneumonia. We know of no better remedy to cure a cough than Chamberlin's Cough Remedy. We have used it quite extensively and it had always given satisfactson.—Olagah, Ind. Ter. Chief. This is the only remedy that is known to be a certain preventive of phneumonia. Among the many thousands who have used it for colds and lagrippe, we have never yet learned of a single case having resulted in phneumonia. Persons who have weak lungs or have reason to fear an attack of phneumonia, should keep the remedy at hand. The 25 and 50c sizes for sale by J. L. Harr.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Grain Moth and Its Destruction.

No other insect in Maryland and the South has done so much damage to stored wheat and corn as has the little insect known as the grain moth. It is also known as the "white fly," "weevil," "stack fly," etc. In Maryland it is especially injurious to stored wheat, and very often so injures the seed that it is unfit for planting. Corn coming from the South, especially the flint variety, is apt to be full of these insects. Recently a manufacturer of hominy in Baltimore told me they had much trouble from this insect in their corn. An exporter of grain also told me they had to be on the constant lookout for this pest in every cargo of corn or wheat received from the South. Last fall and winter, while attending the various farmers' institutes in the different counties, almost invariably this pest came up for discussion. It was originally imported from Europe by the early settlers of Virginia in their supplies of wheat brought from the old country. Once established on American soil, it has spread far and wide throughout the United States, Texas, perhaps, suffering more than any other state from its ravages. Much unnecessary loss is incurred each season simply from a lack of information concerning its habits and remedies for its destruction. It is not difficult to detect the presence of this insect in wheat and corn in store. The grain is light and very often peppered full of little round holes about the size of a pin's head, the interior of the grain having been eaten out by the young of the moth. Very often the attack is so bad that nothing but an empty hull is left. The parent insect responsible for this destruction is a small gray moth, resembling a clothes moth, and measures only about half an inch with its wings spread. It has a satiny luster, and its hind wings are deeply fringed. The eggs are deposited upon the grain both in the field and in the granary. Usually about a week passes before the egg hatches. The young worm immediately eats its way into the kernel, where it feeds about three weeks before maturity is reached. It then transforms to a pupa, from which the adult moth emerges a little later. It passes the winter in barns, granaries, storehouses, etc., and when established in an elevator or granary will breed generation after generation. Soon after harvest the moth flies out from the granaries to the fields and deposits her eggs upon wheat still in shock or stack. The larva passes through the thresher in the grain unhurt, and is carried back to the granary, etc. It is plain from these facts that if granaries are kept free from this pest the shocks will not become infested in the fields. If an individual farmer, however, takes the trouble to disinfect his granary, his wheat shocks will be infested from moths coming from the storehouses of his neighbors, provided he does not thresh very soon after harvest or before the eggs hatch and the larvae penetrate the grain. I know there is more or less difficulty in getting a thresher at the proper time, and where the wheat must be left in the fields the farmer should disinfect his granary soon after the wheat is stored. This insect has several natural enemies, and I have bred several small-winged parasites from it. No doubt these agents keep it in check to a limited extent; but we must look to other sources for more efficient remedies. The most satisfactory remedy now known is from the fumes of bisulphide of carbon. This chemical is a very inflammable, volatile, foul-smelling liquid, as clear as water, with a vapor so much heavier than air it will penetrate every possible crack and crevice in a storehouse or bin. It can be thrown directly upon the grain without injuring its vitality or its edible qualities. Many persons hesitate about using this bisulphide of carbon for fear of fire or injury to the grain. I have never heard of a case where a fire was caused by the use of this substance, or where grain was injured, where it was used cautiously. Gunpowder, gasoline, kerosene, etc., are dangerously explosive when carelessly handled; and so is bisulphide of carbon. This latter is not explosive in the same sense as gunpowder; but, like gasoline and kerosene, its fumes must be mechanically mixed with the air before it will cause an explosion. There is no danger whatever if used properly. One pound of bisulphide of carbon to every one hundred bushels of grain is all that is necessary for the destruction of insects. It is best to place the material in shallow dishes or pans upon the grain, and then close the bin tightly for at least twenty-four hours. Many persons make a mistake by not using enough of the substance, and then say it is of no account. It is an easy matter to estimate the number of bushels of grain in any enclosure, and then it is not a difficult task to calculate how many pounds of bisulphide should be applied. If it is desired to fumigate empty bins, etc., one pound of the chemical should be used for every 1,000 cubic feet of air space. Bisulphide of carbon is not expensive, and can be bought in twenty-five and fifty-pound cans at ten cents per pound, or in less quantities at a little more per pound. While in Dorchester county a few weeks ago I was told that many persons in that section covered the bottoms of their granaries or bins with Mexican tea or American wormseed (Chenopodium ambrosioides) before the grain was stored. This weed is known in that county as Jerusalem oak, and has a very peculiar odor, especially when dry. It is supposed that the moth is kept from the grain by the odor that is emitted.

Whitening Peach Trees.

The old New England practice of whitewashing fruit trees seems likely to come into vogue again. The Missouri experiment station in a recent bulletin says: Even though the proportional difference between the temperatures recorded under the different colors is not uniform, it is evident that the darker colors absorb much more heat than the lighter ones. When the sun was not shining the various thermometers registered alike. At one time, during bright sunshine, a difference of 21 degrees was recorded between the white covered and the purple covered thermometers. A difference of 10 to 15 degrees was frequently noted between these two. This is sufficient to indicate that we might expect considerable difference in the growth and time of flowering of whitened and unwhitened peach trees.

The expense of whitening is not great. A common lime whitewash was at first used, but it washed off badly during rainy weather. Finally a whitewash of lime with one-fifth skimmilk added to the water, was tried with much more satisfactory results. About one pound of salt was also dissolved in each bucketful of the whitewash. Four applications of this wash, applied during the winter and spring, are sufficient to keep the peach trees thoroughly whitened. The first whitening should be done early in winter, shortly before Christmas. The wash may be sprayed on with almost any kind of a spray pump. We found the Bordeaux nozzle to be satisfactory, as a solid stream could readily be turned on if the lime clogged the nozzle. The whitening should be repeated as often as the lime is washed off by rains. A good wash, however, will adhere well for weeks. The trees need two sprayings to begin with, just as wood needs two coats of paint in order to cover it well. Two subsequent sprayings are sufficient. The whitewash should be made as thick as can be sprayed through a Bordeaux nozzle. We used a small bucket spray pump and applied about one-half a bucketful, to a tree, at each spraying. The time required to apply the whitewash will vary from five to ten minutes, according to the kind of pump and to the size of the trees. The more trees that are sprayed, the cheaper it can be done per tree. Altogether, the cost need not exceed ten cents per tree for the winter. As fungicides are more safely applied to peaches when they are dormant than when they are in leaf, we tried adding copper sulphate to the whitewash. The copper sulphate was dissolved in the liquid used to thin the lime, at the rate of one pound to ten gallons. This discolored the whitewash somewhat, and another spraying of the wash without copper sulphate was given to cover it. We are not yet ready to report on the efficacy of the winter application of fungicides for the diseases of the peach. It should not be believed that the winter whitening of the peach will be found a reliable prevention of all classes of injuries caused by cold weather; yet, from the results already given, it is clear that it tends to check swelling of the buds on warm days of winter, and to retard blossoming in spring. We have not been able to detect any injury to the trees by this practice. Wherever peach buds are subject to winter killing by fluctuating temperatures and where their flowers are frequently killed by the late spring frosts, we suggest that whitening be tried on a small scale at least.

Potash.—Sandy soils are always deficient in potash. Even if they had this mineral they have usually so little vegetable matter that the potash forms an insoluble compound, by uniting with the sand. The potash in caustic ashes dissolve the silicate of potash, and also helps itself until its caustic properties are lost. But old leached ashes are often quite as beneficial to sandy soils as are unleached. They always contain some potash and some phosphate, which the water used for leaching would not dissolve. But they also usually contain some ammonia, taken from the air, and which makes its potash a nitrate of potash and a very powerful fertilizer.—Ex.

Women Horticulturists.

Women are working successfully in almost every field. Vick's Magazine states that according to the census of 1890 there were 312 commercial greenhouses, or about one in fifteen, owned and managed by women. We have a personal acquaintance with several women who are successful retail florists. Other women, to our knowledge, are making a success of raising carnations and other flowers for the wholesale trade. These people soon learn that the business of raising and selling flowers is beset by much care and labor that do not come under the head of poetry. And yet nearly all women florists that we have met were led into the business because they first of all loved flowers. It adds to the delight and success of any occupation if one has a love therefor. There is no question that, as a rule, women have a greater fondness than men for flowers. Why, therefore, should they not engage in growing and handling them for profit? The rougher work about flower raising, such as the care of greenhouse furnaces, the handling of soil and manure and the like, can easily be done by men who work for moderate wages. If women are successful as florists they are equally so as raisers of vegetables and smaller fruits, especially strawberries; they direct the rougher work, help to prepare the produce for customers, and perhaps take in hand the selling, thus keeping closely in touch with the state of the market. Generally speaking, we think that the raising of strawberries near our best markets is further from being overdone than that of almost any other kind of produce. The consumption is enormous and fresh fruit brought quickly from the fields, without a large distance intervening, always will sell considerably higher than fruit long from the vines that has been shipped. Much of the work of picking and handling small fruits is suited to be done by women.

The Health of the Hog.

In an address to swine breeders L. A. Davis said: "Always guard carefully the health of your hogs. Provide fresh beds once a week, using disinfectants each time around the sleeping quarters, troughs and adjacent grounds. Airslacked lime and carbolic acid are good disinfectants. Close study and observation has led me to believe that we can produce pork of the best quality at a great deal less cost than the average farmer has been doing, and at the same time greatly reducing the risk of loss from disease. One way to reduce the cost of pork is by reducing the time to produce. A thrifty pig that will weigh two hundred pounds gross, with meat well marked with lean, is the most desirable for the market of the world to-day; and with a good breed of hogs, mature mothers, proper care during pregnancy and careful treatment of pigs, this weight can be produced at six months. Keep the pigs growing from start to finish. To make the most of the sow, let her produce two litters a year—I prefer March and September for farrowing times. Since some argue that fall pigs do not pay, let me give one illustration: About the 10th of last October I had a sow to farrow a litter of ten pigs; no special care was given them, as the weather was pleasant, and when the pigs were about seven weeks old they were turned into the artichoke field with the sow, where they were allowed to run with other hogs all winter, except when very muddy they were shut off, and when the ground was hard frozen they were fed some corn."

Selling Fresh Eggs.

It is a fact that nine-tenths of the residents of cities do not know where to buy strictly fresh eggs, says American Poultry Keeper. This is no doubt a strange assertion to make in the face of the fact that thousands of dozens of fresh eggs are sold in this country every day, and especially when the purchaser gets them from "an old farmer." But even the old farmer is not always any wiser than the customer, allowing for producing them himself with the aid of his hens, but some old farmers buy eggs or bring them to market for their neighbors. There is a great deal of "faith" in buying eggs, and much depends on "confidence" and from whom they are purchased. A party who had a large flock supplied his brother in the city. Soon the brother's next door neighbor requested that he be supplied, and soon after several other neighbors desired a like favor. All of them were willing to pay extra for the eggs, as they had confidence in the one who sold them. He was compelled to refuse some of the would-be customers, from lack of supply, which only made his eggs the more desirable. Now, the market was amply supplied with "fresh" eggs, but that fact did not alter the circumstances so far as he was concerned. Cannot the readers learn a valuable lesson from this experience?

Cotton Seed Meals.

Charles D. Woods, director of the Maine experiment station, says: Much has been said and written relative to the use of cotton-seed meal as a cattle food. Nearly all investigators agree in giving it a high value and urge dairymen to use this material not only because it is a cheap source of protein but because it also has a high manurial value. Practical feeders differ greatly in their estimates of cotton-seed meal. Some seem to use it very satisfactorily for a while and latter conclude that the feed is not well adapted for their purposes. Occasionally a feeder observes that the health of his animals is affected by the feeding of cotton-seed too freely, and it sometimes happens that even after animals have been fed for months with apparent success that they are injured by its continued use. It has also happened that cows fed upon cotton-seed meal do well for a time and that later the milk flow is diminished without apparent cause. There are at present no other concentrated feeding stuffs which vary so much in composition as cotton-seed meals from different sources and different mills. Within three weeks the station has examined samples varying from 22 per cent to over 53 per cent of protein. This great variation in different lots of cotton-seed meal may explain the different estimates of different practical feeders and of the same feeders at different times. If a cow is fed a cotton-seed meal containing 26 per cent protein and is then fed an equal weight of meal containing 52 per cent, it is evident that the amount of protein which she receives will have been doubled by the change. If she has been fed up to her full capacity in the first instance, such an increase must result disastrously. On the other hand, changing from a cotton-seed of high protein content to one of low protein content would diminish the milk flow unless the amount of meal fed is correspondingly increased. If it is a correct supposition that much of the trouble arising from the use of cotton-seed meal is due to its varying in composition, this can be readily overcome by the feeder. Cotton-seed meal like most concentrated feeding stuffs cannot be legally sold in the state of Maine unless the chemical composition is stated upon the package. From the known composition of different lots it will be possible to so adjust the amount fed that the size of the ration as measured by its content of protein will be kept unchanged. The variations in composition are so great and the matter is such a serious one to the consumer that he, for his own protection, should refuse to purchase concentrated commercial feeding stuffs which are not licensed as required by law.

Too Much Grain Food.

At this time of year we hear a great deal about indigestion, and will hear more about it as the season grows colder and the birds are more closely confined. For several years we have had no trouble in this direction, for we have followed the plan of giving a breakfast of soft food scalded the night before and allowed to cook by its own heat over night. We believe this to be a complete preventative of indigestion. The feeding of corn through the whole year, or, in fact, the feeding of any grain continuously, will bring on indigestion. The indigestion will make itself manifested in various ways. One of these is in the form of constipation, the bird apparently keenly suffering. The owner too often does not know that anything is the matter, but he would, if he inspected his poultry, find that such birds showed no inclination to run about, preferring to sit down or to hover in some sheltered position. This stage is followed by that of great looseness, and the poultry man frequently thinks he has cholera in his flock. The third stage is that where the coop becomes filled with sour, rancid, bad-smelling food and water. It will generally be found that when this stage is reached the case is hopeless, which is frequently true in the second stage. The whole trouble is in the feeding.

Profit in Pork.—It can be set down as a rule that the largest profit in raising pork will result from keeping only the best breeds constantly in a growing condition from the time they are born until slaughtered. Have a good field of clover for pasture during the summer and as soon as wheat threshing is over allow them the freedom of the orchard; screenings, small potatoes, pumpkins, and other unmarketable products, and thus utilize what would otherwise be wasted. After the first frost shut them up and feed corn, but let them have an abundant supply of ashes and salt, which should be kept in a small box in the corner of the pen. A liberal supply of charcoal is also good for them. When there is a good bed of coals in the stove throw three or four fire shovelsful into the swill bucket and it will aid in promoting digestion. When fattening, quiet and a clean, dry bed are indispensable in making pork raising profitable.—Colman's Rural World.

Poor Stock not Economy.—Economy is impossible with one owning poor milching stock, for the attempt will only make them the more unprofitable. True economy will exist in getting a herd of one-third fewer cows which will give the yield he has been receiving. With such a herd the economy exists in better feeding than ever.—Ex.

WOMEN DO NOT TELL THE WHOLE TRUTH.

Modest Women Evade Certain Questions When Asked by a Male Physician, but Write Freely to Mrs. Pinkham.

An eminent physician says that "Women are not truthful, they will lie to their physicians." This statement should be qualified; women do tell the truth, but not the whole truth, to a male physician, but this is only in regard to those painful and troublesome disorders peculiar to their sex.

There can be no more terrible ordeal to a delicate, sensitive, refined woman than to be obliged to answer certain questions when those questions are asked, even by her family physician. This is especially the case with unmarried women.

This is the reason why thousands and thousands of women are now corresponding with Mrs. Pinkham. To this good woman they can and do give every symptom, so that she really knows more about the true condition of her patients through her correspondence than the physician who personally questions them. Perfect confidence and candor are at once established between Mrs. Pinkham and her patients.

Years ago women had no such recourse. Nowadays a modest woman asks help of a woman who understands women. If you suffer from any form of trouble peculiar to women, write at once to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and she will advise you free of charge.

And the fact that this great boon which is extended freely to women by Mrs. Pinkham, is appreciated, the thousands of letters which are received by her prove. Many such grateful letters as the following are constantly pouring in:

"I was a sufferer from female weakness for about a year and a half. I have tried doctors and patent medicines, but nothing helped me. I underwent the horrors of local treatment, but received no benefit. My ailment was pronounced ulceration of the womb. I suffered from intense pains in the womb and ovaries, and the backache was dreadful. I had leucorrhœa in its worst form. Finally I grew so weak I had to keep my bed. The pains were so hard as to almost cause spasms. When I could endure the pain no longer I was given morphine. My memory grew short, and I gave up all hope of ever getting well. Thus I dragged along. At last I wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice. Her answer came promptly. I read carefully her letter, and concluded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking two bottles I felt much better; but after using six bottles I was cured. My friends think my cure almost miraculous. Her noble work is surely a blessing to broken-down women."—GRACE B. STANSBURY, Pratt, Kansas.

Something to know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centres in the stomach, gently stimulates the Liver and Kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. At least once a year there is something to be thankful for.

It has been decided that the foot ball games attract more people than the Thanksgiving sermons.

A photographer in Kentucky is charging widows only half price. There should be more of this chivalry in business.

Gold was first discovered in Colorado in 1858 and since then the state has produced $530,000,000 in gold and silver. Out of fifty-six counties of the state twenty-six are gold producers.

A Boston society girl has been sent to a sanitarium because of a "queer hallucination which leads her to partially disrobe whenever she is in a crowd." Does she imagine she is at the seaside or the opera?

One by one the roses of tradition, which have bloomed in historical narratives, fade and fall. Once more it is declared that Admiral Tromp did not hoist a broom at the masthead of his ship, in token of his purpose to sweep English vessels off the ocean. The writer who labels the familiar tale as fiction is an eminent authority in matters pertaining to English history.

The Grand Opera House in Grand Rapids has been giving Sunday entertainments for some time in the interest of charity and has suffered three or four arrests under the old blue laws, and so great is the terrorism of the police department that only one of the three daily papers has dared to comment on the situation, at the same time the beer hall societies give theatricals, dances and sell beer on the Sabbath as usual, and are not molested. What a bad town Grand Rapids is getting to be.

A bride of a year was recently heard to say that ten of her acquaintances were to be married before Christmas, and that as the parents of all of them had sent her expensive wedding gifts, she and her husband were in much perturbation about the customary return. There is food for reflection in her comment that as they lived in a small rented house and kept but one servant, their valuable silver was still stored in the vault where it had been placed at their marriage; that although the gifts represented over three thousand dollars, the young husband had to struggle for their livelihood; and that the most modest presents they could select for their ten friends would take his whole month's salary.

An English exchange says: "Considerable discussion has naturally ensued on the rise of bread, and it is suggested that bakers are making more than a legitimate profit. Taking the statistics of the Labour Gazette, we find that during the second week in August the price of wheat was 29s 8d, and in the second week in September it had risen to 33s 1d per quarter. For the same weeks the price of the four-pound loaf was respectively 4.97d and 5.68d, which gives a rise of 3s 3d per quarter in wheat and .71 d in the four-pound loaf. It is estimated that 120 loaves of four-pounds each can be made from a quarter of wheat, so at the prices given above the August loaf would, counting only the price of wheat, cost 2.95d, and the September loaf 3.30d. There is therefore an increase of .71d in the price of the September as sold by the bakers as against .35d per loaf, charging only the cost of the wheat."

A more dramatic ending of the life of a public character and political reformer could hardly be invented by the novelist than the death of Henry George four days before the great municipal election in New York. It was the sober tribute of the whole community that he had laid down his life for the well-being of his fellowmen, and men of wealth and envied station vied with workingmen in speaking his praise and showing honor to his memory. Yet some years ago, when his well-known work, "Progress and Poverty," was the textbook of an active propaganda in favor of the nationalization of land, it was customary to denounce Henry George as the prophet and apostle of the most immoral and dishonest crusade against established rights and institutions that had been seriously undertaken in modern times. How has it come about that a writer who was then so commonly reprobated as a charlatan should now be treated as a lofty patriot, a moral hero, a true philanthropist, a prophet of righteousness and almost as a saint to be reverenced? Only one explanation can satisfy all the facts. Well may we ask, will the anarchists of today be the defenders of our country's honor tomorrow?

THE NEWS IN IOWA

DEATH OF C. E. WHITING.

Made the Run for Governor Against Larrabee in 1885.

SIOUX CITY, Dec. 4.—Charles E. Whiting, one of the pioneers of Iowa, died at his home at Whiting on the 2d. He was 76 years of age, and for some time has been a sufferer from Bright's disease. Up to a few years ago he was one of the prominent politicians of the Hawkeye state. He had served in the capacity of county judge, member of the board of supervisors, state senator and leader of his party in the gubernatorial campaign of 1885. He was nominated by the democratic party in 1885 as its candidate against William Larrabee, and was defeated by 5,349 votes. That lowered the republican plurality of 79,000 in 1880. He was nominated for congress by his party in 1874 and made the race against Addison Oliver, but was defeated. Nine years later he defeated Oliver for the office of state senator, and this office he held for four years. He was county judge of Monona county for ten years, and was the owner of large tracts of valuable land in Monona county. He leaves eight children.

THREATENS SIOUX CITY.

If He Can't Run No One Can, Says Mr. Chapman.

SIOUX CITY, Dec. 3.—H. G. Chapman has announced his intention of closing all the gambling houses and saloons in Sioux City. The reason of this is that Chapman was refused permission by the city authorities to open a variety theater, and he says if he is not allowed to run no one else will. The saloons of Sioux City, houses of ill-fame, and gambling houses all pay taxes to the city, and it makes quite a large revenue each month. It is not thought generally that Chapman can put his threat into execution. He claims that the provisions of the Martin law are being violated and that gambling houses and other resorts have no right to run. As yet he has taken no legal action. Chapman was once a candidate for mayor of Sioux City.

MURDER IN SECOND DEGREE.

Indictment Returned Against Frank Klony, at Des Moines.

DES MOINES, Dec. 5.—The grand jury returned an indictment against Frank Klony charging him with murder in the second degree. He is accused of shooting Jesse Conway near Carbondale on October 31st. Conway died from the effects of the wound. Klony pleaded guilty in justice court, but it is understood will stand trial in the district court. The fight will probably come up over the degree of his guilt. It is understood the defense will set up that he was intoxicated and that he believed he was about to be attacked by strikers.

LADY GOT $1,350 DAMAGE.

Breach of Promise Case Settled for Her at Boone.

BOONE, Dec. 3.—The jury in the Leonard-Picotte breach of promise case returned a verdict for the plaintiff, May Leonard, for $1,350. She sued for $5,000. Picotte is a brakeman on the Northwestern. The fair plaintiff is an auburn-haired young lady who sued Leon Picotte, a popular young man, for $5,000 for refusal to marry her when she was in readiness for the occasion.

DOLLAR DAILY PAYS.

Gratifying Success of the Daily News.

DES MOINES, Nov. 30.—It is stated on good authority that the Des Moines Daily News is an even greater financial success at $1 a year than it was before the price was reduced. It gives all important news in condensed form and its 17,000 circulation makes it very valuable to advertisers.

Guard Accidentally Killed.

ANAMOSA, Dec. 3.—The report of a gun was heard in the guard house which is occupied by Jerry Cunningham. Mr. Riddle, of the guards near by, hastened to the scene, and was horrified to see Cunningham lying on the floor gasping his last breath, death ensuing almost instantly. The ball entered at the base of the ear, passed up through the brain, coming out at the top of the head, tearing a hole through his cap. Just how the tragedy occurred no one knows, but it is believed to have been purely accidental. The deceased had been a guard at the prison for nearly four years and was a faithful and energetic employe.

Iowan Crushed to Death.

SHELL ROCK, Dec. 3.—C. T. Husband, a pioneer farmer, was run over by his team about two miles north of Shell Rock. He had crossed the railroad tracks with a heavy load of lumber on his way home, when the team became frightened at a Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern train. In trying to stop the horses at their heads they turned, throwing the weight of the lumber on him, killing him almost instantly.

DE LONG KILLED HIMSELF.

Only Inmate of the Webster Coun Jail Suicides.

FORT DODGE, Dec. 4.—Albert De Long, the only inmate of the county jail, was found hanging in his cell. De Long, who leaves a wife and family in Fort Dodge, was arrested about a week ago on the charge of rape, his victims being his two little stepdaughters, aged 7 and 9 years. De Long claimed that some time ago he received injuries in the head, which affected certain nerves, so that at times he became more like a beast than a human being. He pleaded guilty and based his only defense on the grounds of the injuries which he had received. His statement was corroborated by physicians, who, in fact, had informed the authorities about his condition some months before he was finally arrested on information filed by his wife. He was being held in jail to await indictment and sentence. With nothing before him but the asylum or the penitentiary, he chose to put an end to his existence. He had evidently been waiting for a good opportunity, for when dead a letter was discovered, bidding farewell to his wife.

CHARGED WITH FORGERY.

A. L. Mickle is Said to Have Defrauded the McFarlin Grain Company.

DES MOINES, Dec. 4.—The police are looking for A. L. Mickle, a grain broker's clerk, on the charge of forgery. He has been employed since January 5 by the McFarlin Grain Company, in its offices on the seventh floor os the Youngerman block. It is charged he forged the firm name to a check for a little over $1,000, got the money on it and disappeared. Mickle's conduct while in the employ of the company had been of the best, and the company had had no reason to suspect him until about two weeks ago, when he began to drink heavily. This continued up to his disappearance although part of the time he was able to attend to his work. Mickle leaves a wife and two children in Des Moines, who know nothing of his whereabouts.

NOVAK GETS THE LIMIT.

Sentenced to the Anamosa Penitentiary for Life.

VINTON, Dec. 6.—Judge Burnham sentenced Frank A. Novak to life imprisonment in the penitentiary for the murder of his friend, Edward Murray whose charred remains were found in the ruins of Novak & Jilek's store, at Walford, on the morning of February 3, 1897. The jury recommended that Novak's punishment be fixed at ten years' imprisonment, but Judge Burnham ignored the recommendation and based the sentence on the verdict of "guilty of murder in the second degree" returned by the jury. A motion for arrest of judgment was filed and an appeal will be taken. Prior to pronouncing sentence the judge overruled a motion for a new trial.

IOWA CONDENSED.

The little mining town of Kalo, in Webster county, had a $7,000 fire, The Apland general store, Lingerd Bros., and B. C. Fuller's store were destroyed and the Apland ice house. The fire started by the ignition of a match on the floor while a kerosene barrel was being opened.

Forest City dispatch: Sidney Brown, a young man from the south part of Hancock county, met a horrible death while working on the farm of Skiles Core, one mile south of town. He was in a ditch laying tiling when the bank caved in on him, burying him completely. As he did not appear for supper, search was made and he was dug out from the place of his sudden interment, as indicated by the caving walls.

T H. Milner and J. Ney, attorneys for Frank Novak, who was convicted of murder in the second degree in the district court of Benton county, have filed a motion asking the court to set aside the verdict and allow the defendant a new trial. Thirteen reasons are set up, all claiming errors in the record. The motion will be argued the latter part of the week. Novak is perfectly safe in making this appeal. He can never be convicted of a greater crime than murder in the second degree, according to the provisions of the Iowa law.

It has leaked out that Will Kern, who is now in jail at Waverly awaiting trial for the murder of his father has made a confession, implicating his former betrothed, Lydia Falls, as the murderess of his father. It is alleged that he claims she borrowed the revolver from him, stating it was for the purpose of killing old man Kern, and that she fired the shot which killed him. He gives as her motive the fact that old man Kern objected to her associating with the Falls girl, and she killed him through revenge

General Blanco Declines American Aid for Cuban Sufferers

MADRID, Dec. 6.—The Spanish government, it is semi-officially announced, has received details of the landing of an expedition in Cuba from the American steamer Dauntless, and it is understood the Spanish minister at Washington, Senor de Lome, will shortly present in this connection a claim for damages from the United States. The minister for the colonies, Senor Mora, has received a dispatch from Marshal Blanco, the captain general of Cuba, saying: "I have sent the following telegram to our minister at Washington: 'There is no need for foreign help to provide for the wants of this island, or its inhabitants. The government, from its own resources, is endeavoring to provide for the necessities and the needs of what, moreover, is diminishing daily.'"

FAIL TO SETTLE BIG STRIKE.

Engineers and Their Employers Unable to Reach an Understanding.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—The delegates of the striking engineers who have been conferring with the representatives of the employers have been unable to accept the proposals of the latter and have decided to submit all the points in dispute to the several unions. The conference between the representatives of the engineers and the employers will be resumed on December 14. The employers decline to recede from their position respecting freedom in the management of their business from the interference of the unions and emphatically pronounce against a reduction in the hours of labor, on the ground that such a reduction would mean a diminished output and inability to meet foreign competition.

RUSSIA GOES TO GOLD.

Empire of the Czar Now on Yellow Metal Standard.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 3.—An imperial ukase orders the coinage and issue of 5-ruble gold pieces, equal in value to one third of an imperial (which weighs 12,902 grammes, 900 fine). Another ukase issued directs that the inscription on the Russian credit should be changed to read as follows: "The state bank exchanges credit notes against gold coin for an unlimited amount. One ruble is equal to a fifteenth of an imperial and contains 17,424 doli of pure gold. The exchange of state credit notes against gold coin will be guaranteed by the whole property of the state. State credit notes are to have equal currency with gold coin throughout the empire."

TWO GERMAN SHIPS TO HAYTI.

Great Excitement Over a Curious German Movement.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Haytian Minister Leger called at the state department with the statement that he had received a message from his government that the Haytian consul at Kingston, Jamaica, telegraphed that two German warships had sailed from that place to Port au Prince. The news created the greatest excitement all over the island and disturbances are apprehended. The foundation for the story is believed to be that two German school ships which have been cruising in southern waters, were starting on their way to the United States, as the state department is already advised by the German legation.

GOING TO WAR WITH HAYTI.

German Official Threats Against the Little Republic.

BERLIN, Dec. 5.—The semi-official Post says: "Should Hayti refuse the German demands for an indemnity on account of the alleged illegal arrest and imprisonment of Herr Lueders, a German subject, at Port au Prince, sharp measures will follow. We shall first bombard the coast forts, and if they are persistent, we shall bombard the city and government buildings."

England in the Nile Valley.

LONDON, Dec. 5.—It is reported that the Khaliff is disposed to conclude peace with Egypt on condition that he be granted hereditary power and all his adherents be pardoned. The Dervish leader is said also to be ready to be ready to evacuate the whole Nile valley to recognize suzerainty of Queen Victoria and open the domains to British commerce.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The president has appointed Blanche K. Bruce of Mississippi to be register of the treasury. MARTIAL LAW IN PRAGUE.

Made Necessary by the Czech-German Riots—Twenty-five Killed.

PRAGUE, Dec. 4.—As a result of the Czech-German controversy, riots more or less serious, are reported from Innsbruk, Brunn, Linz and Saaz. In some instances it is alleged that the disturbances have been encouraged by the municipal authorities. Generally the Bohemian Jews have suffered most. A report is current, although as yet unconfirmed, that a mob at Prague attacked the soldiers and a sanguinary encounter ensued. According to this rumor the troops fired four volleys, killing twenty-five rioters outright and wounding many. The ambulance association has issued a report showing that within twenty-four hours, four persons have been killed, 150 dangerously wounded and 500 more or less seriously wounded. Twenty shops have been burned up. As a further indication of the gravity of the situation troops to the number of 10,000, equipped with ammunition and other paraphernalia as for a campaign, have been engaged in suppressing the riots. It is not exactly martial law that has been proclaimed, but rather the institution of summary civil procedure, called standrecht, whereby a special tribunal of seven judges is empowered to impose capital punishment and other severe sentences for offenses ordinarily punished mildly. There is no appeal against a death sentence by the tribunal which must be put into execution within two hours by the military if the hangman is not available.

General Pando is Not Dead.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Spanish minister has received a cable from the secretary general of Cuba, stating that the report of the death of General Pando, commander of the Spanish forces in the field, is false.

BREVITIES.

Justice Field retired from the supreme bench on the 1st.

Tomas Estrada Palma, the Cuban delegate, speaking on the terms of the autonomy decrees, said: "These propositions were scorned in advance of their presentation. They can receive no consideration now. With Cuba it is as it has been since the war began and will be until it ends—independence or death."

Reliable reports received from all parts of the state show that there are 160,000 head of cattle now being fed in Texas for the markets of St. Louis, Kansas City and Chicago. This is an increase of 40,000 head of cattle over the number fed last year. This showing is a great surprise to those who have been claiming that there is a big shortage of cattle in Texas.

Washington dispatch: At a meeting of the cabinet Secretary Alger submitted and the cabinet considered the finding of the court martial in case of Captain Lovering for cruel treatment of Private Hammond at Fort Sheridan. The verdict rendered finds him guilty and sentences him to be reprimanded by the secretary of war. The sentence will doubtless be carried out.

It is announced that in spite of the protest of the Russian government, which recently intimated to the porte that if any considerable part of the indemnity paid by Greece should be devoted to the extension of the Ottoman armament the Russian government would insist upon a payment of the arrears of the Russo-Turkish indemnity, long overdue, Turkey has placed with Herr Krupp, the great German gunmaker, an order for 150 large cannon at a total value of 1,500,000 marks.

Judge Hosmer, in the circuit court at Detroit, declined to interfere with the boycott by the employes of a milling firm. A temporary injunction had been issued restraining the Railway Teamsters' Union and Trades Council from unlawfully interfering in the business of Jacob Beck & Sons, and the judge said he would make the injunction permanent so far as violence or disturbance was concerned, but he would not interfere with "the peaceable distribution of boycott circulars or other legitimate means employed by the unions to accomplish their purpose."

The recently published rumor of a conflict between French and British forces near Nikki, West Africa, is authoritatively denied, but the general credence that was given to the rumor shows how grave the situation is. Since the initiation of the wild policy of sending armed bands from Dahomey and Lagos, led by hot-headed officers, to assert the authority of their respective nations and grab anything in sight which might still be unoccupied, it has been obvious that a collision was bound to occur sooner or later. Both governments have repeatedly been warned to recall these roving expeditions and await the settlement of the delimitation commission now sitting in Paris. It is difficult to apportion the blame for the state of affairs. That the French initiated the system of raiding the contested territory in west Africa [illegible]; but Mr. Chamberla[illegible] serious false step in

By Miss M. E. Braddon.

CHAPTER I.—(CONTINUED.)

He took the card from his breast-pocket and handed it to the station-master.

"Mr. Elsden, Briargate," the man read aloud.

"Elsden," said the doctor. "I know an Elsden of Briargate—a big man with large white whiskers?" he interrogated, turning to the curate.

"No, this was a young man; pale, dark and good looking."

"Ah, I don't know who he can be. There'll have to be an inquest to-morrow morning, and the best thing we can do is to telegraph to Elsden, of Briargate, directly the office is open. Very strange that the lady's friends should not have appeared."

"I shall lose my train," cried George Caulfield, seeing the last lingerers hurrying to their places. "Here's my card," handing one to the doctor. "You may communicate to me at that address. Any assistance that I can give—"

"Beg your pardon, sir," said the constable, laying an authoritative hand upon him. "I shall be obliged to detain you till this business is settled."

"I shall be wanted as a witness at the inquest."

"Yes, sir; most likely, sir. It will be my duty to detain you. Better not talk too freely, sir. Any statement you now make may be used against you later on."

The curate looked at him with surprise.

"Do you mean to say that I am your prisoner—that you want to lock me up?"

"Well, yes, sir. Very suspicious case, you see. Young lady poisoned—friends not forthcoming. No doubt you'll be able to explain matters to-morrow; but for to-night you must consider yourself in custody."

"Yes, of course, I shall be able to explain," said George Caulfield, calm and bold, now that he found himself face to face with actual peril, "but it is a most painful position. I feel that a trap has been set for me."

"You had better hold your tongue," said the doctor.

So the London Mail left without George Caulfield, who was conveyed in a cab to Milldale Jail, where he was subjected to the ignominious process of having his pockets searched by a jailer. In one of them was found the little bottle given him by the gentleman at Grandchester, and this, together with a few other trifles, was handed over to the authorities for investigation.

CHAPTER II.

INSTEAD of making any vain attempt at sleep, George Caulfield asked for pens, ink and paper, and a lamp that would last him for the best part of the night; and on these luxuries being conceded, he sat down to write a long letter to his mother, relating all the circumstances of his miserable journey, and entreating her not to take alarm at his situation, whatever she might read about him in these newspapers. This letter, which would travel by the morning post, could be preceded by a telegram, informing the old lady that her son was safe, and detained at Milldale on business. Some hours of anxiety the son could not spare that beloved mother; and it was more painful to him to think of her trouble, when five o'clock came and brought no returning traveler, than to contemplate his own position.

"Dear old lady! I can fancy her and all her neat and careful arrangements for my comfort," mused Mr. Caulfield. "I know how distrustful she will be of the maids, and how she will insist upon getting up at four o'clock in order to see about my breakfast. And then when the time comes, and no hansom drives up to the gate, what agonies she will suffer! for I have never accustomed her to disappointments. I have never broken my word to her in my life."

The curate fretted and fumed at the thought of his mother's anxiety. He was an only and an adoring son—at thirty-two years of age a confirmed bachelor, loving no one on earth as well as he loved the widowed mother whose cherished companion he had been from childhood upward. Had she not removed her dearly loved goods and chattels to Eton, and lived in a small house in the High street all the time her boy was at school there? Had she not followed him to Cambridge as faithfully as a sutler follows a camp? And now she had one of the prettiest houses in South Kensington, and her son was first curate at the most intensely Gothic church in that locality. George Caulfield's mother was the love of his life. He had been assisting at a choral festival at a small town near Grandchester, where an old college friend of his father was vicar, and had been only three days away from the dainty little nest at South Kensington, where blue china plates had just broken out like pimples, on a sage-green wall, and where the Queen Anne mania showed itself modestly in divers inexpensive details.

"Poor mother!" sighed George; "a telegram can hardly reach her before nine o'clock at the earliest."

He read his Tennyson; he dozed a little; he got rid of the night somehow and at seven o'clock he had written and dispatched two telegrams.

The first was to his mother; the second was to the vicar, from whom he had parted at eleven o'clock the previous morning, and to whom he was inclined to look for succor, as one of the cleverest and most energetic men he knew.

This latter message was brief:

"From George Caulfield, Milldale Jail, to Edward Leworthy, Freshmead Vicarage.—Come to me at once, for God's sake! I am in a great difficulty."

Mr. Caulfield's janitor brought him a comfortable breakfast by and by, and was inclined to sympathize. He knew a gentleman when he saw one, he told the curate, though he had had to deal with a rough lot in this beastly hole. He had seen a good many murderers in his time, and the possibility of his prisoner's guilt made very little difference to his feelings. Guilty or not guilty, a man who was free-handed with half-crown pieces was entitled to respect. The difference between a half-crown and a florin, was just the difference between your real gentleman and the spurious article. The actual amount was not much, but that odd sixpence marked the distinction.

This functionary informed Mr. Caulfield that the inquest was to take place at four o'clock that afternoon.

"Which gives you time to communicate with your solicitor," he added, grandly.

"But I haven't any solicitor," answered the prisoner. "I never had any law business in my life."

"So much the better for you, sir," responded the jailor, sententiously; "but you must have a lawyer to watch this here case for you."

"I'll wait till my friend, the Vicar of Freshmead, comes, and take his advice about it," said George. "I know he'll come as soon as the rail can bring him."

His confidence was not ill-placed. Soon after noon Mr. Leworthy was ushered into his room. He was between fifty and sixty—a man with a countenance full of vivid intelligence, bright brown eyes, and gray hair, worn longer than the fashion. It was altogether a poetic head; but the man's temperament fitted him for action and effort as thoroughly as his intellect gave him mastery in brain-work.

Such a friend as this was verily a friend in need. The two men clasped hands, and for the first minute George Caulfield was speechless.

"Tell me all about it," said the vicar, sitting down by his friend's side with as cheerful an air as if it were a common thing for him to find a friend in prison.

George Caulfield related his dreadful adventure of the previous night, the vicar listening intently, with knitted brows.

"It looks very like murder," he said at last. "The poor creature was carried to the station in a dying state, and that stentorious breathing you noticed when the train started was the last struggle. Don't be afraid, my dear boy; there's not the slightest reason for uneasiness. Our business is to find out all about this poor lady, and the man who placed her in the train. She must have been brought to the station in some kind of vehicle—cab, bath-chair—something. The first thing to be done is to have inquiries made among the cabmen and cab proprietors. The police will do all that; but I shall have to watch your interests in the matter. You must have a clever lawyer, too, to watch the case. Brockbank, of Grandchester, will be the man—always about the criminal court there, up to every move. I'll telegraph to him instantly. The inquest is to be at four, you say. I must get it put off till five."

"How good you are!" exclaimed George, "and how clever, old fellow, that's all. Some pious people think that a parson has no right to be a man of the world, forgetting who it was that told us to be wise as serpents. I'm not the popular idea of a parson, you know, by any means; but I can serve a friend as well as your strait-laced specimen of the breed."

He was a man of abounding cheerfulness and infinite capacity for work, as prone to embellish his conversation with occasional flowers of modern slang as he had been forty years ago at Eton. He was just the man George Caulfield wanted in this crisis of his life.

He telegraphed to the Grandchester attorney, and got the inquest postponed from four till five. He saw the medical man; he talked to the police. A police officer had started for Grandchester by an early train to hunt up the owner of the card, and obtain as much information as could be got in a few hours.

The inquest was held at the chief hotel in Milldale, in a large dining-room, which was only used on civic and particular occasions. Here, under a blaze of gas, the curate of St. Philemon's, South Kensington, found himself for the first time in his life face to face with a British jury and a British coroner.

Mr. Hargrave, M. R. C. S., general practitioner at Milldale, declared that the deceased, name unknown, had died from the effects of a large dose of laudanum. There had been no post-mortem, and he saw no necessity for one. The color of the face, the odor of the lips, the abnormal coldness of the corpse, were sufficient evidence as to the nature of the poison. The bottle found in the prisoner's possession contained laudanum. Sensation!

The railway guard and station-master stated all they knew about the arrival of the deceased at Milldale Junction. Both described the prisoner as violently agitated.

The constable who had been sent to Grandchester was next examined.

He had found Mr. Elsden, of Briargate—a man of sixty, stout, gray, bald, in every attribute unlike the man described so graphically by Mr. Caulfield. Mr. Elsden had been able to offer no suggestion as to the stranger who had made such a shameful use of his card.

The constable had afterward gone to no less than four cab-yards, where he had made all inquiries possible in the limited time. He had been unable to find any cabman who had driven an invalid lady to the station on the previous evening. He had next hunted out the only bath-chair proprietor in Grandchester, with the same result. Time had not allowed him to visit the numerous chemists' shops in that thriving city, and that remained to be done.

There was no evidence on Mr. Caulfield's behalf, except the Vicar of Freshmead's evidence as to his character and antecedents, and to the fact that he only parted with him at eleven o'clock on the previous morning at the Freshmead Road Station. Freshmead was seven miles from Grandchester.

"What was Mr. Caulfield going to do when he left you?" asked the coroner.

"He was going to spend the day in Grandchester."

"Has he any friends or acquaintances in that city?"

"No. He was going to look at the cathedral and law-courts, and to spend an hour or two in the Oldbury Library."

"He was to dine somewhere, I suppose?"

"He meant to dine at a restaurant. There are a good many dining-places in Grandchester; he could take his choice among them."

After this witness had been examined the inquiry was adjourned for a week.

At the close of the proceedings Mr. Brockbank, the lawyer, asked if his client might be released on bail, the Vicar of Freshmead being prepared to offer himself as security to any amount, but the coroner replied that the case was of too serious a nature to admit of bail.

So Mr. Caulfield went back to the stony place whence he had come, where the utmost privilege that could be accorded him was the liberty to see his friends at stated hours, and to have his meals supplied from an adjacent hotel.

His spirits would have assuredly gone down to the point of utter despondency on that gloomy winter evening, when the moldy fly that had conveyed him to the George Hotel carried him back to the jail, had he not been supported and sustained by the indomitable cheerfulness of his friend the vicar.

"What do you think of the case now?" he asked.

"Think!" cried Mr. Leworthy. "Why, that I shall have so much to do in Grandchester ferreting out this mystery of yours during the next six days that I don't know how the deuce my parish work is to get done."

"Won't you employ the police?"

"Of course I shall; but I shall employ myself too. Don't you be downhearted, George. I mean to see you safely through this business, and I shall do it right away, as they say on the other side of the Atlantic."

George Caulfield's confidence in his father's old friend was unbounded. He had seen in the past how the Vicar of Freshmead could conquer difficulties which the ruck of men would have found insurmountable. Mr. Leworthy dined with him as cheerfully as if they had been eating whitebait at Greenwich or turtle in Aldersgate street under the most exhilarating circumstances; and stimulated by the force of example, George, who had scarcely broken his fast since he left Grandchester, found himself enjoying the tavern steak and tavern claret.

How to Cure Phneumonia.

At this time of the year a cold is very easily contracted, and if left to run its course without the aid of some reliable cough medicine is liable to result in that dread disease, phneumonia. We know of no better remedy to cure a cough than Chamberlin's Cough Remedy. We have used it quite extensively and it had always given satisfactson.—Olagah, Ind. Ter. Chief. This is the only remedy that is known to be a certain preventive of phneumonia. Among the many thousands who have used it for colds and lagrippe, we have never yet learned of a single case having resulted in phneumonia. Persons who have weak lungs or have reason to fear an attack of phneumonia, should keep the remedy at hand. The 25 and 50c sizes for sale by J. L. Harr.

A SAD DEATH.

On last Saturday, Nov. 27, occured the accidental death of Sidney Brown, the oldest son of M. G. Brown of Corwith. He was digging an 80 rod tiling ditch on the farm of Giles Core in Madison township, this county, about one half of which had been completed when the accident occured. Just how it happened no one will ever know, as the young man was working alone. The part of the ditch in which he was working was about 8ft deep. The top portion of the earth was clay and the bottom of the ditch was composed of gravel. The cold weather had frozen the walls of the ditch almost to its bottom. In some manner the ditch suddenly caved in for the space of 30ft. and to the width of 3ft. The earth seemed to slide off its gravel bed and fill up the entire space of the top part of the ditch. As the earth was frozen, it slid in a compact mass and caught him standing upright, spade in hand, the other hand resting against the opposite wall, with his shoulder and cheek also placed against the wall, as in the act of bracing himself. He was not discovered till evening, and as he did not return at supper time, search was instituted with the above result. His head was not more than two feet below the surface yet with the vast weight of earth that closed in on him, death must have come instantly. The face showed no signs of suffering.

There is little excuse for much of the untidyness that is found on farms. I just saw to-day a farmer whose hands were all chapped and dirty, and he took pride in having such hands. Soap and hot water will cure that. There is a good excuse for the farmer wearing an over-shirt while in the barn, but it can be removed when he is in the house. There is no reason why the farmer should not be as cleanly as anybody when he is in the house or in town.

ARMOR PLANT COST $3,750,000

Government May Go Into the Business of Making Armor.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The naval board appointed to ascertain the cost of an armor plant has reported to Secretary Long. It says such a plant capable of making 6,000 tons per annum would cost about $3,750,000. No recommendation is made as to the location, though the board has a lot of information on the subject which will be furnished when wanted. The secretary, under authority of congress, will advertise for proposals for building such a plant. In his report to congress the secretary will make it evident that the government can not undertake to make its own armor at the cost named as the limit price to be paid private firms in the last naval appropriation bill.

PANDO IS DEAD.

The Big Spanish General Has Stopped a Cuban Bullet.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—A dispatch to the Herald from Havana says: There are reports that General Pando, who was placed in charge of the military operations in Cuba by General Blanco, has been killed in an engagement with the insurgents in Santa Clara province. The report has caused the most intense excitement in the palace and in official circles. Simultaneously with the report of General Pando's death comes the news of a battle with the insurgents near Matanzas, in which the Spanish forces were routed and driven from the field. It is asserted the losses of the Spanish were very heavy.

Upon being informed of the condition of his mother, President McKinley at once took a train for Canton. He arrived this morning.

Russia Has Fastest Boats.

WASHINGTON, Dec 4.—The navy department has received information to the effect that Russia is about to become possessed of three new torpedo boats that will easily be the fastest war craft in the world, being capable of the enormous speed of 38 knots an hour with every possibility of making forty knots when pressed. The boats will be driven by steam turbines, having four separate shafts with three screw propellers on each shaft. The contract for the three boats has already been placed with an English firm.

IOWA PATENT OFFICE REPORT.

DES MOINES. Dec. 3.—Seven patents secured for western inventors and heretofore mentioned in our weekly reports were issued November 30th. Six patents have been allowed through our agency, but not yet issued, as follows:

To J. H. Brumbaugh and D. P. Stoll, of Lexington, Neb., for a land leveler consisting of a frame that has runners at its parallel sides and wheels at his heels and adjustable scrapers mounted in the frame. To R. V. Barry, of Stuart, for an automatic check row corn planter adapted to plant four rows at each passage across a field.

To J. N. Emarine, of Early, for a wash boiler attachment adapted to facilitate heating water and circulating it in the boiler and through the meshes of articles placed in the boiler to be cleansed without rubbing them.

To F. W. Jacobs, of Mason City, for an apparatus specially adapted for lifting boulders and conveying and depositing them in forming a stone fence.

To G. W. Parsons, of Newton, for improvements in his band cutter and self-feeder for threshing machines, for which a plurality of patents have heretofore been issued and noticed in our reports.

GERMANY'S DEMAND.

Makes Impossible Conditions for Evacuation of China Land.

PEKIN, Dec. 1.—Inquiries made in Chinese official circles confirm the statements made in dispatches from Shanghai giving the substance of the demands made by Baron Von Heiking, the German minister to China, as a result of the murder of German missionaries and the destruction of a German mission here recently. Germany, through her minister, asks for the discovery and execution of the murderers of Missionaries Neis and Henne; the punishment of the implicated officials, including the governor of the Shan Tung province, in which part of China the mission was situated; the reconstruction of the missionary building; the payment of an indemnity of 600,000 taels to the relatives of the victims; the payment of a heavy indemnity to cover the expenses of the German naval expedition and the maintenance of the German force at Kiao-Chau bay; the railroad monopoly of the Shan Tung province and the occupation of Kiao-Chau bay as a German coaling station. China will refuse the demands of Germany, but will express willingness to make ample reparation for the murder of the missionaries and for the damage done to the mission property. Russia, it is understood, is not yet helping China, but the latter country has decided not to provoke hostilities and to trust to diplomacy for a settlement of the difficulties which have arisen in connection with the mission outrages.

LONDON, Dec. 1.—The papers assert that China has practically agreed to cede to England a strip of territory near Hong Hong and all surrounding islands, in order to enable England to fortify them securely and to increase the garrison. It is expected that a convension covering the agreement will soon be signed.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—A special from Shanghai announces that the emperor of China has declared that he would rather forfeit his crown than agree to the conditions demanded by Germany as redress for the murder of two German missionaries and the destruction of the German mission property in the province of Shantung. Admiral Diedrich, German commander, the dispatch further states, has declared martial law in the district around Kiao Chau. China desired that the dispute with Germany be submitted to arbitrators appointed by Holland and Belgium.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—The naval department has sent instructions to Kiel to dispatch 200 artillerymen with field guns and 1,000 marines to China.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 4.—The opinion prevails that Germany will not permanently occupy Kiao Chau bay, China. The newspapers protest against the occupation as calculated to injure the interests of Russia, and say Russia ought to demand evacuation.

ANGELL MAKES DEMANDS.

Insists on Indemnity for Destruction of American Missions.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 3.—United States Minister Angell renewed the demand of the United States for indemnity from the Turkish government for the pillage of American missions in Armenia. The porte denies responsibility for the pillage on the ground that the government acted under stress of unavoidable circumstances. Minister Angell, however, insists upon the government responsibility, as the Turkish government troops and gendarmes participated in the outrage.

GRIGGS GETS A NICE JOB.

He Will Succeed McKenna as Attorney-General.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—From sources, the authority of which should not be doubted, it is learned that the position of attorney general to succeed Mr. McKenna, who will be nominated to the United States supreme bench to succeed Justice Field, has been offered to Governor Griggs of New Jersey, and that he has consented to accept. It is understood that his appointment was urged by Vice-President Hobart.

Some Time Will Be Granted.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The hearing by the interstate commerce commission on the question of extending the time within which the railroads of the country may comply with the provisions of the car coupler and train brake act, has concluded. No doubt is expressed that the commission will decide to grant the extension asked for by the roads.

FRENCH CHANGE THEIR IDEAS.

Beginning to Feel That Their Girls Should Learn to Work.

The Figaro has espoused the cause of the downtrodden French girl—whose convent education, dot and loveless marriage have long been a source of grief and sympathy to the liberty loving and uninformed American. The Figaro writer has been to England and he has discovered the trained nurse. Trained nurses in France are nuns. If a young woman of good family were to enter a French hospital as a student there would follow a scandal which could be heard around the world. French woman are the most practical of wives and mothers, but broken bones and diseases are not considered savory subjects for the consideration of young women. The Figaro thinks that this point of view must be changed, and the writer even admits that he knows of a "pretty young French protestant" who has entered one of the hospitals. "And," he adds, "I have not heard that she has been insulted." The writer urges the necessity of a practical education for every woman, rich or poor, and says that every girl should learn "those little secrets which make home life happy, and if need be to help earn bread. Those secrets have not changed since the days of Mme. de Maintenon and her school at Sant-Cyr. They are the arts of the milliner and the dressmaker, not the humble drudgery, but the part of the work which demands taste, tact, education and artistic instincts. They are, if one wishes, decorative art, china painting, not the little daubs done for amusement, but the real workmanlike work which finds a purchaser. They are the work of stenography and typewriting, and the hygienic science which prepares a woman for the exacting duties of a nurse. The young girl of the middle class, rich or poor, should have a vocation. And she can have it without running any risk of unpleasant experiences. Paris and the provincial cities are full of painting, singing and elocution classes. The mothers who take their daughters to these lessons have no intention of sending them to the school of Rome, or of some day putting them on the stage. Nevertheless, a girl can be taught the delicate and feminine art of making and trimming a hat without being obliged to become a milliner. If she marries, this knowledge will be as agreeable to her husband as the reciting of poetry; and if she does not marry and money should be needed her skillful fingers will be a sure resource. I rejoice in the knowledge that these ideas, so appropriate in the present day, are not merely dreams. Last winter I received a call from a progressive woman who proposed to open a school somewhat like those I have described (cooking and trade schools of Norway). I could not induce her to teach hygiene and train nurses for the sick, but she promised all sorts of wonders in the way of tailors, milliners and decorative artists. A letter received from her recently announces that she has already secured teachers and that the families are beginning to interest themselves."

NEW FACE IN CONGRESS.

Edmond H. Driggs to Represent the Third New York District.

Edmond H. Driggs, the silver Democratic candidate, was elected in the Third New York congressional district of Brooklyn in the recent election. He is the nephew of Marshall S. Driggs, well known in business circles in New York. Mr. Driggs is 32 years old. He was allied for several years with the Shepard Democracy of Brooklyn. Mr. Driggs became dissatisfied with the action of the Shepardite leaders last year and decided to become a member of the regular Democratic organization. He was a candidate for county clerk. He failed to secure this nomination, but showed sufficient strength to warrant the Democratic leaders in

5 DROPS [Trade Mark.]

HAS CURED MORE THAN 1,000,000 PEOPLE.

RHEUMATISM. FOR 30 DAYS YOU CAN TRY IT FOR 25 CTS.

GIVEN UP BY 14 DIFFERENT DOCTORS.

DEAR SIRS: I thought I would write a statement of my case, and how I was when I commenced using your wonderful "5 DROPS," as I feel truly grateful to think that our heavenly Father has endowed you with the knowledge to bring out such a wonderful medicine as your "5 DROPS."

I was a great sufferer for about four years. I was taken sick with vomiting and cramps and dizziness, so I could not sit up a minute, so they had to carry me in where I fell. Then I employed one of our city doctors; he said I was all broken down, and that I would never be able to work again; then I kept getting worse, and I employed another, and he said about the same. After a while I got a little better, then I was taken with cramps and pains in my elbows, hands, knees and feet. The torture of the pains was so great that I had to walk the floor night and day. I employed another doctor, and when he would say he could do no more for me, I would employ another and another till I had employed 14 different doctors, and had used every kind of patent medicine I could hear of. My teeth are all gone from the effect of the strong medicine. Some of the doctors said it was my kidneys, some said it was my liver and kidneys, and some called it Rheumatic Gout. My friends would say that I could not live a week. Two years ago my sister-in-law came from Nebraska to see me, and she said when she went away that she would never see me alive again. Thank God she is here again to see me, and she had just one look at me, then she said: "What did you ever get to do you so much good!" for she says: "I expected two years ago every letter I got to hear you were dead." All I can say is, it was wonderful—"5 DROPS" did it all. When I was taken sick I weighed about 150 pounds—I ran down to about 75 pounds, and I could not feed myself and had to be turned in bed. I now have taken your "5 DROPS" about three months, and can clean my own horse and harness it and drive it. People all look at me and say: "It is wonderful," for they thought my box was made for me. My cure is a great testimonial for your "5 DROPS." Now, if you want any more I can give it, and I can get testimonials from prominent men here that know just how I was.

HE HAD A GIANT MIND

HENRY FIELDING ONE OF THE WORLD'S NOTABLES.

The Only Authentic Portrait of Him Now in Existence—"Joseph Andrews," "Tom Jones," and "Amelia," His Imperishable Works.

HOGARTH'S sketch of Fielding is said to be the sole authentic portrait; and although it does not date from Fielding's lifetime, biographers agree as to its truthful likeness. It probably depicts Fielding in 1754, the last year of his life. At this date he was broken in health and prematurely old, his magnificent constitution was wrecked, and he was a martyr to gout. Of the handsome student from Leyden, who burst upon London in 1728, full of life and vigor, and eagerness for learning, little survived but that happy cheerfulness, which, he said, "was always natural to me." As he grew older his courage and fortitude became more evident. His intellect remained clear, but physically he was a wreck. One writer said:

"Considering the esteem with which he was held by artists, it was extraordinary that no portrait was made of him during life. He had often promised to sit for his friend, Hogarth, for whose good qualities and excellent genius he had entertained so high an esteem that he left in his writings many beautiful memorials of his affections."

The best known of Fielding's works are "Joseph Andrews," "Tom Jones," and "Amelia," which have placed him in the highest rank of British novelists. His greatest strength appears to have been in portraying characters of those of the lower order of society. His works display wit and vigorous and remarkable delineation, which unhappily is sometimes marred by coarseness and vulgarity. All of his works have been translated into the French language. Lady Mary Montagu, in speaking of him, said: "There was a great similitude between his character and that of Sir Richard Steele. Fielding had the advantage both in learning and in genius, but they were alike in wanting money in spite of their many friends, and would have wasted it if their hereditary lands had been as extensive as their imagination." In Tantonshire hall, Somersetshire, there stands a bust of Fielding by Miss Margaret Thomas, "which commends itself to our expectations and intelligence," says Austin Dobson. "In the reproduction she has sought to recall not so much the doomed invalid of the "Voyage to Lisbon," as the Fielding of Bow street and "Tom Jones," to whom experience had brought dignity without embittering his humanity. Her work is ideal in character; it suggests that mingling of humor and gravity which was native to the great genius who was at once the creator of 'Parson Adams' and the energetic magistrate and philanthropist who wrote 'The Proposal for the Poor.' It is a splendid portrayal of a man who was a contradiction of magnificent and pitifully frail qualities."

How Zola Rose.

Some twenty-five years ago Emil Zola was a clerk in Hachette's book store on the Boulevard St. Germain—passing rich on 80 franc a month. Today he is practically a millionaire. No living French writer has amassed more money than he from the products of his pen. His novels sell by the hundred thousand. On the first publication of any of his stories by a newspaper he received the equivalent of $5,000. His publisher subsequently pays him double that sum for the copyright of the work and gives him, moreover, a splendid royalty on its sale. It is no wonder, therefore, that under these circumstances the slim, raw-boned counter-jumper of a quarter of a century ago should have developed into the portly, pleasant-looking "bourgeois" of today.—Exchange.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a forty-five years' growth, and like those hardy lichens that garnish the crevices of Alaska's rocks, it flourishes perennially; its reputation has as firm a base as the rocks themselves. There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address

TRYING ORDEALS FOR WOMEN.

Mrs. Pinkham Tells How Women May Avoid Painful Examinations.

To a modest, sensitive, high-strung young woman, especially an unmarried woman, there is no more trying or painful ordeal than the "examinations," which are now so common in hospitals and private practice.

An examination by speculum, or otherwise, is sometimes a positive necessity in certain stages of many diseases peculiar to women, so at least it is declared by the profession. This would not be the case if patients heeded their symptoms in time.

If a young girl's blood is watery, her skin pale and waxy looking, her lips colorless, bowels torpid, digestion poor, her ears and temples throb and she is subject to headache, begin at once to build up her system with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Do not allow her to undergo a physical examination.

Here is a letter from a young lady who requests that her name should not be used, but gives her initials and street number so that any inquiry addressed to her will be received. She says:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—It affords me great pleasure to be able to say a few words in regard to the merits of your Vegetable Compound. I was tempted to try it after seeing the effects of it upon my mother, and now I feel like a new person. I am a stenographer and was troubled with falling of the womb and female weakness in general. I continued to work until I was so weak I could no longer walk, and the last day I was forced to stop and rest.

"I was then so ill that I was compelled to stay in bed, and so nervous that I could not hold anything in my hands. The least noise or surprise would cause my heart to beat so loudly, and I would become so weak that I could hardly stand. I suffered for almost a year. It is different now. I can go about my work with pleasure, while before, work was a drudge.

"Trusting that my words of praise may help some other afflicted person, and be of benefit to womankind in general, I remain, Yours in gratitude, L. H., 444 S. East St., Indianapolis, Ind."

The Greatest Discovery Yet.

W. M. Repine, editor Tiskilwa, Ill., "Cheif," says: "We won't keep house without Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs, and Colds. Experimented with many others, but never got the true remedy until we used Dr. King's New Discovery. No other remedy can take its place in our home, as in it we have a certain and sure cure for Coughs Colds, Whooping Coughs, etc." It is idle to experiment with other remedies, even it is urged on you as just as good as Dr. King's New Discovery. They are not so good, because this remedy has a record of cures and besides it is guaranteed. It never fails to satisfy. Trial bottles free at Harr's Drug Store.

Another way to reach the north pole is to join some of the Klondike companies now going up.

Eastern hotels are introducing edible bills of fare. Some day an enterprising eastern hotel man will startle the world by serving an edible meal.

That book agent who killed himself in Michigan probaby tried to tell the Hon. Hazen Pingree a few things and then was obliged to listen awhile himself.

Germany's foolish hostility to England, as voiced through her monarch, naturally gives offense to Austrian and Italian statesmen, and to that extent weakens the tie between the three nations. Thus far the net result of the kaiser's freaks in his efforts to isolate England has been the creation of a distrust toward himself among his friends which may, if his pranks are persisted in, isolate Germany.

Maurice Despres, an electrical engineer of Cordova, Spain, reports a remarkable shower of electrified rain which he recently witnessed. The day had been warm and windless, and about 5 in the evening the sun was overcast with dense clouds, lowering to the horizon. Soon after dark there was a flash of lightning, and two minutes later great drops of rain fell, which cracked faintly on touching the ground. From each of them sparks darted toward the walls, trees and soil they fell upon. The phenomenon lasted several seconds, and apparently ceased when the air between cloud and earth became saturated with moisture.

The college boy who wins the prize for the best essays or the best oration, or who graduates with the highest honors, is not in it today with the boy who kicks a goal from the field or gets around the end for a touchdown. The brilliant student remains in obscurity. The husky hero of the gridiron sees his picture in the papers, and reads with avidity column after column of fulsome rot about his feats on the football field. But the student still has an advantage over the athlete. In his maturer years he is much more likely to see his portrait among the list of those who have achieved greatness in the great battle of life.

A new use for onions has been discovered. Recently bloodhounds were turned loose upon the trail of some bank burglars in Indiana. The man hunt, however, lasted only a few minutes. Suddenly the leading dog began howling dismally and refused to go farther, and it was impossible to continue the chase. A prisoner now in jail at Ligonier has turned state's evidence and given the police all the facts concerning the burglary and the subsequent escape of the men. He says the bloodhounds were thrown off the scent without any trouble by rubbing an onion on the shoes worn by the burglars. He says that no bloodhounds can be induced to follow an onion trail. Dogs are a good deal like people, after all.

In teaching physiology, would it not be worth very much more to know a few facts about dress, diet, exercise, rest, sleep, good and bad air, than to number and name all the bones, or name and classify all the muscles? The bones will all keep their places and grow just as rapidly and firmly, whether numbered or unnumbered; but both mind and body will fare better if the lungs are not fed on bad air. So the muscles will expand and contract and develop and strengthen, whether counted and classified or not; but they and the whole system may slacken or totally stop their action if the stomach is supplied with unwholesome food. Let the study, therefore, be directed at first to parts of the system under control, and afterward, if there be time, to the parts not under control. These latter may be studied at leisure, for general information, as we study comets and eclipses.

A French scientist, M. Liebault, has probably had more experience and has done more to establish the claims of hypnotism than any modern physician. According to him, the dangers of hypnotism are non-existent if it be employed by fit and proper persons who, whether to themselves or others, suggest only what is in harmony with the physiological functions of the organism; otherwise the dangers are obvious. In itself the induced sleep like ordinary sleep, is a condition which tends to the equilibrium of nerve forces and of the organic movements which those forces excite. The special qualities required for the production of the hypnotic sleep are self-confidence, assurance of success and a persuasive manner on the part of a hypnotizer; on the part of the subject, the wish to be hypnotized, confidence in the hypnotizer and free consent to the imposition of his suggestion.

DAVENPORT, Dec. 12.—Another sensation will be sprung in the celebrated Behrens case, which has been a succession of surprises. Henry Langworth, the star witness for the defense, arrested some days ago for perjury, may yet be proven a trustworthy man, notwithstanding the state's claim to the contrary. The discovery is reported that Druggist Schlegle has not always placed the names of the purchasers of paris green on the poison register, and it is expected to show that Langworth did buy the poison to doctor a horse, as he stated. New Inventions.

Inventors sometimes make the mistake in passing by simple inventions as unimportant. A Council Bluffs, Ia., inventor will undoubtedly before long be mentioned as one of the inventors who made a fortune simply because he pressed a series of rings into a little circular disk of metal, resembling nothing so much as a bottom out of an oil can. This little invention, which we have mentioned before, forms a sounding toy and when properly vibrated produces simply wonderful results. Inventors interested in this most simple of late inventions, can obtain a free sample in addressing G. W. Sues & Co., registered patent lawyers, Bee Building, Omaha, Neb. George Caulfield's Journey

By Miss M. E. Braddon.

His friend had left him soon after dinner to go back to Grandchester by the nine o'clock train; and then came a dreary interval until ten, when the prisoner lay down on his pallet bed and slept soundly, exhausted by the bewildering emotions of the last twenty-four hours. He was very downhearted, now that he had before him the prospect of a week's solitude in that miserable cell, for Mr. Leworthy had told him that he should not return to Milldale until the day fixed for the adjourned inquiry, by which time he hoped to have unearthed the man who had used Mr. Elsdon's card.

An agitating surprise awaited Mr. Caulfield next morning. While he was breakfasting dismally upon tea and dry toast, the guardian of his solitude came in to tell him that a lady wished to see him.

"A lady!" cried the curate. "There must be some mistake. I don't know a cvreature in the town. Pray don't let me be made a show of, to gratify any one's morbid curiosity."

"Lord love you, sir, as if we should do such a thing! It's all right; the lady's got an order. She's a relative, no doubt."

The man withdrew into the stony passage outside; then came a rustling sound George Caulfield knew well—a sweeping, stately step, and an elderly lady, gray and tall and slim, came quickly in and threw her arms round his neck.

"Mother," cried the curate, "how could you do such a thing?"

"How could I do anything else?" said his mother, striving heroically to be cheerful. "Do you suppose I was going to stay in London after I received your letter? The postman brought the letter at seven, Sophia had my trunk packed by half-past, and Jane had a cab at the door—such good girls, and so anxious about you! I was at Euston by ten minutes past eight, and caught the train that leaves at eight-fifteen. I was at Milldale half an hour after midnight—too late to come here, of course, so I went to the nearest hotel. The chamber-maid told me they were sending your meals. I felt quite interested in them, and at home with them directly."

She was a wonderful old lady, carried herself so ravely, spoke so brightly, looked at her son with eyes so full of confidence and hope. He would have been unworthy of such a mother had he not faced his position unfalteringly. They sat down side by side on the prison bench, and he told her all that had happened since he wrote his letter to her, and spoke as if nothing were more certain than his speedy justification.

CHAPTER III.

WHILE George Caulfield was talk- to his mother the Vicar of Freshmead was plodding up and down the streets of Grandchester, eager, hopeful, determined to unravel the tangled skein of the nameless woman's fate. Who was she? what was she? Had she actually been murdered, and if so, for what reason? Who was the gainer by her death, and in what way?

Mr. Leworthy started at an advantage. E verybody in Grandchester knew him, and he knew everybody. The police were ready to confide in him freely. The local magistrates would be glad to help him. But on this occasion he was inclined to rely on his own wits. The police were at work for Mr. Brockham's client. If they succeeded, well and good. But the vicar was not going to work with them.

His first visit was to the office of a daily paper, where he handed in the fllowing advertisement: "Missing, since Nov. 30th, a young lady; when last seen she wore a Rob Roy tartan shawl, a brown-straw hat and blue gauee veil. Any one affording information will be handsomemly rewarded on applying to E. L., care of Mr. Brockbank, solicitor, Deansgate."

This advertisement Mr. Leworthy took to the three local dailies.

His next visit was to Mr. Elsden, of Briargate.

"A man would hardly make use of another man's card unless he had some business or social relations with that other man," reflected the vicar, as he tramped along, sturdy in bearing, determined in step. "A man does not pick up a visiting-card in the street."

He found Mr. Elsden elderly and plethoric, a man who rarely got through a business letter without stopping in the middle to mop his highly polished cranium with a crimson silk handkerchief. This gentleman was amiable, but not brilliant. He had read the report of yesterday's inquest, and was therefore posted in the facts; but he had no ideas to offer.

"How did that young man get hold of your card?" asked the vicar. "He must have picked it up in some illegitimate way, unless he is among the number of your personal acquaintance."

Mr. Elsden gave a supercilious laugh.

"I hope my friendships do not lie among secret murderers," he said.

"Of course, we all hope that, naturally, but one can never tell. My friend describes this young man as of gentlemanly appearance and good manners. Good-looking, too, quite an interesting countenance—pale, with dark eyes, silky brown mustache—what is generally called a poetic style of face."

The Grandchester merchant seemed to retire within himself, and to be absorbed in profound thought. Presently he gave a sigh, and began to mop his polished brow, and the barren arch above it, whereon no hair had grown for the last decade.

"I don't want to mix myself up in this business," he said at last. "It is sure to entail trouble."

"As a christian, as an honest man, you are bound not to withhold any information that can tend to exculpate the innocent," urged the vicar, with some warmth.

"But how do I know that I can give any such information?" demanded Mr. lsden, testily. "If I give utterance to my ideas I may be only putting you on a false scent."

"Better hazard that than withhold anything." ¼

"I know absolutely nothing. But your description might apply to a young man called Foy, who was in my employ three years ago."

"What character did he bear when you knew him?"

"Excellent. He left me of his own accord, in order to improve his position. He was a talented young man—first-rate accountant, good linguist—and I had no situation to give him worthy of his talents. He left me to go to Kibble & Umpleby's, packers, in Deansgate, as corresponding clerk. I was only able to give him seventy-five pounds a yeor. He was to have two hundred at Kibble's. They do a great deal of business with Spanish America and the French colonies, and they wanted a clerk who could write good French and Spanish."

"I see. Do you suppose that he is still at Kibble & Umpleby's?"

"I have not heard the contrary."

"Was this Mr. Foy a native of Grandchester? Had he family or friends here?"

"No, he was quite alone. I believe he was of French extraction. He used to boast that he was descended from some famous family called De Foix."

"I should be very grateful to you if you could give me any further information about this young man."

"What kind of information? My acquaintance with him never extended beyond my office. I know that he was clever. He was regular in his business habits, and I had every reason to suppose he was well behaved. He brought me a letter of recommendation from a firm at Lyons with which I do business. I engaged him on the strength of that letter."

"I see. Then he was a stranger in Grandchester? Something you can tell me, however—the house in which he lodged while he was in your employment. You must have known his address then?"

"Certainly," replied Mr. Elsden; and then he put his lips to an ivory mouth piece, and murmured some order down a gutta percha tube.

Five minutes afterward a clerk appeared with a slip of paper, which he laid before his employer.

"That is the address, sir."

Mrs. Elsden handed the paper to the vicar.

"There it is, sir. You see there is only one address, and the young man was with me nearly two years—an indication of steady habits, I think."

"No doubt. I dare say Mr. Foy is a most estimable person. But I must find the dark-eyed, pale-faced young man who gave your card to my friend, and whether I find him in Mr. Foy's shoes or in anybody else's, I'll make it rather hot for him."

And with this unchristian speech the vicar took leave of Mr. Elsden.

CHAPTER IV.

MR. Leworthy's next call was at Kibble & Umpleby's. Here he acted with greater subtlety. He asked to see the head clerk, and informed that gentleman that he had been recommended to apply there for a small service which he had been unable to get done anywhere else. He wanted a letter written to a correspondent at Cadiz, and he had not found anybody in Grandchester who knew enough Spanish to write such a letter for him. He had particular reasons for not writing in French or English, as his communication was a strictly private character, and the gentleman to whom he had occasion to write understood no language but his own.

"I am told you have a clerk who is a first-rate Spanish scholar," Mr. Leworthy said, in conclusion.

"Quite true, sir. Our foreign clerk, Mr. Foy, knows Spanish as well as he knows French, and can write you as good a letter in Italian or Portuguese as in either. It's rather lucky you looked in this morning, though. Tomorrow would have been too late."

"Why? Is he leaving you?"

The clerk grinned.

"Only a fortnight's holiday—rather an important event in his life. He's going to be married to-morrow morning—to the daughter of our junior partner, the youngest Miss Umpleby."

"Oh, he is going to be married tomorrow morning! I congratulate him—and the young lady. Has it been a long engagement?"

"A year and a half. The old gentleman was very much against it at the first—thought his daughter might have looked higher—as of course she might, though she's one of a large family. But the firm has been pleased with the young man, and the young man has got a footing in the firm's houses, which is more than the common ruck of us do—unless it's a bit of a kick-up at Christmas time, in a condescending way, which we may appreciate or may not, according to the bent of our minds. But this young Foy is musical, and he's half a foreigner, and those two things have stood him in good stead with the firm's families; and the upshot of it all is that he's going to be married to the youngest Miss Umpleby the day after to-morrow.

"Could I see him for a few minutes? I shan't detain him long."

"Certainly, sir; I'm sure he'll be happy to oblige you," said the clerk, who knew all about the Vicar of Freshmead, one of the most popular men within twenty miles of Grandchester.

The clerk went to fetch Mr. Foy, and returned presently with the accomplished young man. The vicar was a student of character. He had not spent all his days amidst the green pastures of Freshmead. Seven years of his life had been devoted to preaching and teaching, and doing all manner of good works, in one of the vilest and most populous districts of East London. He had had plenty to do with scoundrelism in his time; he knew a scoundrel when he saw one, and his first glance at Gaston Foy convinced him that this young favorite of fortune was as dark a villian as ever wore a smooth face to gull the world.

Yes, despite his polished manners, his gentle and insinuating smile, and the oily blandness of his legato tones, the vicar made up his mind that this was the villain he wanted. This was the man who had brought his dying victim to the railway station and transferred the burden of his crime to a stranger.

George Caulfield had minutely described the man's appearance, and this man, in every feature, corresponded with that description. That he seemed perfectly happy and at ease did not surprise Mr. Leworthy. To a creature of this kind dissimulation was second nature.

The vicar stated his business, and sat down at the clerk's desk to write a rough draft of the letter to be translated, but after writing a sentence he stopped abruptly.

"It's a business that requires some thought," he said. "If you'll look in at my hotel this evening and let me dictate the letter quietly there, I shall esteem it a favor. I won't keep you half an hour, and you'll be doing me an inestimable service."

Mr. Foy looked at him rather suspiciously.

"My time is not my own just now," he said. "If you'll send me your letter I'll put it into Spanish for you, but I have no time to call at your hotel."

This was said with a decided tone that settled the question.

"I see," thought the vicar. "He is not the man to walk into any little trap that I may set for him."

"I'll send the letter to your private address this evening," he said.

"You had better send it here. I live a little way out of Grandchester."

The vicar assented, wished Mr. Foy "good morning," and went away. Ten minutes afterward he went back to Kibble & Umpleby's, saw the clerk he had seen first, and said:

"I may as well have Mr. Foy's address, in case I shouldn't be able to get my letter written before he leaves business."

"Certainly, sir. Mr. Foy lives at Parminter—Rose Cottage, Lawson Lane."

"Thanks. I may not want to send to him there, but it's as well to be on the safe side. Good morning."

"Good morning, sir," said the clerk, aloud. "Fidgety old gentleman," he ejaculated, inwardly.

YOU CAN'T STOP 'EM.

The Fury of an Unfettered Element Fails to Crush Them—The Fire Fiend Defied.

The news comes from Attica, Ind., of the destruction, by fire, of the big laboratory and office building of the Sterling Remedy company, makers of Cascarets Candy Cathartic and No-To-Bac, the original guaranteed tobacco habit cure. The preparations made by this big corporation are known throughout the world.

The fire broke out in one of the packing rooms on the third floor during the noon hour, and had made considerable headway before it was discovered.

The Sterling Remedy company is the principal industry of the beautiful little city of Attica, employing several hundred people, besides being affiliated with the interests at the Indiana Mineral Springs, the famous Magno-Mud Cure. The entire population was worked up to a frenzy of excitement.

Meanwhile the almost proverbial energy and presence of mind of "Hustling" Harry Kramer, the general manager of The Sterling Remedy company, was displayed. He was the coolest man at the scene. He quietly walked away, and secured a big carriage show room near by, and had all office furniture, charred and delapidated as it was, taken there. Several shipments were made the same evening from goods saved, and on Friday morning, all departments were at work in various rooms about town, while a gang of men were cleaning away the wreckage preliminary to rebuilding.

The actual damage amounts to many thousands of dollars; the loss due to interruption of business and confusion of detail is inestimatable, but pluck and energy of one man will turn defeat into victory and move the wheels of business to ever-increasing speed. Nothing can stop the success of Cascarets and No-To-Bac with such characteristic force behind them.

What man has done, woman can undo.

HOW TO WASH WITH EASE.

Any Woman, With a Little Experience, Can Wash Garments Satisfactorily.

That the family washing cannot be satisfactorily done with a scant supply of hard water and inferior soap is a fact not always understood by housekeepers, yet these inconveniences are the cause of yellow clothes and faded garments. Strong lye soap, made in the home kitchens, may have answered for the use of our grandmothers, and the cheap laundry soap found in the village stores half a century ago was thought good enough for women who had learned to make hard rubbing do the work which good soap should have done. But in this age of progress labor-saving appliances are used by intelligent women, and in no place do they count for more than in the laundry. After assorting the clothes, put the linens in a tub nearly full of hot water, and rub them with Ivory Soap. As each piece is washed, it should be wrung out, and placed in a clean tub. When all are washed pour boiling water over, and let stand until cool, then rinse, and starch the clothes. After the linens are washed, the white wearing clothes should be washed in the same way, then the colored garments taken through fresh suds, rinsed, starched, and hung on the line. When dry each piece should be taken from the line, shaken out, sprinkled, folded and laid in a basket until morning, when they should be carefully ironed. ELIZA R. PARKER.

His Great Mistake.

CAUSE FOR ALARM.

How baldness begins.

How to prevent it.

Every person, male or female, shrinks from baldness. It adds to the appearance of age and is a serious discomfort. The cases are rare when the falling out of the hair may not be stopped, and a new and healthy growth of the hair promoted. The hair grows in the scalp like a plant in the soil. If a plant flourishes, it must have constant attention; it must be watered regularly and find its food in the soil where it is rooted. It's so with the hair. Neglect is usually the beginning of baldness. Dandruff is allowed to thicken on the scalp. The hair begins to loosen. The scalp loses its vitality. The hair, insufficiently nourished, begins to fade and to fall. The instant need in such a case is some practical preparation which, supplying the needed nourishment to the scalp, will feed the hair, give it strength, and so produce a strong and healthy growth. All this is done by Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor, the most practical and valuable preparation for the hair that can be obtained. It tones up the scalp, does away with dandruff, stops the hair from falling, restores the original color to gray or faded hair, and gives an abundant and glossy growth. Those who are threatened with approaching baldness will be interested in the following voluntary statement, made by Alderman S. J. Green, of Spencer, Iowa. He writes:

"About four months ago, my hair commenced falling out so rapidly that I became alarmed, and being recommended Dr. Ayer's Hair Vigor by a druggist, I resolved to try this preparation. I have been now using it for three months, and am much gratified to find that my hair has ceased falling out and also that hair which had been turning gray for the past five years has been restored to its original color, dark brown. It gives me much pleasure to recommend this dressing."—S. J. GREEN, Alderman, Spencer, Iowa.

Those who are interested in preserving and beautifying the hair will do well to send for Dr. Ayer's Curebook, A story of cures told by the cured. This book of 100 pages is sent free, on request, by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

How to Cure Phneumonia.

At this time of the year a cold is very easily contracted, and if left to run its course without the aid of some reliable cough medicine is liable to result in that dread disease, phneumonia. We know of no better remedy to cure a cough than Chamberlin's Cough Remedy. We have used it quite extensively and it had always given satisfactson.—Olagah, Ind. Ter. Chief. This is the only remedy that is known to be a certain preventive of phneumonia. Among the many thousands who have used it for colds and lagrippe, we have never yet learned of a single case having resulted in phneumonia. Wheat. corn and buckwheat fed to fattening fowls will whiten the flesh.

It is often a good plan to feed corn on the cob and let the fowls do the shelling.

Hens will not lay when their combs are frosted. This is one reason why warm, dry quarters are necessary.

To keep a hen in good condition for laying she should be obliged to exercise for her food; slow feeding promotes digestion.

The ducks intented for winter and spring layers should not be made to fat.

It is easy to catch a cold and just as easy to get rid of it if you commence early to use One Minute Cough Cure. It cures coughs, colds, bronchitis, phneumonia. and all throat and lung troubles. It is pleasant to take, safe to use and sure to cure. Harr.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

McKinley's First Annual Address to Congress.

CONGRATULATES THE COUNTRY

Favors the Currency Plan Submitted by Secretary Gage — Cuban War Gets Considerable Attention — Recognition Not Advised—Bimetallic Commission Not Yet Discharged — Hawaii and Other Countries.

Following is the full text of President McKinley's message to Congress, which met Monday:

To the Senate and House of Representatives: It gives me pleasure to extend greeting to the LVth congress assembled at the seat of government, with many of whose senators and representatives I have been associated in the legislative service.

The extra session of this congress, which closed July last, enacted important legislation, and while its full effect has not yet been realized, what it has already accomplished assures us of its timeliness and wisdom. To test its permanent value further time will be required and the people, satisfied with its operation and results thus far, are in no mind to withhold from it a fair trial.

Finance Question Next.

Tariff legislation having been settled by the extra session of congress, the question next pressing for consideration is that of the currency. The work of putting our finance upon a sound basis, difficult as it may seem, will appear easily when we recall the financial operations of the government since 1866. On the 30th day of June of that year we had outstanding demand liabilities in the sum of $728,868,447.41. On the 1st of January, 1879, these liabilities had been reduced to $443,889,495.88. Of our interest-bearing obligations the figures are even more striking. On July 1, 1866, the principal of the interest-bearing debt of the government was $2,332,331,208. On the 1st day of July, 1893, this sum had been reduced to $585,037,100, or an aggregate reduction of $1,747,294,108. The interest-bearing debt of the United States on the 1st day of December, 1897, was $847,365,620. The government money now outstanding (December 1) consists of $346,681,016 of United States notes, $107,793,280 of treasury notes, issued by authority of the law of 1890; $384,963,503 of silver certificates and $61,280,761 of standard silver dollars.

With the great resources of the government and with the honorable example of the past before us, we ought not to hesitate to enter upon a currency revision which will make our demand obligations less onerous to the government and relieve our financial laws from ambiguity and doubt. The brief review of what was accomplished from the close of the war to 1893 makes unreasonable and groundless any distrust either of our financial ability or soundness; while the situation from 1893 to 1897 must admonish congress of the immediate necessity of so legislating as to make the return of the conditions then prevailing impossible.

Many Plans Are Proposed.

There are many plans proposed as a remedy for the evil. Before we can find the true remedy we must appreciate the real evil. It is not that our currency of every kind is not good, for every dollar of it is good; good because the government's pledge is out to keep it so, and that pledge will not be broken. However, the guaranty of our purpose to keep the pledge will be best shown by advancing toward its fulfillment. The evil of the present system is found in the great cost to the government of maintaining the parity of our different forms of money—that is, keeping all of them at par with gold. We surely cannot be longer heedless of the burden this imposes upon the people, even under fairly prosperous conditions, while the last four years have demonstrated that it is not only an expensive charge upon the government, but a dangerous menace to the national credit. It is manifest that we must devise some plan to protect the government against bond issues for repeated redemptions. We must either curtail the opportunity for speculation, made easy by the multiplied redemptions of our demand obligations, or increase the gold reserve for their redemption. We have $900,000,000 of currency which the government by solemn enactment has undertaken to keep at par with gold. Nobody is obliged to redeem in gold but the government. The banks are not required to redeem in gold. The government is obliged to keep equal with gold all its outstanding currency and coin obligations, while its receipts are not required to be paid in gold. They are paid in every kind of money but gold, and the only means by which the government can with certainty get gold is by borrowing. It can get it in no other way when it most needs it. The government without any fixed gold revenue is pledged to maintain gold redemption, which it has steadily and faithfully done, and which under the authority now given it will continue to do.

Gold Must Be Replenished.

The law which requires the government after having redeemed its United States notes to pay them out again as current funds demands a constant replenishment of the gold reserve. This is especially so in times of business panic and when the revenues are insufficient to meet the expenses of the government. At such times the government has no other way to supply its deficit and maintain redemption but through the increase of its bonded debt, as during the administration of my predecessor, when $262,315,400 of four- and a half per cent bonds were issued and sold and the proceeds used to pay the expenses of the government in excess of the revenues and sustain the gold reserve. While it is true that the greater part of the proceeds of these bonds were used to supply deficient revenue, a considerable portion was required to maintain the gold reserve. With our revenues equal to our expenses there would be no deficit requiring the issuance of bonds. But if the gold reserve falls below $100,000,000, how will it be replenished except by selling more bonds? Is there any other way practicable under existing law? The serious question then is, shall we continue the policy that has been pursued in the past—that is, when the gold reserve reaches the point of danger issue more bonds and supply the needed gold, or shall we provide other means to prevent these recurring drains upon the gold reserve? If no further legislation is had and the policy of selling bonds is to be continued, then congress should give the secretary of the treasury authority to sell bonds at long or short periods, bearing a less rate of interest than is now authorized by law.

I earnestly recommend, as soon as the receipts of the government are quite sufficient to pay all the expenses of the government that, when any of the United States notes are presented for redemption in gold and are redeemed in gold such notes shall be kept and set apart, and only paid out in exchange for gold. This is an obvious duty.

To Maintain the Reserve.

If the holder of the United States note prefers the gold and gets it from the government he should not receive back from the government a United States note without paying gold in exchange for it. The reason for this is made all the more apparent when the government issues an interest-bearing debt to provide gold for the redemption of United States notes—a non-interest-bearing debt. Surely it should not pay them out again except on demand and for gold. If they are put out in any other way they may return again to be followed by another bond issue to redeem them—another interest-bearing debt to redeem a non-interest-bearing debt. In my view it is of the utmost importance that the government should be relieved from the burden of providing all the gold required for exchanges and export. This responsibility is alone borne by the government without any of the usual and necessary banking powers to help itself. The banks do not feel the strain of gold redemption. The whole strain rests upon the government and the size of the gold reserve in the treasury has come to be, with or without reason, the signal of danger or of security. This ought to be stopped. If we are to have an era of prosperity in the country, with sufficient receipts for the expenses of the government, we may feel no immediate embarrassment from our present currency; but the danger still exists and will be ever present, menacing us so long as the existing system continues. And, besides, it is in times of adequate revenues and business tranquillity that the government should prepare for the worst. We cannot avoid, without serious consequences, the wise consideration and prompt solution of this question. The secretary of the treasury has outlined a plan in great detail for the purpose of removing the threatened recurrence of a depleted gold reserve, and to save us from future embarrassment on that account. To this plan I invite your careful consideration.

Indorses Secretary Gage.

I concur with the secretary of the treasury in his recommendation that national banks be allowed to issue notes to the face value of the bonds which they have deposited for circulation, and that the tax on circulating notes secured by deposit of such bonds be reduced to one-half of one per cent per annum. I also join him in recommending that authority be given for the establishment of national banks with a minimum capital of $25,000. This will enable the smaller villages and agricultural regions of the country to be supplied with currency to meet their needs.

Situation in Cuba Grave.

The revolution which began in 1868 lasted for ten years despite the strenuous efforts of the successive peninsular governments to suppress it. Then, as now, the government of the United States testified its grave concern and offered its aid to put an end to bloodshed in Cuba. The overtures made by Gen. Grant were refused and the war dragged on, entailing great loss of life and treasure and increased injury to American interests, besides throwing enhanced burdens of neutrality on the government. In 1878 peace was brought about by the truce of Zanjon, obtained by negotiations between the Spanish commander, Martinez de Campos, and the insurgent leaders.

The present insurrection broke out in February, 1895. It is not my purpose at this time to recall its remarkable increase or to characterize its tenacious resistance, against the enormous forces massed against it by Spain. The revolt and the efforts to subdue it carried destruction to every quarter of the island, developing wide proportions and defying the efforts of Spain for its suppression.

The civilized code of war has been disregarded, no less so by the Spaniards than by the Cubans.

The existing conditions cannot but fill this government and the American people with the gravest apprehension. There is no desire on the part of our people to profit by the misfortunes of Spain. We have only the desire to see the Cubans prosperous and contented, enjoying that measure of self-control which is the inalienable right of man, protected in their right to reap the benefit of the exhaustless treasures of their country.

The offer made by my predecessor in April, 1896, tendering the friendly offices of this government failed. Any mediation on our part was not accepted. In brief, the answer read: "There is no effectual way to pacify Cuba unless it begins with the actual submission of the rebels to the mother country." Then only could Spain act in the promised direction of her own motion and after her own plan.

Calls Spain's Policy Cruel.

The cruel policy of concentration was initiated February 16, 1896. The productive districts controlled by the Spanish armies were depopulated. The agricultural inhabitants were herded in and about the garrison towns, their lands laid waste and their dwellings destroyed. This policy of the late cabinet of Spain was justified as a necessary measure of war and as a means of cutting off supplies from the insurgents. It has utterly failed as a war measure. It was not civilized warfare. It was extermination.

Against this abuse of the rights of war I have felt constrained on repeated occasions to enter the firm and earnest protest of this government. There was much of public condemnation of the treatment of American citizens by alleged illegal arrests and long imprisonment awaiting trial or pending protracted judicial proceedings.

I felt it my first duty to make instant demand for the release or speedy trial of all American citizens under arrest. Before the change of the Spanish cabinet in October last, twenty-two prisoners, citizens of the United States, had been given their freedom.

For the relief of our own citizens suffering because of the conflict the aid of congress was sought in a special message, and under the appropriation of April 4, 1897, effective aid has been given to American citizens in Cuba, many of them at their own request having been returned to the United States.

The instructions given to our new minister to Spain before his departure for his post directed him to impress upon that government the sincere wish of the United States to lend its aid toward the ending of the war in Cuba by reaching a peaceful and lasting result, and honorable alike to Spain and to the Cuban people.

These instructions recited the character and duration of the contest, the widespread losses it entails, the burdens and restraints it imposes upon us, with constant disturbance of national interests and the injury resulting from an indefinite continuance of this state of things.

Time Ripe for a Change.

It was stated at this juncture our government was constrained to seriously inquire if the time was not ripe when Spain, of her own volition, moved by her own interests and every sentiment of humanity, should not put a stop to this destructive war and make proposals of settlement honorable to herself and just to her Cuban colony. It was urged that as a neighboring nation, with large interests in Cuba, we could be required to wait only a reasonable time for the mother country to establish its authority and restore order within the borders of the island; that we could not contemplate an indefinite period for the accomplishment of this result.

No solution was proposed to which the slightest idea of humiliation to Spain could attach and indeed precise proposals were withheld to avoid embarrassment to that government. All that was asked or expected was that some safe way might be speedily provided and permanent peace restored. It so chanced that the consideration of this offer, addressed to the same Spanish administration which had declined the tenders of my predecessor and which for more than two years had poured men and treasure into Cuba in the fruitless effort to suppress the revolt, fell to others.

Between the departure of General Woodford, the new envoy, and his arrival in Spain, the statesman who had shaped the policy of his country, fell by the hand of an assassin and, although the cabinet of the late premier still held office and received from our envoy the proposals he bore, that cabinet gave place within a few days thereafter to a new administration, under the leadership of Sagasta.

The reply to our note was received on the 23d day of October. It is in the direction of a better understanding.

Recognized as Friendly Power.

It appreciates the friendly purposes of this government. It admits that our country is deeply affected by the war in Cuba and that its desires for peace are just. It declares that the present Spanish government is bound by every consideration to a change of policy that should satisfy the United States and pacify Cuba within a reasonable time.

To this end Spain has decided to put into effect the political reforms heretofore advocated by the present premier, without halting for any consideration in the path which in its judgment leads to peace. The military operations, it is said, will continue, but will be humane and conducted with all regard for private rights, being accompanied by political action leading to the autonomy of Cuba while guarding Spanish sovereignty.

This, it is claimed, will result in investing Cuba with a distinct personality; the island to be governed by an executive and by a local council of chamber, reserving to Spain the control of the foreign relations, the army and navy and the judicial administration. To accomplish this the present government proposes to modify existing legislation by decree, leaving the Spanish cortes, with the aid of Cuban senators and deputies, to solve the economic problem and properly distribute the existing debt.

In the absence of a declaration of the measures that this government proposes to take in carrying out its proffer of good offices it suggests that Spain be left free to conduct military operations and grant political reforms, while the United States, for its part, shall enforce its neutral obligations and cut off the assistance which it is asserted the insurgents receive from this country.

The supposition of an indefinite prolongation of the war is denied. It is asserted that the western provinces are well-nigh reclaimed; that the planting of cane and tobacco therein has been resumed and that by force of arms and new and ample reforms very early and complete pacification is hoped for.

Better State of Affairs Predicted.

The immediate amelioration of existing conditions under the new administration of Cuban affairs is predicted ,and therewithal the disturbance and all occasion for any change of attitude on the part of the United States. Discussion of the question of the international duties and responsibilities of the United States as Spain understands them is presented, with an apparent disposition to charge us with failure in this regard.

* * *

Belligerency Not Favored.

I regard the recognition of the belligerency of the Cuban insurgents as now unwise and therefore inadmissible. Should that step hereafter be deemed wise as a measure of right and duty the executive will take it.

On the Hawaiian Matter.

By a special message dated the sixteenth day of June last, I laid before the senate a treaty signed that day by the plenipotentiaries of the United States and of the republic of Hawaii, having for its purpose the incorporation of the Hawaiian islands as an integral part of the United States, and under its sovereignty. The senate, having removed the injunction of secrecy, although the treaty is still pending before that body, the subject may be properly referred to in this message because the necessary action of congress is required to determine by legislation many details of the eventual union should the fact of annexation be accomplished, as I believe it should be.

Recommends a Confirmation.

If the treaty is confirmed, as every consideration of dignity and honor requires, the wisdom of congress will see to it that avoiding abrupt assimilation of elements perhaps hardly yet fitted to share in the highest franchises of citizenship, and having due regard to the geographical conditions, the most just provisions for self-rule in local matters with the largest political liberties as an integral part of our nation will be accorded to the Hawaiians. No less is due to a people who, after nearly five years of demonstrated capacity to fulfill the obligations of self-governing statehood, come of their own free will to merge their destinies in our body politic.

As to Bimetallic Agreement.

Under the provisions of the act of congress approved March 3, 1897, for the promotion of an international agreement respecting bimetallism, I appointed on the 14th day of April, 1897, the Hon. Edward O. Wolcott of Colorado, the Hon. Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois and the Hon. Charles J. Paine of Massachusetts as speciay envoys to represent the United States. They have been diligent in their efforts to secure the co-operation of European countries in the international settlement of the question, but up to this time have not been able to secure an agreement contemplated by their mission.

The gratifying action of our great sister republic of France in joining this country in the attempt to bring about an agreement among the principal commercial nations of Europe whereby a fixed and relative value between gold and silver shall be secured furnishes assurance that we are not alone among the larger nations of the world in realizing the international character of the problem and in the desire of reaching some wise and practical solution of it.

Meanwhile it gives me satisfaction to state that the special envoys have already demonstrated their ability and fitness to deal with the subject, and it is to be earnestly hoped that their labors may result in an international agreement which will bring about the recognition of both gold and silver as money upon such terms and with such safeguards as will secure the use of both metals upon a basis which shall work no injustice to any class of our citizens.

Work on Revenue Provisions.

In order to execute as early as possible the provisions of the third and fourth sections of the revenue act approved July 24, 1897, I appointed the Hon. John A. Kasson of Iowa a special commissioner plenipotentiary to undertake the requisite negotiations with foreign countries desiring to avail themselves of these provisions. The negotiations are now proceeding with several governments, both European and American.

Protection of the Fur Seals.

The efforts which had been made during the two previous years by my predecessor to secure better protection to the fur seals in the north Pacific ocean and Bering sea were renewed at an early date by this administration, and have been pursued with earnestness. Upon my invitation the governments of Japan and Russia sent delegates to Washington and an international conference was held during the months of October and November last, wherein it was unanimously agreed that under the existing regulations this species of useful animals was threatened with extinction, and that an international agreement of all the interested powers was necessary for their adequate protection.

International Arbitration.

International arbitration cannot be omitted from the list of subjects claiming our consideration. Events have only served to strengthen the general views on this question expressed in my inaugural address. The best sentiment of the civilized world is moving toward the settlement of differences between nations without resorting to the horrors of war. Treaties embodying these humane principles on broad lines without in any way imperiling our interests or our honor shall have my constant encouragement.

Resources of the Navy.

The present immediately effective force of the navy consists of four battleships of the first class, two of the second and forty-eight other vessels, ranging from armored cruisers to torpedo boats There are under construction five battleships of the first class, sixteen torpedo boats and one submarine boat. No provision has yet been made for the armor of three of the five battleships, as it has been impossible to obtain it at the price fixed by congress. It is of great importance that congress provide this armor, as until then the ships are of no fighting value. The present naval force, especially in view of its increase by the ships now under construction, while not as large as that of a few other powers, is a formidable force; its vessels are the very best of each type; and with the increase that should be made to it from time to time in the future, and careful attention to keeping it in a high state of efficiency and repair, it is well adapted to the necessities of the country. The great increase of the navy which has taken place in recent years was justified by the requirements for national defense and has received public approbation. The time has now arrived, however, when this increase, to which the country is committed, should, for a time, take the form of increased facilities commensurate with the increase of our naval vessels. It is an unfortunate fact that there is only one dock on the Pacific coast capable of docking our largest ships, and only one on the Atlantic coast, and that the latter has for the last six or seven months been under repair, and therefore incapable of use. Immediate steps should be taken to provide three or four docks of this capacity on the Atlantic coast, at least one on the Pacific coast and a floating dock on the gulf. This is the recommendation of a very competent board, appointed to investigate the subject. There should also be ample provision made for powder and projectiles, and other munitions of war, and for an increased number of officers and enlisted men. Some additions are also necessary to our navy yards for the repair and care of our larger number of vessels. As there are now on the stocks five battleships of the largest class, which cannot be completed for a year or two, I concur with the recommendation of the secretary of the navy for an appropriation authorizing the construction of one battleship for the Pacific coast, where at present there is only one in commission and one under construction, while on the Atlantic coast there are three in commission and four under construction; and also that several torpedo boats be authorized in connection with our general system of coast defense.

Alaska Requires Attention.

The territory of Alaska requires the prompt and early attention of congress. The conditions now existing demand material changes in the laws relating to the territory. The great influx of population during the past summer and fall and the prospect of a still larger immigration in the spring will not permit us to longer neglect the extension of civil authority within the territory or postpone the establishment of a more thorough government.

Military Force Is Necessary.

I concur with the secretary of war in his suggestions as to the necessity for a military force in the territory of Alaska for the protection of persons and property. Already a small force, consisting of twenty-five men, with two officers, under command of Lieut.-Col. Randall of the 8th infantry, has been sent to St. Michael to establish a military post. As it is to the interest of the government to encourage the settlement of the country and its duty to follow up its citizens with the benefit of its legal machinery, I earnestly urge upon congress the establishment of a system of government with such flexibility as will enable it to adjust itself to the future areas of greatest population. The startling, though possibly exaggerated reports from the Yukon river country of the probable shortage of food for the large number of people who are wintering there without the means of leaving the country are confirmed in such measure as to justify bringing the matter to the attention of congress. Access to that country in winter can be had only by the passes from Dyea and vicinity, which is a most difficult and perhaps an impossible task. However, should these reports of the suffering of our fellow-citizens be further verified, every effort at any cost should be made to carry them relief.

Sale of the Union Pacific.

The Union Pacific railway main line was sold under the decree of the United States court for the district of Nebraska on the 1st and 2d of November of this year. The amount due the government consisted of the principal of the subsidy bonds, $27,236,512, and the accrued interest thereon, $31,211,711.75, making the total indebtedness $58,448,223.75. The bid at the sale covered the first mortgage lien and the entire mortgage claim of the government, principal and interest. The sale of the subsidized portion of the Kansas Pacific line, upon which the government holds a second mortgage lien, has been postponed at the instance of the government to December 16, 1897. The debt of this division of the Union Pacific railway to the government on November 1, 1897, was the principal of the subsidy bonds, $6,303,000, and the unpaid and accrued interest thereon, $6,626,690.33, making a total of $12,929,690.33.

The sale of this road was originally advertised for November 4, but for the purpose of securing the utmost public notice of the event it was postponed until December 16, and a second advertisement of the sale was made. By decree of the court the upset price on the sale of the Kansas Pacific will yield to the government the sum of $2,500,000 over all prior liens, costs and charges. If no other or better bid is made this sum is all that the government will receive on its claim of nearly $13,000,000. The government has no information as to whether there will be other bidders or a better bid than the minimum amount herein stated. The question presented therefore is whether the government shall, under the authority given it by the act of March 3, 1887, purchase or redeem the road in the event that a bid is not made by private parties covering the entire government claim.

How It Must Qualify.

To qualify the government to bid at the sale will require a deposit of $900,000, as follows: In the government cause $500,000 and in each of the first mortgage causes $200,000, and in the latter the deposit must be in cash. Payment at the sale is as follows: Upon the acceptance of the bid, a sum which the amount already deposited shall equal 15 per cent of the bid; the balance in installments thirty, forty and fifty days after the confirmation of the sale. The lien on the Kansas Pacific prior to that of the government on July 30, 1897, principal and interest, amounted to $7,281,048.11. The government, therefore, should it become the highest bidder, will have to pay the amount of the first mortgage lien.

I believe that under the act of 1887 it has the authority to do this, and in absence of any action by congress, I shall direct the secretary of the treasury to make the necessary deposit as required by the court's decree to qualify as a bidder and to bid at the sale a sum which will at least equal the principal of the debt due to the government; but suggest, in order to remove all controversy, that an amendment of the law be immediately passed explicitly giving such powers and appropriating in general terms whatever sum is sufficient therefor.

In so important a matter as the government becoming the possible owner of railroad property, which it perforce must conduct and operate, I feel constrained to lay before congress these facts for its consideration and action before the consummation of the sale. It is clear to my mind that the government should not permit the property to be sold at a price which will yield less than one-half of the principal of its debt and less than one-fifth of its entire debt, principal and interest. But whether the government, rather than accept less than its claim, should become a bidder and thereby the owner of the property, I submit to congress for action.

Views on Civil Service.

The important branch of our government, known as the civil service, the practical improvement of which has long been a subject of earnest discussion, has of late years received increased legislative and executive approval. During the past few months the service has been placed upon a still firmer basis of business methods and personal merit. While the right of our veteran soldiers to reinstatement in deserving cases has been asserted, dismissals for merely political reasons have been carefully guarded against, the examinations for admittance to the service enlarged and at the same time rendered less technical and more practical and a distinct advance has been made by giving a hearing before dismissal upon all cases where incompetency is charged or demand made for the removal of officials in any of the departments.

* * *

I am forced by the length of this message to omit many important references to affairs of the government with which congress will have to deal at the present session. They are fully discussed in the departmental reports, to all of which I invite your earnest attention. The estimates of the expenses of the government by the several departments will, I am sure, have your careful scrutiny. While the congress may not find it an easy task to reduce the expenses of the government, it should not encourage their increase. These expenses will, in my judgment, admit of a decrease in many branches of the government without injury to the public service. It is a commanding duty to keep the appropriations within the receipts of the government and thus avoid a deficit.

WILLIAM M'KINLEY.

MIXED PARAGRAPHS.

Berlin has no "slums," as we understand them. Even in the poorest quarters of the city the streets are paved with asphalt, and are kept faultlessly clean.

According to Boston papers, men have now gone out of service as telephone operators in that city. Here is one occupation, at least, claimed exclusively by women.

The red spider, which it was hoped would destroy the water hyacinths in Florida, has not succeeded in that line. The plants seem to grow faster than the insect can destroy them.

ALL OVER THE WORLD

GERMANY'S LAND GRAB.

BERLIN, Dec. 6.—The German reinforcements which will soon be sent to Kiao Chau bay will consist of four companies of marines, consisting of 23 officers and 1,200 men, a company of naval artillery, numbering 200 men, and several pieces of field artillery and a number of machine guns.

LONDON, Dec. 8.—A special dispatch from Shanghai says: Captain Becker with 210 marines, left Kiao Chau bay to occupy the surrounding villages, whence they proceeded to capture the city. The Chinese forts opened fire and the Germans replied, killing three of the garrison, which thereupon fled in disorder. The Chinese general in command was captured but afterwards liberated. Several German soldiers were injured by stones flung by the inhabitants of the villages. In return for this the head men of those villages were beaten with bamboo sticks by order of the German commander. It is reported here that China is willing to pay an indemnity of 1,000.000 taels (about $785,250) and to grant all the German demands, including the temporary cession of Kiao Chau bay and adjoining territory.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—A dispatch to the Times from Pekin confirms the report that China, hoping for the evacuation of Kiao Chau, agrees unconditionally to all the demands of Germany.

LONDON, Dec. 9.—Advices from Paris say three French cruisers have been ordered to prepare for immediate dispatch for China.

PEKIN, Dec. 13.—The German-Chinese difficulty is practically settled. Germans refuse to discuss the occupation of Kiao-Chau bay. The governor of Shan Tung is removed from office. No monopoly of the mines and railroads are conceded to Germany, but that country is given preference. The area immediately surrounding Kiao-Chau bay is set apart exclusively for Germany. China yields on all other points.

LYNCHED FOR MURDERING SIX.

Mississippi Negro Meets Violent Death at Hands of a Mob.

WESSON, Miss., Dec. 12.—Charles Jones, the negro who murdered Mrs. Brown Smith and four children near here, was captured and lynched by a mob. Jones visited the Smith home when the husband was absent at work and brutally assaulted the wife and then brained her with a club. Then to hide his guilt he began killing her six children, only sparing the babe, which was left untouched. The 5-year-old girl regained consciousness and told her father the name of the brute. The murdered mother and four children were found dead and dying in the yard showing how they struggled to escape. The negro was captured and taken to the county jail and then brought back and fully identified by the little girl. It is said he was promptly lynched. The country is excited and it is feared other lynchings may follow.

Tried to Assassinate the Sultan.

LONDON, Dec. 10.—The Athens correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says that two soldiers in the imperial service at the Yildiz Kiosk, the palace of the sultan, made an attempt on the sultan's life. This was frustrated by the attendants of the sultan. The sultan had the men tortured in the hope of extracting the names of the instigators, but both succumbed without revealing anything.

Got Only Sixteen Years.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 8.—Murder in the second degree was the verdict returned in the case of Dr. Jefferson D. Goddard, the druggist who shot and killed Fred J. Jackson, a laundryman, in the apartments of Jackson's wife at the Woodland hotel. The verdict of the jury fixes the penalty at sixteen years in the state penitentiary. The jury disagreed at a previous trial.

Postpone Kansas Pacific Sale.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—In view of the senate resolution calling on the government to bid on the Kansas Pacific road, Attorney General McKenna has taken steps looking to a postponement of the sale of that road, now set for December 15, to February 15.

MRS. M'KINLEY PASSES AWAY.

Mother of the President Dead at Canton, Ohio.

CANTON, Dec. 13.—Mrs. Nancy Allison McKinley is dead. Mrs. McKinley passed from life at a few minutes past 2 yesterday morning, with all her children and other immediate relatives at her bedside. She did not suffer any in her last hours, but gradually passed from the deep paisied sleep in which she has rested almost constantly for the past ten days, into the sleep of death. The president and all her family were by her side. There were no recognitions, however. Her last consciousness was hours before her final taking away.

SPAIN PREPARING FOR WAR.

Will be Ready for the Intervention Threatened by McKinley.

MADRID, Dec. 10.—The Imperial says it takes it for granted the government will make the necessary preparations to meet "the intervention threatened by President McKinley." adding: "If a new loan for the reorganization of the navy is floated it is sure to succeed." In conclusion the Imperial says: "The responsibility of the government is enormous if it fails to profit by the opportunity offered to place the country in a position to defend its interests." The Ministerial Globe confirms the report that the government is making preparations to meet the threats of intervention.

Cuban Leader Released.

HAVANA, Dec. 11.—Gen. Rivera, the insurgent leader, who was captured in March last in the province of Pinar del Rio by the Spanish troops, and who was recently pardoned by a royal decree, has been released from the Cabanas fortress, where he had been imprisoned for several months and sailed by the steamer Colon for Cadiz, his home. The Colon also carries back to Spain 800 sick, wounded and otherwise incapacitated soldiers.

Bryan's Present to Weaver.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13.—William Jennings Bryan has ordered a rare set of Thomas Jefferson's works to be presented to General Weaver, of Iowa.

BREVITIES.

It was officially announced at the White House a few days ago that Governor Griggs has been tendered and has accepted the office of attorney general, which will be vacated by the nomination of Attorney General McKenna to be associate justice of the United States supreme court.

Havana dispatch: News has been received here of a terrible fire at Jarucco, a town of about 10,000 inhabitants, in this province. About 110 houses were destroyed, with nearly all their contents. No accurate estimate of the amount of damage done can be made. Hundreds of families were rendered homeless and the situation is very distressing. The fire originated in an accident.

Washington dispatch: The interstate commerce commission authorizes the following statement: "In the matter of the application of the Chicago & Alton Railroad Company and other carriers to the interstate commerce commission to extend the period within which they shall comply with the provisions of the act of congress of March 2, 1898, commonly known as the safety appliance act, and upon which hearing has just been had, the commission has decided, upon cause shown, to extend said period two years for the petitioning carriers."

The London Daily Chronicle recently published a letter from a correspondent in Havana, who says: "Sagasta's efforts are too late. Under Weyler's vile regime half the Cuban population disappeared and the remaining half has been converted into implacable enemies of Spain, enemies who will absolutely refuse to accept Spain's word. The central provinces are a desert waste. The sugar industry can only be restarted by the infusion of English and American capital, which few dare to invest. The island is lost to Spain, and it is clearly the duty of the United States to intervene in the interests of humanity and civilization and to end this fearful inferno."

Washington dispatch: From the best information it appears that no change is to be made in the composition of the cabinet during the remainder of the current year There are two good reasons for this. Attorney General McKenna has charged himself with the prosecution of the Pacific railroad cases, and it is not to be supposed that he will relinquish his present office until the Kansas Pacific sale has passed into history. It is generally understood that Governor Griggs, of New Jersey, has been offered the place in the cabinet to be vacated by Attorney General McKenna, but it will not be possible for him to take the office before the beginning of next year. The New Jersey constitution fails to make provision for a successor to the governor, and should Governor Griggs relinquish his place now there consequently could be no head to the state government during the period of time between now and January 1.

FLOWERS OF SLEEP.

There is a pretty story connected with the Clandine poppy. According to the old legend it is the flower-love of the swallow and fills the woods with sunshine at the bird's appearance, dying with its desertion.

Very ancient is the history of the poppy. Its name is entwined with that of the lotus of Egypt and the thyme of Greece. It was one of the flowers the ancients dedicated to Venus. The Shirley poppies in our gardens are descendants of the wild red poppy of Europe.

A NECKLACE OF PEARLS

Is a beautiful possession. If a woman owns one, and if a single pearl drops off the string, she makes haste to find and restore it.

Good health is a more valuable possession than a necklace of the most beautiful pearls, yet one by one the jewels of health slip away, and women seem indifferent until it is almost too late, and they cannot be restored.

To die before you are really old is to suffer premature death, and that is a sin. It is a sin because it is the result of repeated violations of nature's laws.

Pain, lassitude and weariness, inability to sleep, dreadful dreams, starting violently from sleep, are all symptoms of nerve trouble.

You cannot have nerve trouble and keep your health. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the womb, the ovaries and the bladder are affected. They are not vital organs, hence they give out soonest.

Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, by building up the nerves and restoring woman's organism to its natural state, relieves all these troublesome uterine symptoms. In confirmation of this we, by permission, refer to the following women, all of whom speak from experience: MISS CELIA VAN HORN, 1912 Sharswood St., Philadelphia, Pa.; MISS GRACE COLLORD, 1434 Eastern Ave., Cincinnati, O.; MRS. NEWELL, 50 Ryerson St., Brooklyn, N. Y.; MRS. ISABEL OBERG, 220 Chestnut St., Woburn, Mass, MRS. A. H. COLE, New Rochelle, N. Y., and many others

For special symptoms Mrs. Pinkham has prepared a Sanative Wash, which will cure local troubles. Give these medicines a trial.

"Eating plenty of onions," says an authority, "will give one a fine complexion." Yes, and the freedom of the car, too.

A former Dakotan, who has just returned from several years' sojourn in the Klondike, reports that the climate up there is no more severe than it is in the Dakotas. But whether he intends this as a recommendation of his new home or a drive at his old is not apparent.

No sensible woman expects a man to take off his hat and keep it off because she happens to enter an elevator. It is a foolish thing to do. It means nothing in the way of deference, and it is extremely dangerous to health. There are more draughts in one elevator than in twenty streets cars—more grip, more bronchitis, more pneumonia. An elevator is not a drawing room. It is a vehicle, and we know of none in which it more behooves one to be careful.

Secretary Coburn, of the Kansas State Board of Agriculture, in his annual report says: Of butter made in families and factories, the aggregate reported is 37,211,974 pounds, being an increase of 2,204,640 pounds over the previous year's product. The output of cheese, however, is 98,000 pounds less than one year ago, or 1,043,500 pounds in all, the milk, doubtless, having been diverted to butter making. Milk sold for other purposes than cheese and butter making amounts to $560,465. At the valuation of the preceding year, the total amount to be credited to the year's butter, cheese and milk account is $5,109,381, an increase of $136,935.

Some persons find difficulty in understanding how, since the images of objects looked at are inverted in the eyes, we nevertheless see the objects right side up. Recent experiments by Doctor Stratton indicate that we possess an interesting power of adjustment in this regard. He wore inverting glasses which reversed everything within reach of his eyes, so that, for him, the ground was above and the sky below, while things on the right side were seen on the left, and things on the left appeared on the right. Continuously for eight days he wore the glasses, and within that time all his bodily movements became adjusted to the new order, so that he could walk the streets without much difficulty.

The recent death of Dr. Thomas W. ans, the famous American dentist, aris, recalls a romantic incident in ch history. When the French e was lost and Emperor Napoleon was taken prisoner at Sedan, in mber, 1870, the position of the s Eugenie in Paris became one t peril. Dr. Evans took the under his protection, furnish- with a disguise, and through n the army succeeded in carry- through the lines, with a lady t, and took her to England, rented for her the house ne still occupies at Chiselhurst. Dr. Evans numbered most of the crowned heads and titled personages of Europe among his patients. The suffering which he witnessed in camps and hospitals in the Crimean war made him an earnest advocate of reforms! He came to this country during the Civil war to help to organize the sanitary commission, and during the Franco-Prussian war he directed the work of the Red Cross.

The United States Board on Geographic Names, which meets at stated intervals, has just rendered decisions determining the spelling of 149 geographic names. These include a number in Alaska, significant at this time in view of the Klondike excitement. Many variations of nomenclature for the same place are encountered, and the board's action settles the uniform usage. Following is a summary of action taken relating to places conspicuously mentioned in the gold stories: As to Klondike, the decision is to spell it as here given, and not Clondyke, Klondyke, Chandike, Chandik or Deer, Reindeer, Trondike nor Thronduck. One of the lakes of the upper Yukon was named Lebarge by the Western Telegraph Expedition in 1868 after Mike Lebarge, a member of the exploring party, who is now living somewhere near Ottawa, Canada. Late publications have fallen into the error of spelling this Labarge, but the board adheres to the original form, Lebarge. There is a Lebarge river in Alaska. When Schwatka descended the Yukon in 1883 he named one of the lakes on its headwaters Lindeman after Dr. Moritz Lindeman, now vice-president of the Bremen Geographical Society. This sometimes appears erroneously as Lindemann and Linderman. The board adopts Lindeman. One of the principal tributaries of the upper Yukon is the Lewes river, named by Mr. Robert Campbell, of the Hudson Bay Company, about 1848.

THE NEWS IN IOWA

CONFESSES HIS CRIMES.

"Little" Arthur Courtney Tells of His Wholesale Stealing.

OTTUMWA, Dec. 17.—"Little" Arthur Courtney, of Mt. Pleasant, who is now serving time at Fort Madison for wholesale cattle stealing in Henry county, which covered a period of several years, has confessed in prison, and implicated his cousin, "Big" Arthur Courtney, one of that county's prominent farmers, in the deal. With the confession at hand, the grand jury indicted "Big" Arthur. In his confession Courtney gives the details of the crimes which he committed, and the number of cattle stolen, which amounted in value to several thousands of dollars. "Little" Arthur owed "Big" Arthur Courtney $2,000 on a farm which the former purchased of the latter, and he would steal cattle and drive them to his cousin's place, where they were turned in on the debt. The confession has caused a sensation and was brought about by the convict hearing a strong sermon by the prison chaplain not long ago on "Confession." He immediately sent for his father and attorneys and made a clean breast of the affair.

TOBE SMITH WILL CONTEST.

Make a Fight for Cass-Shelby Senatorial Seat.

ATLANTIC, Dec. 19.—The sheriff has served notice upon J. M. Emmert that T. H. Smith, of Harlan, will contest the senatorial election. The Eighteenth senatorial district, comprising the counties of Cass and Shelby, gave Emmert, democrat, 22 majority on the face of the returns. Mr. Smith claims that several mistakes have already been discovered where votes were counted for Emmert after being marked in the circle as straight republican votes and in the square opposite Emmert in the democratic column. Also, in Cass township, Shelby county, the polls were closed during meal hours, the officials going home, taking the boxes and ballots with them. This also occurred in Cass county.

WHITTLESEY APPREHENDED.

Council Bluffs Man Took Another Man's Wife as Well as Public Money.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Dec. 8.—Nelson Whittlesey, receiver of customs here, who ran away recently, $5,000 short in his accounts, has been apprehended by officers at Danville, Ky. With him was the wife of a local merchant, who previously stood well in the community. He deserted a wife here. Whittlesey for sixteen years was publisher of the Daily Globe here and was a prominent citizen. Of late he has become financially embarassed. The Chicago treasury agent who is here examining the defaulter's books, finds that he has been robbing the government for seven months. There are a number of the man's friends whom he borrowed heavily from in the last days he spent here.

TWO CHILDREN CREMATED.

Burned With the House While the Mother Went to the Well.

MUCHAKINOCK, Dec. 18.—The home of Albert Kalinar was burned and his two children, aged 5 and 3 respectively, were cremated. The mother had gone to a well some distance away and when she returned the house was in flames and she was powerless to save her children. Kalinar is a miner in the Happy Hollow mine and formerly lived at Beacon.

AN INTERESTING MAP.

Enterprise of An Iowa Newspaper.

DES MOINES, Dec. 14.—J. J. Hamilton, manager of the Des Moines Daily News, has gone east in the interest of that remarkably successful paper. He takes a map of Iowa showing in red figures the number of copies of the Daily News taken at each town. As the Daily News is only $1 a year and a first-class newspaper, the map is crowded with red figures and makes a splendid showing.

Small Wreck Near Muscatine.

MUSCATINE, Dec. 19.—A railroad collision occurred at Fruitland, a station six miles below Muscatine. No fatalities ensued, but the fireman, Ed Powers, was severely bruised. The damage done will not be covered by less than $6,000. The east-bound freight collided with an extra freight train going west. The engine was badly bent and twisted and rendered almost useless. Seven cars were reduced to splinters.

Gates Dairy Commissioner.

DENISON, Dec. 18.—The Denison Review announces the appointment by Governor-elect Shaw of L. S. Gates, of Manchester, as state dairy commissioner.

Byers for Adjutant General.

DENISON, Dec. 18.—The Review says that Governor-elect Shaw has named Maj. Melvin H. Byers, of Glenwood, for adjutant general of the state.

BETTY SMITH IS DYING.

Little Chance That She Will Ever Be Brought Back for Trial.

Des Moines dispatch: Since the supreme court granted Betty Smith a new trial, there has been much speculation why this woman, convicted of murdering her husband for his life insurance, has not been returned to Des Moines and placed on trial again. At last an explanation is forthcoming. Betty is still in the penitentiary and suffering from an illness which the attending physicians say will result fatally in a short time. County Attorney Howe has been anxious to bring the case to trial, but has been met with the statement that she was too ill to be moved and could not be tried. To satisfy himself he recently paid a visit to the prison and there talked with the hospital physicians. They told him a trial at this time was out of the question and that in all probability Betty would not recover. She is suffering from bladder trouble, and has been told that her only hope is in an operation that might prove fatal, but she has persistently refused to submit to it. The attending physician says he does not think she will live long.

NUMBER HURT AT VAIL.

Seven Coaches Derailed—No One Was Killed.

DENISON, Dec. 20.—The Northwestern overland limited met with a serious accident at Vail at 5 o'clock a. m., caused by a mail sack striking the switch standard and breaking it below the lock, the passing of the train loosening the switch. The two engines and mail car stayed on the track, the other seven cars, consisting of a combination baggage and smoker, three sleepers, two tourist and one chair car, with about eighty passengers on board, being derailed and overturned. Nineteen people were injured, but none seriously. The wreck is a costly one. The train was the finest run on the Northwestern main line. The sleeping cars were badly smashed. Fire broke out in the baggage car, but it was extinguished by the fireman.

BIG STORE IS BURNED.

Letts-Fletcher Establishment at Marshalltown Totally Destroyed.

MARSHALLTOWN, Dec. 17.—Marshalltown was visited yesterday by the most disastrous fire since the one of 1870. Despite the efforts of the entire city fire department and willing citizens, the large wholesale grocery house of Letts-Fletcher company, one of the largest of its kind in the state, was completely destroyed, with the handsome three-story building. The stock was entirely ruined and the building almost so. The loss on the stock will be in the neighborhood of $110,000, almost fully insured, while the loss on the building will be $20,000, with only $8,000 insurance.

TWO KILLED AT A CROSSING.

B., C. R. & N. Train Runs Into a Physician's Buggy.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—At Columbus Junction, Dr. Van Leek and a woman whom he had met at the train and was driving to his house were struck by B., C. R. & N. train No. 5 at a crossing and so badly injured that both may die. Several bones were broken in both.

Novak's Bail is Cut.

DES MOINES, Dec. 20.—Chief Justice Kinne, of the supreme court, has reduced the bail of Frank Novak, the murderer of Edward Murray, at Vinton, from $37,500 to $18,000. The question of whether a person convicted of murder in the second degree is entitled to bail was not determined, as it could not be ruled upon in a habeas corpus proceeding.

Fell to His Instant Death.

DUBUQUE, Dec. 19.—Charles Heller, a cigarmaker, of Dubuque, was crossing the railroad bridge to his home in East Dubuque, when he stumbled and fell from the foot-wide plank walk and striking the ice below was instantly killed.

IOWA CONDENSED.

A fourth damage suit has been filed recently at Waterloo against the rapid transit company by victims of the wreck near Cedar Falls in October. The suit is instituted by Frank Fouik and is for the same amount as the others, $5,000.

I. S. Youtz, a prominent farmer living near Ashawa, Polk county, was killed by a vicious bull. Youtz was an old settler, was 68 years of age, and was widely known through the surrounding country. He lived alone with his aged wife. Mr. Youtz had gone out at 10 o'clock in the morning to feed his cattle, and did not return. Late in the evening a search was instituted and his mangled body found lying in a gutter in the field where the cattle were. The animal had been dehorned some time before, but the dead man's body had been crushed into a jelly by the repeated attacks of the enraged beast.

ALL OVER THE WORLD

GERMANY'S LAND GRAB.

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 14.—The Nouk says that the absence of protests from the other powers at Germany's evident determination to remain at Kiao-Chau bay indicates that the partition of China has actually begun and will proceed quickly. Another newspaper expressed the belief that the United States, among other powers, may object to the permanent occupation of Kiao-Chau bay by Germany. Russian official circles, however, appear indifferent to the step taken by Germany.

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily Mail says he hears that Great Britain agrees not to oppose Germany's occupation of Kiao-Chau in return for Germany's promise not to interfere in the Egyptian question. According to a dispatch from Shanghai to the same paper, the Germans are extending the area of occupation at Kiao-Chau and now control 400 square miles. They have arranged a German administration and are already collecting duties. The Tsung-li-Yamen (the Chinese foreign office), says the dispatch, has appointed a prince to negotiate a settlement with the Germans.

SIMPLY A SPANISH TRICK.

Autonomy Only a Scheme of Spain to Gain Time.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Full copies of the Sagasta autonomy scheme have been received at the Cuban legation here and Senor Gonzalo de Quesada, the charge d'affaires, says without hesitation that the Spanish plan is "merely a trick to delay action by the United States and to dupe the Cubans now in arms if possible." In discussing the section which creates the council of administration, Senor Quesada said: "It declares that eighteen members shall be elected and seventeen shall be appointed by the governor general in the name of the king. Any impartial observer can see that this upper chamber will be always controlled by Spain, and if we further consider the requisites of membership no doubt can remain. It is necessary to have an annual income of $4,000 for a man to be either elected or selected to council of administration and from this it can be seen that wealth and not wisdom and ability is the prime requisite for such preferment."

ITALY FOLLOWS GERMANY.

Rumors That She Will Demand Indemnity From Hayti.

Port Au Prince dispatch: More trouble similar to the recent Leuders affair threatens Hayti, and Port Au Prince may have to face another menace of bombardment. Italy has long had claims against Hayti, and these, it is alleged, never have been settled. One claim which has been pending since 1893 was the case of a merchant of Port De Paiz, whose vessel and cargo worth $80,000 were, it is alleged, illegally seized and sold by the Haytian government. The other case was that of an Italian fisherman assassinated in Port Au Prince last October, the man who was accused of committing the crime not having been brought to justice yet. Italy, it is reported, intends to push a settlement of these claims at once, and rumors have reached Hayti that Italian war ships have been sent to back up the demands. If this report is true it is believed that President Sam will be forced by the people to declare war.

Whisky Buried 40 Years.

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 18.—When the river steamboat Arabia sank in the Missouri river, near Parkville, Mo., over forty years ago, her cargo included 165 barrels of whisky. For several weeks past a small force of river men have been digging into a sand bar near Parkville in search of the Arabia's valuable cargo. The diggers have just uncovered the whisky, finding the barrels well preserved, and have notified the United States revenue authorities that they desired to remove their find. The diggers will realize a handsome sum for their work and the government will receive about $7,000 revenue tax on the liquor.

RUSH BEAT WEFERS.

Iowa Boy Wins Twice From the Eastern Sprinter.

NEW YORK, Dec. 20.—At the carnival of indoor athletic sports at Madison Square Garden, J. H. Rush, of Grinnell, wearing the colors of the Chicago Athletic Association, defeated Bernard J. Wefers by 9 inches in the 40-yard dash. They met again in the 220-yard race, and Rush was once more victorious.

WHEN Lucien de Hem had seen his last 100-franc note raked in by the banker and had risen from the roulette table where he had just lost the remains of his small fortune he experienced a sort of vertigo and almost fell.

With reeling brain and failing limbs tottered over to the leather bench at encircled the room and threw mself on it. For some minutes he zed vaguely about this private gaming hell in which he had wasted the st years of his youth, recognizing one one the plundered heads of the ayers in the bold glare of the three eat green shades. He heard the soft iction of the gold on the felt and alized his loss, his ruin; but he remembered that at home, in a bureau rawer, there were two army pistols hich had been bravely used by his ather, General De Hem, in the attack f Zaatcha. Then utterly worn out, he lept profoundly.

He awoke with parched throat and lancing at the clock saw that he had arely slept a half hour.

An imperative need to breathe the ight air came over him. The hands narked a quarter to midnight, and, on ising and stretching his arms, Lucien ecollected that it was Christmas eve, nd by an ironical freak of memory he saw himself a little boy again putting his shoes in front of the chimney at bedtime.

Just then old Dronski, the Pole, a fixture of the place, in threadbare, braided livery, came up to Lucien and mouthed a few words in his dirty beard.

"Lend me five francs, Monsieur. Here are two days since I have been out of the club and 17 has not turned up once. * * * Laugh at me if you will, but you may cut off my fist if 17 does not come out in a few minutes, when the clock strikes midnight."

Lucien de Hem shrugged his shoulders; he had not even the wherewithal in his pocket to pay the tax known by the house habitues as "The Pole's Pence."

He passed into the hall, put on his hat, his coat, then descended the stairs with the haste of a fevered person. During the four hours he had been in doors heavy snow had fallen and the street, a central one, walled in by high houses, was all white. Multitudes of cold stars shone in the blue-black purged sky.

The ruined man walked rapidly, revolving desperate thoughts in his mind, and was more than ever drawn to the pistol box in his dressing case drawer.

Suddenly he stopped. He was confronted by a heart-breaking scene.

On a stone bench, placed according to the old-time custom beside the monumental door of a palace, a little girl of 6 or 7, barely covered by a ragged black frock, was sitting in the snow. She had gone to sleep there, in spite of the cold, in a painful attitude of utter weariness, with her poor little head and shoulder propped in an angle of the icy stone.

One of her old shoes had fallen from the foot which hung over and lay in the snow.

Lucien de Hem felt mechanically for his vest pocket, and was suddenly reminded that a moment before he had not even found a forgotten franc, nor a pourboire for the valet.

However, stirred by an instinctive pity, he approached the little girl, and would perhaps have carried her in his arms to give her a night shelter, had he not seen something shining in the old shoe as it lay in the snow.

He bent over. It was a gold louis.

Some charitable person, a woman, doubtless, in passing by this Christmas eve had seen the shoe in front of the sleeping child, and had remembered the touching legend. This generous alms had been given so that the little one might believe in the gifts of the holy child, and in spite of her distress retain some hope in the goodness of Providence.

A louis! It meant many days of plenty for the beggar, and Lucien was about to waken and tell her so, when he heard a voice in his ear, a drawling, thick voice, mumbling:

"Here are two days since I have been out of the club. You can cut off my fist if 17 does not come out when the clock strikes midnight."

Then the young man of 23, coming of honest stock with a magnificent military record, never failing in honor, this young man suddenly conceived a dreadful thought, fell prey to a wild, hysterical, monstrous desire. Assuring himself with one glance that the street was deserted he swiftly stooped, advanced a trembling hand, and stole the louis from the old shoe. With a wild rush he reached the club again, cleared the stairs in one impetuous rush, flung open the door of the reeking hall, and threw the gold piece on the green, just as the clock chimed the first stroke of midnight.

"All on 17!"

Seventeen won.

With a turn of his hand he shoved the 36 louis on red.

Red won.

He left 72 louis on the same color. Again it appeared. Three times he put up the doubled stakes with the same luck. There was now a great heap of gold and bank notes in front of him, and he began frantically to sow them broadcast over the table. Every combination favored him. The little ivory ball jumping about the divisions of the roulette seemed to be magnetized by the gambler's gaze, and obeyed it. In 10 plays he had recovered the few thousand francs, his last resource, that he had lost early in the evening. By punting 200 or 300 louis at once he would soon have far more than the heritage he had fooled away.

In his haste to play he had kept on his heavy coat, and the great pockets were already crammed with rolls of bank notes and gold pieces. He now had to stuff them into his inside pockets, his vest and trouser pockets, his cigar case, his handkerchief, and everything that could hold them. He still played. He still won; like a lunatic, like a drunken man! He threw the gold anywhere on the table with disdainful certainty.

In his heart a redhot iron was burning; he thought only of the child asleep in the snow; of the little beggar he had robbed.

"She is still there, of course; certainly, she must be there! In a minute, when it strikes I—I swear it—I will leave here and carry her home sleeping in my arms. I will bring her up, love her as my own child, and care for her always, always."

The clock struck 1, the quarter, the half, the three-quarters, and Lucien still sat at the table. A minute before 2 the banker rose abruptly and said in a sharp voice:

"Enough for the day, gentlemen; the bank is closed."

Lucien leaped to his feet. Roughly he pushed the players aside as they lingered about, eyeing him with envious admiration; hurriedly he cleared the stairs and ran to the stone bench.

"Thank God!" he cried; "she is still there!" He seized her hand.

"Ah! how cold she is, poor little one!"

As he lifted her in his arms the child's head fell back limp, and she did not waken. How children sleep, he thought, pressing her to his breast for warmth; and, vaguely anxious, he was about to kiss her lids to draw her from this heavy slumber, when he saw with terror that the child's eyes were half open, showing glassy pupils, extinguished and motionless. With terrible suspicion Lucien brushed her little lips with his own, and no breath came from them. While Lucien had been winning a fortune with the louis stolen from her, this little beggar had died of cold. His throat contracted in awful agony, he tried to cry out * * * and in the effort—he awoke from a nightmare on the bench at the club, where he had fallen asleep before midnight, and had been left undisturbed by the kindness of the old valet, who had gone off last of all at 5 o'clock. His heart had been touched by the poor bankrupt.

A noisy December dawn was peering through the panes. Lucien went out, pawned his watch, bathed, breakfasted, then went to the recruiting office, where he enlisted in the First African Chasseurs.

Lucien de Hem is now a lieutenant; he lives on his small pay and never touches a card.

It appears that he saves something, for not long ago, in Algiers, he was seen by a brother officer who was walking behind him in a winding street of the Kasha giving alms to a little Spanish beggar asleep under a doorway. The officer had the indiscretion to look at the money which Lucien had given to poverty.

He had put a gold louis in the child's hand.

HE APPROACHED THE LITTLE GIRL.

Christmas IN THE Country

Christmas in the country forty years ago was a different affair from what it is now. I never think of Christmas in those days without thinking of a lovely winter day, bright with sunshine, and snow everywhere; large drifts, through which the horses floundered as they drew the stout sled, on which was the wagon-bed filled with hay, and covered with blankets and buffalo-robes, where we cuddled down, as we rode merrily away to spend Christmas at grandpa's. We could hardly wait till the horses stopped, so eager were we to wish grandpa a merry Christmas; but he was generally ahead of us with his greeting of "Christmas gift." That entitled him to a present instead of us; but a kiss all around was usually the way we paid off our indebtedness, while some striped sticks of peppermint candy, laid up for the occasion, were given us. Our aunts, uncles and cousins came next for their share of good wishes and merry jokes.

A bright fire burned in the fireplace, and there, suspended by a stout string from the ceiling, was a great turkey packed full of dressing, and sending forth a most delicious odor as it turned round and round, gradually browning before the fire, the juice dripping into a great pan on the brick hearth; and from this pan grandma occasionally dipped the juice with a huge iron spoon and poured it over the crisp sides of the turkey. Other preparations were going on meanwhile in the kitchen, where a cooking stove held the place of honor, as cooking-stoves were very rare in those days. The neighbors had come miles to see it, and express their fears as to the probability of its "blowing up." This cook-stove, however, was not equal to cooking such a large turkey in its small oven. A coffee-boiler sent out an odor of coffee strong and fragrant, while a long table covered with snowy linen (the work of grandma's own hands) stood at the farther end of the long kitchen.

As soon as the turkey was pronounced done and the gravy made in the dripping-pan, the chairs were placed near the table and we were called to dinner. No one was left to wait, and such a merry time! After grandpa had asked a blessing on the food, he carved the turkey and supplied our waiting plates bountifully with any piece we wished, together with all manner of good things in the way of vegetables. A rice pudding with plenty of raisins, pumpkin pies and rosy-cheeked apples served for dessert, and our only sorrow was that we could eat so little. After dinner we children played games in the kitchen, around the fireplace that was used when there was no fire in the cook stove. Here we popped corn, cracked nuts, told fairy stories and played blind-man's buff while the older ones "visited" in the "keepin'-room" until the time came to return home.

THE CHRISTMAS SPIRIT.

One of the greatest blessings that Christmastide brings to us is the Christmas spirit—the fulfilment to the letter of the Christian law embodied in the Golden Rule.

This is not invariably the case, but it is fortunately the rule in a great number of cases. For a little while—a month—during the Christmas season, we are turned away from all spirit of avarice and selfishness. From the tiny toddler, who has for the first time begun to realize her responsibilities as a member of the family, to the grandmother in her snowy kerchief and cap, we are all plotting and planning for others. Going to the greatest pains to conceal all our doings in order that our gifts may be genuine surprises.

If we are members of Christian churches, we have the poor with us at this season, as at no other. We think out their needs. It has been the rule in Christian churches of late years to devote the offerings of the Christmas tree to the mission school. Loving bands of King's Daughters go about and gather all manner of gifts for those who are less fortunate, for those to whom Christmas otherwise brings only empty larders and threadbare clothing. The most sordid among us, like Old Scrooge, is sure finally to have an awakening of his better nature, to find a drawing at his heart strings more powerful than the tight drawn strings of the money bags.

The Childlike Mind.

Christmas is not only the mile mark of another year moving us to thought of self-examination, it is a season, from all its associations, whether domestic or religious, suggesting thoughts of joy. A man dissatisfied with his endeavors is a man tempted to sadness. And in the midst of the winter, when his life runs lowest and he is reminded of the empty chairs of his beloved, it is well he should be condemned to this fashion of the smiling face. Noble disappointment, noble self-denial are not to be admired, not even to be pardoned, if they bring bitterness. It is one thing to enter the Kingdom of Heaven maim; another to maim yourself and stay without. And the Kingdom of Heaven is like the child-like, of those who are easy to please, who love and who give pleasure. Mighty men of their hands, the smiters and the builders and the judges, have lived long and done sternly, and yet preserved this lovely character; and among our carpet interests and two-penny concerns, the shame were indelible if we should lose it.—From a Christmas Sermon by Robert Louis Stevenson.

FROM EVERY SPIRE

From every spire on Christmas eve,
The Christmas bells ring clearly out
Their message of good will and peace,
With many a call and silver shout.
For faithful hearts, the angels' song
Still echoes in the frosty air,
And by the altar low they bow
In adoration and in prayer.

A thousand blessed mem'ries throng,
The stars are holy signs to them,
And from the eyes of every child
Looks forth the Babe of Bethlehem.
But there are others, not like these,
Whose brows are sad, whose hopes are crossed,
To whom the season brings no cheer,
And life's most gracious charm is lost.

To whom that story, old and sweet,
Is but a fable at the best;
The Christmas music mocks their ears,
And life has naught of joy or rest.
Oh! for an angel's voice to pierce
The clouds of grief that o'er them rise,
The mists of doubt and unbelief
That veil the blue of Christmas skies.

That they, at last, may see the light
Which shines from Bethlehem and unfolds
For Christ the treasures of their hearts
Richer than spicery or gold.
Hope of the ages, draw Thou near,
Till all the earth shall own Thy sway,
And when Thou reign'st in every heart,
It will indeed be Christmas day.

How to Cure Phneumonia.

At this time of the year a cold is very easily contracted, and if left to run its course without the aid of some reliable cough medicine is liable to result in that dread disease, phneumonia. We know of no better remedy to cure a cough than Chamberlin's Cough Remedy. We have used it quite extensively and it had always given satisfactson.—Olagah, Ind. Ter. Chief. This is the only remedy that is known to be a certain preventive of phneumonia. Among the many thousands who have used it for colds and lagrippe, we have never yet learned of a single case having resulted in phneumonia. Persons who have weak lungs or have reason to fear an attack of phneumonia, should keep the remedy at hand. The 25 and 50c sizes for sale by J. L. Harr.

There is a marked contrast between the attitude of this Republican Secretary of Agriculture and his Democratic predecessor, who spent most of his time in frowning down the beet-sugar and other laudable industries and devising plans to prevent the distribution of seeds to the farmers of the country.

An old bachelor recently bought a pair of socks. George Caulfield's Journey

By Miss M. E. Braddon.

Parminter was a rustic village seven miles from Grandchester. It did not lie in the direction affected by Grandchester merchants or Grandchester tradespeople. Here were no Gothic mansions, no fair Italian villas, springing like mushrooms from the soil—one year a confusion of lime and mortar tubs, stacked flooring boards, and rough hewn stone, and the next all smiling among geranium beds and ribbon bordering, velvet lawns and newly-planted shrubberies. None of the commercial wealth of Grandchester had found its way to Parminter. The village was still a village—a mere cluster of laborers' cottages, two or three old homesteads, and half a dozen small dwellings of a shabby-genteel type.

Among these last was Rose Cottage, a small square house, with plaster walls, bright with greenery and scarlet berries, even in this winter season. A bow window below, rustic lattice above. Just such a house as a man with considerable taste and inconsiderable income would choose for himself. The small garden in front of the bow window was in admirable order, yet the place had a deserted look somehow, Mr. Leworthy thought, as he rang the bell.

He rang once, twice, three times, with no more effect than if Rose Cottage had been a toy house inhabited by Dutch dolls. This was aggravating. There was a meadow on one side of the cottage, where half a dozen sheep were browsing contentedly. The vicar climbed the hurdle which divided this pasture from Lawson Lane, and went around to the back of the cottage. Here there was a small garden, neatfully and tastely laid out, but there was no more appearance of human life at the back of the house than in the front.

"I suppose my gentleman comes home at night and lets himself in with a latch key," the vicar said to himself.

He was climbing the hurdle on his return to the lane, when a small girl, in a very short skirt—a girl of timid aspect, carrying a beer jug—dropped him a courtesy, and said:

"Please, sir, was it you a-ringing of that bell just now?"

"Was it me?" ejaculated the vicar, impatiently. "Yes, it was."

And, then, smiling on the small girl, for he had a heart large enough for ever so many parishes of children, he said:

"I am not vexed with you, my dear; I am angry with Fate. Tell me all you know about that cottage, and I'll give you half a crown."

The girl gasped. She had never possessed a half crown, but she had an idea it meant abundance. Her father counted his wages by half crowns, and there were not many in a week's wage.

"Please, sir, Mr. Foy lived there with his sister, but they've left."

"Oh, they've left, have they? When did they leave?"

"Last Monday, sir, and the lady was very ill, sir, and he took her away in a cab."

"And Mr. Foy has not been back since?"

"No, sir. He left for good, and he gave the key of the cottage to my mother, and the agent is to put up a board next week, and the house is to be let. It was took furnished, and is to be let furnished again."

"Did they live quite alone? Had they no servant?"

"No, sir, no reg'lar servant. Mother used to do the cleaning twice a week. Mother's very sorry they be gone. They was good to mother."

"How long had they lived there?"

"Nigh upon a year."

"And the lady was Mr. Foy's sister?"

"Yes, sir."

"And now take me to your mother."

The girl looked wistfully at the jug.

"If you please, I was to fetch father's beer, sir."

"I see. And if you don't, father will be angry."

"Yes, sir."

"Then you shall go; but first tell me where your mother lives."

The child pointed down Lawson Lane. "It's the last cottage, sir."

"All right."

Just where the lane straggled off into plowed fields and open country there was a row of laborers' cottages, and in the last of these Mr. Leworthy found a plaintive woman with a child in her arms, who owned to being the mother of the small girl with the jug.

The vicar wasted no time in preliminaries. He seated himself on an almost bottomless chair, and with his stout umbrella planted between his knees, interrogated the matron thus:

"You used to work for Mr. Foy and his sister. What do you know about them?"

"Only that they paid me honorable for what work I did, sir. I'm bound to up and say that, whoever asks me."

"Good. Did they live happily together as—brother and sister?"

Here the matron began to hesitate. She shifted her baby from one arm to the other. She gave a deprecating cough.

"I see—they quarreled sometimes."

"I never seen 'em, sir, for I scarce ever see Mr. Foy. He was off to Grandchester before I went of a morning, and he didn't come back till after I left. I used to go for the half day, you see, sir—not the whole day. But I don't think the young lady was quite happy in her mind. I've seen her fretting; and people will talk, you see, sir—neighbors next door to Rose Cottage have heard them at high words, in summer time, when the winders was all open, or when they was in the garden."

"I see. Had the sister been long ill?"

"No, sir, not above a month."

"What was the matter with her?"

"Well, sir, I can't say azackly. It was a sort of wasting sickness, like. She couldn't keep nothing on her stomach, of late, poor dear; and she had pains that racked her, and used to complain of a burning feel in her throat; out of sorts altogether, as you may say. I believe it all came from fretting."

"Why did she fret so much? Was her brother every unkind to her?"

"No, sir. I don't think it was his unkindness that worried her. But he used to keep very late hours—hardly ever coming home till the last train, and that worried her. Not that he was ever the worse for drink. He was the soberest young man as ever was, but she was of a jealous disposition, and the thought that he was out enjoying himself with other people used to prey on her mind."

"That was hardly fair, if he treated her kindly when he was at home. A sister has no right to be jealous of a brother."

"Perhaps, no, sir, but jealous she was, and fret she did. 'I've nobody but him in the world, Mrs. Moff,' she said—my name being Moff—'and I can't bear him to be always away. There was a time when he spent all his evenings at home.' And then tears would roll down her poor holler cheeks, and it went to my 'eart to see her so miserable. I had a feller-feelin', you see, sir, for I know how it worrits me when my master stops late at the 'Coach and Horses' on a Saturday night."

"Ah, but it's different with a husband. A wife has a right to be exacting, not a sister. Now, tell me how they left the place, and all about it. I'm interested in this poor girl, and perhaps I may be able to befriend her. Where did they go?"

"He was going to take her to some place near the sea, on the other side of Grandchester, and a good way off. The name has gone clean out of my head. He was very kind to her from the time she fell ill. She told me so with her own lips. 'Gaston was never so kind to me in all his life,' she says. He fancied it was the air here that didn't agree with her, she told me, and it is rather a relaxing air, here, sir. I feel it so sometimes, myself, and if it wasn't for my drop of beer I should go off in a dead faint."

"What kind of a young woman was Miss Foy? Was she like her brother?"

"No, sir, she were not. I never laid eyes on a brother and sister more unsimilar. She had been very pretty, there's no denying that, but her nervous, worriting ways had that worn and preyed upon her that she was old and 'aggard before her time. She had light brown hair, and a fair skin and blue eyes, and I dessay she had been a pretty figure before she wasted away like, but her 'ealth were never good from the time I knew her."

"Did you see her the day she went away?" asked the vicar.

"It wasn't a day, sir. She went late at night, by the last train to Grandchester. She was to sleep in Grandchester, and go on to the seaside next morning; and I do say that it wasn't the right thing for a young person in her state of 'ealth to travel late on a winter's night. But there, poor feller, it wasn't his fault, for he had to be at the office all day."

"She was wrapped up warmly, I suppose?"

"Yes, she wore a thick Scotch plaid shawl that he bought her the winter before."

"Black and red?" said the vicar.

"Black and red," assented the woman, with some astonishment. "One would think you'd seen it, sir."

"I told you I was interested in the young lady," answered the vicar, vaguely.

He took out his memorandum book and wrote down the date and hour of the young woman's removal from Rose Cottage. She had left in the one cab that plied between Parminter village and the Parminter Road Station. The cabman could be forthcoming if he were wanted, Mrs. Moff suggested.

Mr. Leworthy rewarded this worthy woman with a crown piece, half of which he stipulated was to be given to the little girl when she came home from her errand, and then he walked briskly back to the station, which was a good half mile from Lawson Lane. He was lucky enough to get a train in less than half an hour, and he was back in Grandchester at three o'clock in the afternoon.

Here he took a cab and drove straight to Mr. Brockbank's office, to whom he imparted all he had done.

"Upon my soul, you're a clever fellow, vicar!" cried the lawyer; "you ought to have been something better than a parson."

"You mean I ought to have been something that pays better. Now, look here, Brockbank, you must start off to Milldale by the first train, and get the coroner to order a post-mortem. No post-mortem necessary, forsooth, said that fool of a local surgeon, because the immediate cause of death was obviously laudanum. Why, it's clear to my mind, from what I've head to-day, that this poor creature was slowly done to death by arsenic, and that the dose of laudanum was only given to the last to accelerate the end."

Mr. Brockbank saw the force of this argument, and looked at once to his railway timetable.

"There's a train at 4:30," he said; "I can go by that. And now what are you going to do?"

"I shall call on Mr. Umpleby and try and stop to-morrow's wedding."

"What motive can this Foy have had for getting rid of his sister?" speculated the lawyer.

"Very little, I should imagine, for getting rid of a sister. But what if the young woman was something more difficult to dispose of than a sister? What if she was his wife? These two young people lived quite alone in a country lane. It was easy for them to live as man and wife, yet pass for brother and sister. The char-woman's account shows that she was jealous and unhappy. She fretted on account of Foy's late hours. They were overheard quarreling. Take my word for it, Brockbank, that unfortunate woman was a wife—a wife to whom Mr. Foy grew mortally tired when he found that it was on the cards to marry Miss Umpleby, with a handsome dowry, and the prospect of rapid advancement in the house. Now I want you to set one of your clerks at work, without an hour's delay, to hunt up evidence of such a marriage, either in a church or at a registry office."

"It shall be done," said Brockbank. "Anything more?"

"Only this much: I have written an advertisement which will appear to-morrow in three local dailies."

He read the draft of his advertisement.

"This may bring us information as to the next stage in that poor young woman's journey after she left Parminter," he said.

"Possibly. You are really a genius at the art of hunting a criminal."

"No, sir, I am only thorough. I would do a good deal more than this to help anyone I love. Now I'm off. I dare say you've some business to get through before you start for Milldale."

"Only half a dozen letters to dictate," answered the lawyer, lightly, and then he put his lips to a speaking tube and gave an order.

"Send up the shorthand clerk, and have a cab at the door at quarter past four."

CHAPTER V.

MR. LEWORTHY went back to Kibble & Umpleby's and asked if Mr. Umpleby was on the premises. No, Mr. Umpleby had left half an hour ago, to return to the bosom of his family in Tolkington Park.

Happily for the eager vicar, Tolkington Park was an adjoining suburb, where those well-to-do citizens of Grandchester who did not like the labor of daily railroad journeys contented themselves with a semi-urban retirement in villas of their own building, amidst shrubberies of their own planting, overlooking the towniest and most formal of public parks. It had long been a grief to the female Umpleby's that, where other merchants' families of wealth and standing had Gothic mansions or Italian palaces set in richly wooded landscapes, remote from the smoke of the city, they had only the stereotyped surroundings of a thickly populated suburb, and were in nowise better off than their next-door neighbors.

A cab with a horse of his own choosing drove Mr. Leworthy to the utmost limit of Tolkington Park in less than half an hour. He found the Umpleby mansion, which was called Mount Lebanon, although the ground on which it stood was as flat as a pancake, and there was not a cedar within a mile. It was a substantial, square house, with bay windows, a broad flight of steps, grandiose iron railings, painted dark blue, and surmounted with guilded pineapples, and an all-pervading glare of plate glass windows.

"MY WIFE'S LIFE."

How I was the means of saving it.

When the lungs are attacked and the symptoms of consumption appear, then begins the struggle between affection and that destroying disease which slays its thousands annually. It is a happy issue to the struggle when disease is conquered and health restored. Such an issue does not always end the struggle, but it did in the case of Mr. K. Morris, Memphis, Tenn., who saw his wife wasting and weakening and physicians helpless, and then suggested the simple remedy that wrought the cure. He tells the story thus:

"Seven years ago, my wife had a severe attack of lung trouble which the physicians pronounced consumption. The cough was extremely distressing, especially at night, and was frequently attended with the spitting of blood. The doctors being unable to help her, I induced her to try Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and was surprised at the great relief it gave. Before using one whole bottle she was cured, so that now she is strong and quite healthy. That this medicine saved my wife's life I have not the least doubt. I always keep Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house. Whenever any of my family have a cold or cough we use it, and are promptly cured."—K. MORRIS, Memphis, Tenn.

The question: "Is consumption curable?" is still debated, and still debatable. It is easy to say that this was not a case of consumption. Yet the physicians said it was. They should know. As a matter of fact, Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has wrought so many similar cures that it seems to argue the curableness of consumption, in its earlier stages, by the use of this remedy. There is no better medicine for pulmonary troubles than Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It gives relief in cases of Asthma, and Bronchitis, where relief has been heretofore unattainable. It promptly cures Coughs and Colds, La Grippe, and all affections of the throat and lungs. Heretofore, Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been put up in full size bottles only, at $1.00 per bottle. To meet a world-wide demand for a smaller package, the remedy is now put up in half size bottles, at half price—50 cents. Write for Dr. Ayer's Curebook (free) and learn more of the cures effected by Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Address J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

A DAY.

I'll tell you how the sun arose,
A ribbon at a time.
The steeples swam in amethyst,
The news like squirrels ran.

The hills untied their bonnets.
The bobolinks begun.
Then I said softly to myself,
"That must have been the sun!"

But how he set, I know not.
There seemed a purple stile
Which little boys and girls
Were climbing all the while.

A dominie in gray

And led the flock away.

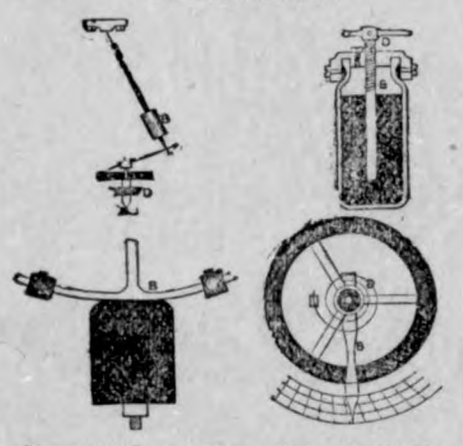
Curious Invention.



One of the most curious inventions that has probably been issued out of the United States Patent office, was granted last week to a Scotchman. The invention embodies a process of obtaining useful products from silk worms. The inventor collects the silk worms when they have attained the maximum size and are about to begin spinning and subjects them to pressure without preliminary treatment and so artificially ejects the silk fibre in killing the worm to produce the threads and then dries these artifically ejected threads and later subjects them to the same treatment that the threads would undergo had they been spun naturally. In this manner, of course, the whole process is immensely simplified and the percentage of gain is greatly increased. We above show four copyrighted sketches of mechanical movements easily understood by the average mechanic. All those desiring free information as to the laws of patents may obtain the same in addressing Sues & Co., registered patent lawyers, Bee Building, Omaha, Neb.

MRS. LYNESS ESCAPES

The Hospital and a Fearful Operation.

Hospitals in great cities are sad places to visit. Three-fourths of the patients lying on those snow-white beds are women and girls.

Why should this be the case?

Because they have neglected themselves! Women as a rule attach too little importance to first symptoms of a certain kind. If they have toothache, they will try to save the tooth, though many leave even this too late. They comfort themselves with the thought that they can replace their teeth; but they cannot replace their internal organs!

Every one of those patients in the hospital beds had plenty of warnings in the form of bearing-down feelings, pain at the right or the left of the womb, nervous dyspepsia, pain in the small of the back, the "blues," or some other unnatural symptom, but they did not heed them.

Don't drag along at home or in the shop until you are finally obliged to go to the hospital and submit to horrible examinations and operations! Build up the female organs. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will save you from the hospital. It will put new life into you.

The following letter shows how Mrs. Lyness escaped the hospital and a fearful operation. Her experience should encourage other women to follow her example. She says to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I thank you very much for what you have done for me, for I had given up in despair. Last February, I had a miscarriage caused by overwork. It affected my heart, caused me to have sinking spells three to four a day, lasting sometimes half a day. I could not be left alone. I flowed constantly. The doctor called twice a day for a week, and once a day for four weeks, then three or four times a week for four months. Finally he said I would have to undergo an operation. Then I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after one week I began to recover and steadily improved until I was cured completely. By taking the Pinkham medicine, I avoided an operation which Doctor said I would certainly have to undergo. I am gaining every day and cheerfully tell anyone what you have done for me."—MRS.
